Masses of Bodies Sighted in Debris

By VERNON GUIDRY JR.

Rescue vessels searched the Bay St. Louis Saturday off Gulfport, Miss., for a mass of bodies floating in a pile of debris left by Hurricane Camille.
Gov. John Bell Williams said that without counting the bodies, amassed in what was described as a "nightmare," the death toll along the state's Gulf Coast would be in the area of 200.
NAVY SEABEES and other rescue workers have reported finding more bodies in the rubble left by Camille, and Civil Defense officials said some bodies have been pulled out of the bay.
In Virginia, the waters of the James River began to recede Saturday and hundreds of evacuated residents returned to their homes.
Only low-lying industrial areas remained flooded and the Weather Bureau estimated that the river would be settled back into its banks by Sunday afternoon.
The death toll stood at 65, but 94 still were listed as missing.
Williams ordered the rescue boats to search the bay between Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis for scores of bodies that an Army pilot said he sighted entangled in a two-mile-long island of debris. The governor said he was not including those bodies in his new estimate.

NIXON POSTPONES
TROOP PULLOUT
FROM S. VIETNAM

Associated Press

President Nixon disclosed Saturday he is postponing a decision on more American troop withdrawals from South Vietnam because of an upsurge in enemy attacks this month.
He said he wants to reassess the attacks as well as enemy infiltration and power.
The President originally set the end of August as a deadline for determining whether there would be additional troop withdrawals.
WHITE HOUSE Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the announcement will now come after Nixon goes back to Washington early in September.
He is thinking of the 6th, 7th or 8th as the day of his return.
The announcement may not be made immediately after that, Ziegler said, and could be held off for days or weeks.
The press secretary warned against interpreting the delay as indication the White House has information a new Communist offensive is probable. But he did not rule out the possibility, Ziegler said the recent flareup of enemy attacks was a matter of concern to Nixon.
"The reason for the presidential decision to defer this decision on troop withdrawals," Ziegler said, "is for the President to further assess this high point of enemy activity earlier in the month and to receive reports on infiltration levels and project the potential of enemy activity in the future."
THERE HAD been widespread expectation that August would produce a decision to match a 25,000-cut in U.S. forces in Vietnam announced last July at an American-Vietnamese summit conference on Midway Island.
One result of the postponement is likely to be abandonment of presidential hope to pull more than 100,000 troops out by the end of the year and all LANDING ZONE CENTER, Vietnam (U) — American infantrymen reached the crash site of a downed U.S. command helicopter early today and reported finding six bodies in an initial search.

Eight men aboard the chopper included Lt. Col. Eli P. Howard Jr., 41, of Woodbridge, Va., and Associated Press photographer Oliver Noonan, 29, of Norwell, Mass.
AP photographer Horst Faas, who was with the troops that reached the wreckage 31 miles south of Da Nang, said Howard's body had been identified, but not the other five.
Troops of the U.S. Army's 196th Light Infantry Brigade had been moving toward the crash site since Wednesday. They had encountered fierce enemy resistance until late Saturday.
Field reports said there was no opposition this

Southland Blazes
Still Uncontrolled

Fires that forced more than 400 persons to flee their homes crackled across 50 miles of San Diego County brush and grass Saturday. Firemen said it would take days to control them.
One of 700 firefighters was injured.
Centers were set up at fire stations to handle evacuees.
Crews from city fire departments and state and federal forestry camps worked in 100-degree heat to cut lines around fires in San Diego County, where three blazes blackened more than 50,000 acres.
In Riverside County a blaze threatening the small town of Murrieta.
The State Division of Forestry said it had established a line about one mile from Murrieta, at the north end of the fire, and hoped to stop the fire's advance there. No evacuation order was given, but the Riverside County Fire Department station in the town of about 500 said some residents were beginning to remove their belongings from their homes.
THE FIRE, described as 30 per cent contained Saturday after burning over 18,000 acres, was also threatening structures at its south end in the Saxon Grade area. Officials predicted containment late today.
Some fire fighters were transferred to San Diego County from two smaller blazes that scorched 1,900 acres in San Bernardino County before they were controlled.
"We've been lucky," said a spokesman for the State Division of Forestry. "The fires are burning away from populated areas. But it will be days before we can get them under control."
The spokesman said many of the evacuees, who left their ranches when the fire burned toward them Friday night, were expected to return by this morning.

The injured fireman bruised his legs when he was caught in a rockslide. He was not hospitalized.
THE BIGGEST fire started Friday at Camp Pendleton, about 15 miles south of President Nixon's Western White House in San Clemente, and burned eastward.
The blaze blackened 23,000 acres of the Camp Pendleton Marine base and surrounding areas, then jumped into Cleveland National Forest where it burned 6,000 acres of timber.

MERCURY
IN 90s FOR 4TH DAY

Temperatures soared with the plus-90s for the fourth day in a row in Long Beach Saturday, sending thousands to the beach — where they met unexpectedly cold ocean water.
The high mercury reading Saturday was 92 degrees, numerically — at least — cooler than Friday's 96-degree high. It was the "coolest" reading of the four-day heat wave which began Wednesday with a top temperature of 93.
A slight cooling trend is expected to ease the heat wave today, with temperatures dropping to the mid-80s in Long Beach.
Along the coastline Saturday, a chilly ocean current cooled the surf. Highest water temperature reported by lifeguards in the southland area was 70 degrees at some Los Angeles County beaches. At Long Beach the water temperature was 59.
Other lifeguard reports of water temperatures included Cabrillo, 56; Seal Beach, 59; Huntington Beach, 58; Newport Beach, 58, and Laguna Beach, 57.

AT LEAST 10 SHIPS

L.B. to Get Share of New, Faster Navy Vessels

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

A faster, more modern and slightly smaller Navy is programmed for the '70s in the wake of the current cutbacks.
Under construction and funded earlier are 203 new ships.
Long Beach, loser of 12 in the Department of Defense announcement Thursday, will get eight of them for sure and possibly 10 or more.
A Pacific Fleet spokesman told the Independent, Press-Telegram that an amphibious transport dock, the Juneau; three new class tank landing ships, the St. Louis, Frederick and Manitowoc, and "at least four and maybe more of the 46 destroyer escorts now on the ways" are scheduled to be based at Long Beach.
Also, the two new nuclear missile frigates stand "an excellent chance" of being assigned to Long Beach, the spokesman said. Long Beach Naval Station and the Naval Shipyard have compiled an excellent record of handling and working on the three nuclear surface ships currently based there — the USS Long Beach, Bainbridge and Truxtun.
The attack carrier Ticonderoga will come to Long Beach Naval Shipyard late next month for refitting as an antisubmarine carrier, partly compensating for the loss of the two carriers Bennington and Kearsarge. The conversion will take well into next year.
Only antisubmarine carrier remaining in Long Beach is the Hornet, already designated as the Apollo 12 pickup ship in November.
Deactivation of the amphibious assault carriers Valley Forge and Princeton will be eased by the arrival of the Amphibious transport Juneau with a sister ship, the Denver, having arrived in Long Beach Jan. 15.
This new class can transport and launch almost as many Marines via helicopters as the pair of ships going out of commission.
The Navy was resigned to a cutback early in the month. When the actual ship list was released, there were few surprises — aging destroyers, diesel submarines, auxiliaries and many smaller craft.
The heavy cruiser Canberra, just out of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard after a $1 million overhaul, was one of the surprises.
The New Jersey was expected to go, but not until after she had made one more Vietnam cruise.
The 1,000-man major communications relay ship Arlington, arriving Wednesday from 2½-years off Vietnam, had never been in Long Beach before and counting her as an economic loss is invalid.
In actuality, Long Beach's "true cut list" is 11.
Money savings on personnel will amount to $1 billion and with the Vietnam operational ship and personnel cutback, top brass have a positive figure to show Congress.

Gen. Khiem New S. Viet Premier

Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, an efficient administrator who rose in politics during South Vietnam's turbulent coup days was designated premier Saturday by his old friend, president Nguyen Van Thieu.

Khiem, 43, replaces ailing Tran Van Huong, 66, a respected civilian who finally buckled under growing criticism from parliament, party leaders and the military.

The elevation of Khiem to premier put a trio of military politicians at South Vietnam's helm. Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky began their political careers as generals. Khiem attended the U.S. Army Command and General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Khiem, a colorless but business-like executive who was briefly ambassador to Washington in 1964, had been interior minister in Huong's government when it was formed in May 1968. In the reshuffle last March, Khiem became deputy premier and civil pacification chief while retaining the Interior Ministry. The pa-cification program is designed to win over the countryside from the Viet Cong.

Considered the strongest man in the Cabinet, Khiem sometimes figured in speculation as premier material, but always with the reservation that his four stars would go against him.

IRISH HELP

Bernadette Devlin, who has become a symbol of hope to the Roman Catholics of Northern Ireland, is an intense, articulate young woman to whom the word defeat has no meaning.

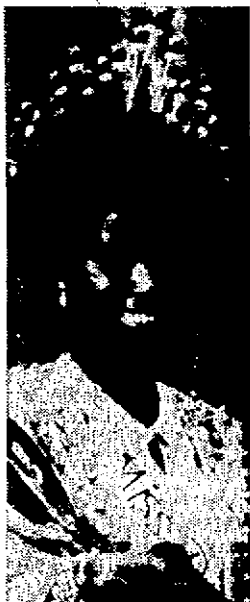

Exhausted by 2½ days of fund raising, the tiny, brown-haired Miss Devlin was interviewed in a small, shabby New York office Saturday, surrounded by advisers, newsmen and people who want to help her cause.

She repeated the same phrases, over and over, that she has used since her arrival here Thursday for a coast-to-coast tour: "The barricades of Bogside will stay up until the government comes down." "Injustice is international." "The government divided the people of Northern Ireland."

Sleeves rolled up, skirt riding high, shoes kicked under her chair, Miss Devlin, 22, explained what keeps her going:

"Will power. It's taking a lot out of me, but it's taking a lot out of the people at the barricades. If I collapse, someone will put me to bed and treat me nicely. If they collapse, they're lost."

One of five children of a carpenter, the girl who last April became the youngest member of the British Parliament, speaks in a low voice, without gesturing. She seems unconcerned about her personal appearance and her personal appeal as a heroine.

Gen. Khiem New S. Viet Premier

Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, an efficient administrator who rose in politics during South Vietnam's turbulent coup days was designated premier Saturday by his old friend, president Nguyen Van Thieu.

Khiem, 43, replaces ailing Tran Van Huong, 66, a respected civilian who finally buckled under growing criticism from parliament, party leaders and the military.

The elevation of Khiem to premier put a trio of military politicians at South Vietnam's helm. Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky began their political careers as generals. Khiem attended the U.S. Army Command and General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Khiem, a colorful but business-like executive who was briefly ambassador to Washington in 1964, had been interior minister in Huong's government when it was formed in May 1968. In the reshuffle last March, Khiem became deputy premier and civil pacification chief while retaining the Interior Ministry. The pa-cification program is designed to win over the countryside from the Viet Cong.

Considered the strongest man in the Cabinet, Khiem sometimes figured in speculation as premier material, but always with the reservation that his four stars would go against him.

IRISH HELP

Bernadette Devlin, who has become a symbol of hope to the Roman Catholics of Northern Ireland, is an intense, articulate young woman to whom the word defeat has no meaning.

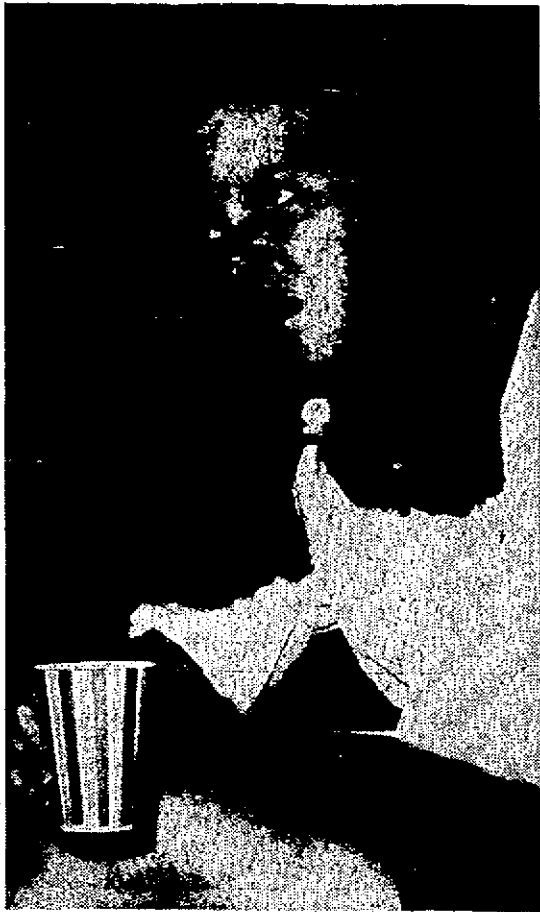

Exhausted by 2½ days of fund raising, the tiny, brown-haired Miss Devlin was interviewed in a small, shabby New York office Saturday, surrounded by advisers, newsmen and people who want to help her cause.

She repeated the same phrases, over and over, that she has used since her arrival here Thursday for a coast-to-coast tour: "The barricades of Bogside will stay up until the government comes down." "Justice is international." "The government divided the people of Northern Ireland."

Sleeves rolled up, skirt riding high, shoes kicked under her chair, Miss Devlin, 22, explained what keeps her going:

"Will power. It's taking a lot out of me, but it's taking a lot out of the people at the barricades. If I collapse, someone will put me to bed and treat me nicely. If they collapse, they're lost."

One of five children of a carpenter, the girl who last April became the youngest member of the British Parliament, speaks in a low voice, without gesturing. She seems unconcerned about her personal appearance and her personal appeal as a heroine.

BLACK QUEEN

A 24-year-old New York model, actress and singer was named Miss Black America Saturday in the second annual Miss Black America Pageant.

The beauty is Gloria Smith, who sang her own composition in the talent portion of the contest. She is five feet, seven inches tall, 125 pounds and measures 34-23-34. She competed as Miss Black New York.

The first runner-up to her was Miss Black California, Laverne Williams, 23, of Oakland. Miss Black Washington, D.C., Connie Brown, 19, was second runner-up.

Third and fourth places went to Miss Black Michigan, Gloria Green, 24, of Detroit, and Miss Black Florida, Lynda Lockman, 19, of Miami.

About 4,400 persons attended the pageant finals at the Felt Forum at Madison Square Garden, New York.

The judges included Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., the first Negro woman in Congress; actress Diana Sands; former CORE Chairman Floyd McKissick; and Willis Reed, captain of the New York Knickerbockers professional basketball team.

FAIR CHOICE

Auburn-haired Suzanne Wensch, 20, of suburban Sacramento, was crowned Maid of California Friday night at the California State Fair.

Miss Wensch, from Loomis, led a list of 11 semi-finalists.

The others are Banky Pearson, Miss Mariposa County; Denise Smith, Ventura County; Terry Carter, Monterey County; Adrienne Lopez, San Mateo County; Linda Prais, Orange County; Susand Corcoran, Yolo County; Rosemary Hannah, Santa Clara County; Carol Armas, Merced County; Mary Ann Weston, Plumas County; and Laurene Underhill, Los Angeles County.

Ex-Senator Douglas Condition Better

WASHINGTON (AP)—The condition of former Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., continued Saturday to improve from a stroke he suffered Aug. 12.

Douglas, 77, served as a senator for 18 years before he was defeated by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., in 1966.

Division Reunion

DETROIT (UPI)—The 87th "Golden Acorn" Army Division of World War I and II will hold its annual national convention here Sept. 26-28.

DID RIGHT

The Duke of Windsor said Saturday he would give up the throne of Britain for the love of his American born wife if he were faced with the choice again. The Duchess said she would again urge him to forget her and keep the crown.

The duke, 75, reaffirmed his love for the former Wallis Warfield Simpson in an interview with a Lisbon newspaper, Diario de Lisboa, and said he had no regrets over his abdication in 1936.

Asked if she could go back in history whether she would urge the then King Edward VIII to forget her and keep his throne, the Duchess replied: "without a doubt. I would always insist he forget me."

Added the Duke: "But once more I would disobey the duchess and once more I would abdicate."

Nasser Calls for War Against Israelis Over Mosque Fire

By RAYMOND H. ANDER-
New York Times Service

CAIRO — President Gamel Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic declared Saturday in a message to the armed forces of all Arab countries that they had no alternative but to go to war against Israel as a consequence of the fire in the El Aksah mosque in Jerusalem.

Nasser pledged that the Arabs would liberate the Old City of Jerusalem, occupied by Israel during the June, 1967 war, and all other Arab lands held by the Israelis.

"In the coming battle," he said, "the Arab soldiers will not be soldiers of the Arab nations alone but soldiers of God and protectors of his religions, houses of worship and holy books."

The message was addressed to the U.A.R.'s minister of war, Gen. Mohammad Fawzi, the armed forces of other Arab countries, and to members of Arab commando organizations.

The fire in the Al Aksah mosque has aroused passions in Egypt and other Arab countries unequal to anything since the war two years ago.

Accusations of Israeli arson roared from loudspeakers throughout Cairo as Moslems prayed in mosques and outdoor sites.

The leader of Egypt's minority Coptic Christians, Patriarch Kyrollos, joined the condemnation and urged Copts to pray during Sunday services for the safety of the Moslem sacred site in Jerusalem.

The patriarch charged that reports from Israel about the arrest of a Christian man from Australia in connection with the fire was a maneuver by the Israelis to arouse hostility between Moslems and Christians.

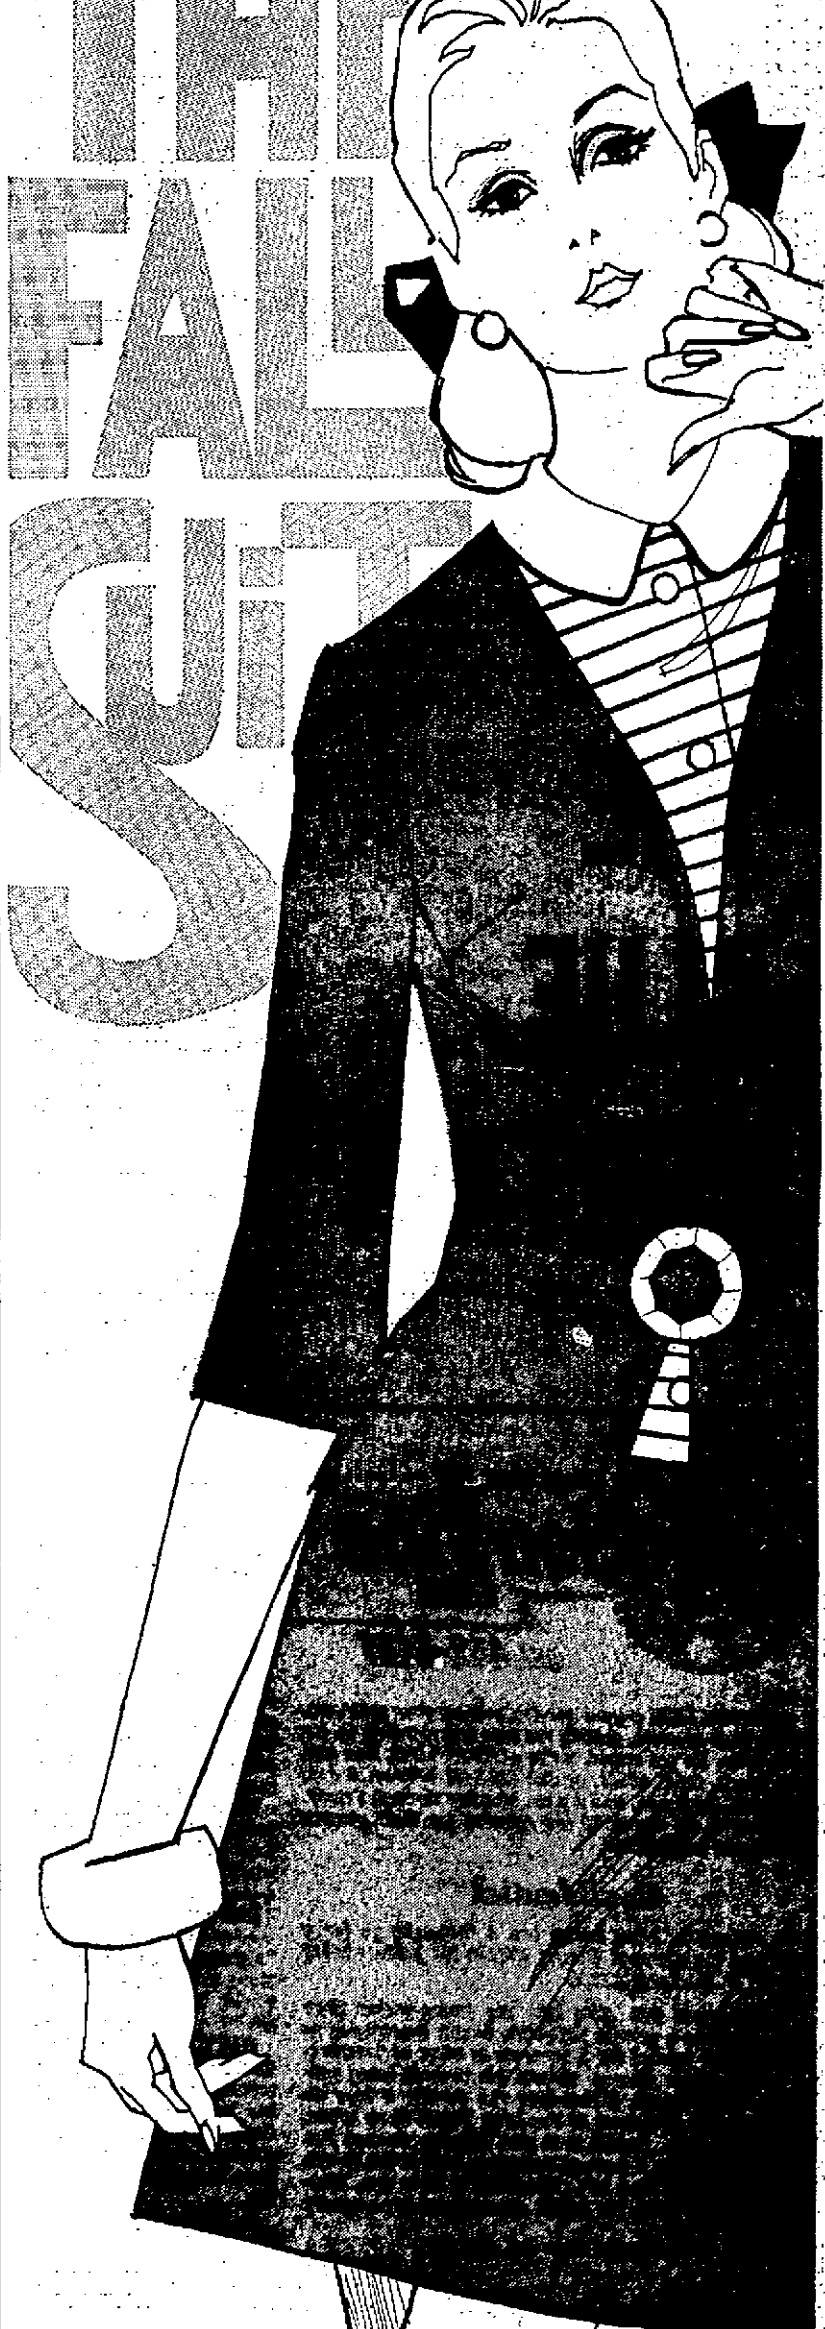

Cairo's leading newspaper, Al Ahran, printed a similar charge this morning, accusing the Israelis of lying to shift responsibility to others.

A general strike of mourning and protest was observed in Arab communities throughout Israeli-controlled areas.

The strike was generally peaceful except for an attempted demonstration that Israeli troops quickly dispersed in the town of Nabulus north of Jerusalem. However, two Arab children were killed and 15 others wounded by a grenade explosion in Rafa in the Gaza strip.

The arrest by the Israeli police of Michael Denis William Rohan, a 27-year-old Australian, on suspicion of arson at Al Aksah mosque appeared to lessen the tensions in the Jerusalem area, which had mounted dangerously Thursday and Friday.

Czech Radio Says Harsh Laws 'Right'

PRAGUE (U) — "Prague would have been burning tonight" if Gustav Husak's Communist regime had not crushed "counterrevolution" with military forces, the Czechoslovak radio proclaimed Saturday.

Government propaganda reached a new high to justify harsh emergency laws and the use of army tanks and tear gas in Prague and Brno Thursday and Friday to quell demonstrations marking the first anniversary of the 1968 Soviet-led Czechoslovakia. In Brno, invasion of Czechoslovakia's second largest city, an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew was in force for the second consecutive night.

"THE COUNTERREVOLUTION intended to do this year what it was stopped from doing by the Soviets last year," the broadcast said.

Press, radio, and television ignored Thursday's passive demonstration and mass boycott of Prague city transport by most citizens. Instead they focused attention on the "counter-revolutionary" activities of youthful nighttime rioters.

12.7-Million Value Set on Estate

SAN FRANCISCO (U) — Mrs. Helen Crocker Russell, daughter of the late banker William H. Crocker, left an estate valued at $12.7 million when she died in 1966, according to a final appraisal filed in probate court here Friday.

Provident Securities Co. stock made up $10.9 million of her estate. She also had $555,000 worth of paintings, a ranch in Carmel Valley and other property valued at $800,500.

Her will, written a year before her death, said the art work goes to her son, Charles, and a niece and nephew. After their deaths, the paintings will go to the San Francisco Museum of Art and the California Palace of the Legion of Honor.

Dead Taken From Plane Wreckage

DEL NORTE, Colo. (U) — Sheriff's officers and volunteers worked their way out of a remote canyon of the Rio Grande National Forest Saturday afternoon, bearing the remains of seven persons killed in the crash of a single-engine aircraft May 6.

The victims were identified as Philip Ciulla, 42, his 32-year-old wife, Patricia, their four children and Mrs. Ciulla's father-in-law, James Teevan, believed to be in his 60s. The Ciulla family was from Peterboro, N.Y., and Teevan was from Brooklyn.

The group was en route from Wichita, Kan., to Farmington, N.M., when the pilot radioed the Alamosa airport that the plane was icing up and losing altitude. He radioed that visibility was nearly zero, although he could "see mountains on all sides."

"We found only a few bones and some detached pieces of metal inside the remains of the plane," said Rio Grande county Coroner W. E. Sharpe, Monte Vista, Colo. "The plane burst with terrific heat. Most metal was melted, and only the tail section, with one letter and two numbers, remained," Sharpe said.

Hospital Fire

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Fire broke out early Saturday in a second floor laundry room in a service building at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

Six units of city firemen put out the flames in 10 minutes, and damage to contents, including linens, clothing and supplies, was set at $2,500. Structural damage was placed at $1,000.

No Wives-- Surprise at Kennedy Party

PHILADELPHIA (U) — One of the five girls at a party given by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy on Chapin Island the night of his auto accident has been quoted as saying she didn't know men would attend the affair without their wives.

Rosemary Janet Keough, 24, of Washington, D.C., is quoted by the Philadelphia Bulletin in a Sunday edition as saying she did not know in advance "the names or marital status of all the males who were invited."

The men at the party July 18 included three attorneys — Joseph Gargan, Paul Markham and Charles Treter. Also attending were Kennedy's driver, John Crimmins, and a family friend, Ray Larosa.

"I DID NOT know they were married and would not be accompanied by their wives," Miss Keough said. Her purse was found in Sen. Kennedy's car after the accident in which Mary Jo Kopechne was drowned on July 18 or 19.

Miss Keough, a former administrative assistant to Sen. Robert Kennedy, said, "All us girls who attended are eligible young women. I think every eligible young woman in America would be thrilled at an invitation to attend that party and would accept in a hurry."

MISS KEOUGH, daughter of a suburban Philadelphia contractor, said she would voluntarily testify at an inquest into the accident in which Miss Kopechne died. She said no one had asked that she not talk about the party.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis has scheduled an inquest Sept. 3 in Edgartown, Mass. A hearing will be held Monday in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on Dinis' petition for exhumation of Miss Kopechne's body and an autopsy.

Consumer Protection Bill Due

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Nixon Administration is drafting its first broad consumer-protection bill for submission to Congress early next month.

The bill is being prepared by the office of Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's special assistant for consumer affairs. She described the proposal Saturday in a speech in Denver.

THE MEASURE would allow "class action" suits in federal courts against manufacturers and merchants accused of engaging in unfair or deceptive trade practices. The suits could be filed by one or more consumers on behalf of a class, or group, of consumers with similar grievances against a company or individual.

For example, the owner of a new car who was unable to get a defective carburetor satisfactorily repaired by his automobile dealer could file a claim for the cost of such repairs at another shop.

If his claim was allowed in court, dissatisfied owners of other cars of the same make with the same defect would be eligible for payment of equal damages. The manufacturer would also have to pay reasonable lawyer's fees.

ORDINARILY, a number of aggrieved consumers would get together and retain a lawyer on a contingent-fee basis on behalf of themselves and others with similar complaints against the manufacturer.

Thus, the potential collection of damages without prohibitive legal costs, which is often impossible when a single claim is small under present laws, would be an incentive for consumers and lawyers to institute class action suits. At present, the potential award of damages and legal fees is too small to justify litigation by a single complainant.

ADVOCATES of the class-action approach also regard it as an effective deterrent to fraud and unfair or deceptive practices, since any merchant or manufacturer could be expected to take special pains to avoid such costly suits.

Federal courts require a claim of at least $10,000 before suit can be filed. The Supreme Court ruled in March that consumers could not pool their claims in order to meet the $10,000 minimum, thus making class-action suits practically impossible in federal courts.

The proposed legislation would have the effect of overturning this decision.

Peoples' Army Seen in Bucharest

BUCHAREST (UPI) — Five thousand members of the Romanian "peoples' militia" — the unit reactivated last year amid fears of a Soviet invasion — marched Saturday in Romania's liberation day parade before the eyes of a second-level delegation of Soviet representatives.

The volunteer militia corps apparently was included in the parade along with regular armed forces units to demonstrate the Romanians are prepared to use force to back up President Nicolae Ceausescu's independent course which has raised the ire of the Kremlin leadership.

The militia, including 400 women, marched smartly under a blistering sun, wearing khaki berets and armed with modern grenade launchers, snub-nosed tommy guns and even old bolt-action rifles.

The militia, by unofficial count, outnumbered the 3,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen in the parade. The regular forces demonstrated Soviet-built Romanian tanks, jet fighters, guided missiles and other weaponry.

at either clinic. Ron Lofstrom, Free Clinic administrator, told ACTION LINE that a blood test is used only in the determination of syphilis. A laboratory culture and smear are used to check for gonorrhea. He added that the clinic does not require young people who have a venereal disease to reveal their contacts, but encourages them to notify their contacts. Dr. I. D. Litwack, director of the Long Beach Health Department, said that venereal disease has reached epidemic proportions both in Long Beach and throughout the country. "In Long Beach, we have had 1,267 reported cases of gonorrhea from the first of the year to mid-August. In the past five years, the average for the same time period was 684 cases. Also, you have to figure that for every reported case, there are five unreported cases. We have got a real problem," he added.

The Last Word

Q. When dining in a restaurant, should a man do the ordering for a woman or should each of them order his own? G. S., Long Beach.

A. Chivalry is not dead in restaurant dining. The man should order the meal after asking the woman what she would like, according to "Emily Post's Etiquette," as revised by Elizabeth Post. The book also suggests that when the man knows the restaurant well or when foreign food is served, he suggest choices to the woman. If in doubt, he can ask the waiter to recommend one of the specialties of the house.

HELP WANTED

For 18 months, the Opportunities Center, has offered free job training to enable people to earn a decent living. Dedicated volunteers have taught trainees English, math, typing, filing and many trades. However, the center's funds are depleted and donations are needed to continue the program. Contributions should be sent to Percy Anderson, executive director, Opportunities Industrial Center, 1324 Alamosa Ave. O.O. Long Beach.

Poetic Request

Q. When I was in high school in Charleston, S.C., I won a few writing contests for my poetry. I had a wonderful teacher named Margaret Cartier who kept many of my writings. Can you help me contact her? I would like to show my early poems to my daughter. Mrs. S. B., Huntington Beach.

A. Even though it's been about ten years since you sat in her classroom, Miss Margaret Cartier—now retired—told ACTION LINE she may still have some of your poems. "I've kept many things from past years, particularly examples of creative writing," she said. "I use them as examples in class, or just read them myself." She remembers you well, and said she will search through her "boxes and files" for your high school poems. ACTION LINE will send you Miss Cartier's address.

Death Notice

Q. My brother died Aug. 5 in Kansas City, Mo. We have tried to find out if a local newspaper carried notice of his death, but are not sure where to write. Can you tell us? Mrs. D. L. D., Torrance.

A. You can write to the customer service office of the Kansas City Star Times, 1729 Grand St., Kansas City, Mo., 64108, for a copy of the Aug. 6 newspaper containing your brother's obituary. Enclose 25 cents to cover postage and the price of the paper. The Main Kansas City Library, 805 Grand St., can supply you with a photostatic copy of the obituary if you send 25 cents to the periodical department.

Flipper Slippers

Q. would love to go swimming with my husband and children, but I'm ashamed of my feet. I've had extensive surgery on them, and they are badly scarred and sensitive. Where can I find some rubber flip-flops? E.S. Lakewood.

A. Divers' Corner, 11200 S. Old River School Road, Downey, carries black slippers or booties made from neoprene foam rubber. The slippers come in different styles, some covering about two inches above the ankle while others cover about nine inches. The prices range between $6 and $8. In Long Beach, Keny's Sporting Goods, 635 Pine Ave., can special order a similar product known as a flipper slipper for $6.75.

Flowers for Milady

Q. In May, my mother ordered china flowers from World Art Flowers in Westport, Conn. Her check for $15.25 was cashed, but she has not received the flowers. Mrs. D. K., Long Beach.

A. ACTION LINE talked with Constance Dunne, customer relations manager for the company located at 2 First St. in Norwalk, Conn. She explained that if your mother ordered the mixed bouquet, it will be sent to her immediately. If she ordered the roses, it will take a few more weeks until the company gets in a new shipment. Miss Dunne promised to contact your mother by mail.

in Sen. Kennedy's car after the accident in which Mary Jo Kopechne was drowned on July 18 or 19.

Miss Keough, a former administrative assistant to Sen. Robert Kennedy, said, "All us girls who attended are eligible young women. I think every eligible young woman in America would be thrilled at an invitation to attend that party and would accept in a hurry."

MISS KEOUGH, daughter of a suburban Philadelphia contractor, said she would voluntarily testify at an inquest into the accident in which Miss Kopechne died. She said no one had asked that she not talk about the party.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis has scheduled an inquest Sept. 3 in Edgartown, Mass. A hearing will be held Monday in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on Dinis' petition for exhumation of Miss Kopechne's body and an autopsy.

Consumer Protection Bill Due

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Nixon Administration is drafting its first broad consumer-protection bill for submission to Congress early next month.

The bill is being prepared by the office of Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's special assistant for consumer affairs. She described the proposal Saturday in a speech in Denver.

THE MEASURE would allow "class action" suits in federal courts against manufacturers and merchants accused of engaging in unfair or deceptive trade practices. The suits could be filed by one or more consumers on behalf of a class, or group, of consumers with similar grievances against a company or individual.

For example, the owner of a new car who was unable to get a defective carburetor satisfactorily repaired by his automobile dealer could file a claim for the cost of such repairs at another shop.

If his claim was allowed in court, dissatisfied owners of other cars of the same make with the same defect would be eligible for payment of equal damages. The manufacturer would also have to pay reasonable lawyer's fees.

ORDINARILY, a number of aggrieved consumers would get together and retain a lawyer on a contingent-fee basis on behalf of themselves and others with similar complaints against the manufacturer.

Thus, the potential collection of damages without prohibitive legal costs, which is often impossible when a single claim is small under present laws, would be an incentive for consumers and lawyers to institute class action suits. At present, the potential award of damages and legal fees is too small to justify litigation by a single complainant.

ADVOCATES of the class-action approach also regard it as an effective deterrent to fraud and unfair or deceptive practices, since any merchant or manufacturer could be expected to take special pains to avoid such costly suits.

Federal courts require a claim of at least $10,000 before suit can be filed. The Supreme Court ruled in March that consumers could not pool their claims in order to meet the $10,000 minimum, thus making class-action suits practically impossible in federal courts.

The proposed legislation would have the effect of overturning this decision.

Peoples' Army Seen in Bucharest

BUCHAREST (UPI) — Five thousand members of the Romanian "peoples' militia" — the unit reactivated last year amid fears of a Soviet invasion — marched Saturday in Romania's liberation day parade before the eyes of a second-level delegation of Soviet representatives.

The volunteer militia corps apparently was included in the parade along with regular armed forces units to demonstrate the Romanians are prepared to use force to back up President Nicolae Ceausescu's independent course which has raised the ire of the Kremlin leadership.

The militia, by unofficial count, outnumbered the 3,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen in the parade. The regular forces demonstrated Soviet-built Romanian tanks, jet fighters, guided missiles and other weaponry.

at either clinic. Ron Lofstrom, Free Clinic administrator, told ACTION LINE that a blood test is used only in the determination of syphilis. A laboratory culture and smear are used to check for gonorrhea. He added that the clinic does not require young people who have a venereal disease to reveal their contacts, but encourages them to notify their contacts. Dr. I. D. Litwack, director of the Long Beach Health Department, said that venereal disease has reached epidemic proportions both in Long Beach and throughout the country. "In Long Beach, we have had 1,267 reported cases of gonorrhea from the first of the year to mid-August. In the past five years, the average for the same time period was 684 cases. Also, you have to figure that for every reported case, there are five unreported cases. We have got a real problem," he added.

The Last Word

Q. When dining in a restaurant, should a man do the ordering for a woman or should each of them order his own? G. S., Long Beach.

A. Chivalry is not dead in restaurant dining. The man should order the meal after asking the woman what she would like, according to "Emily Post's Etiquette," as revised by Elizabeth Post. The book also suggests that when the man knows the restaurant well or when foreign food is served, he suggest choices to the woman. If in doubt, he can ask the waiter to recommend one of the specialties of the house.

HELP WANTED

For 18 months, the Opportunities Center, has offered free job training to enable people to earn a decent living. Dedicated volunteers have taught trainees English, math, typing, filing and many trades. However, the center's funds are depleted and donations are needed to continue the program. Contributions should be sent to Percy Anderson, executive director, Opportunities Industrial Center, 1324 Alamitos Ave. O.O. Long Beach.

Poetic Request

Q. When I was in high school in Charleston, S.C., I won a few writing contests for my poetry. I had a wonderful teacher named Margaret Cartier who kept many of my writings. Can you help me contact her? I would like to show my early poems to my daughter. Mrs. S. B., Huntington Beach.

A. Even though it's been about ten years since you sat in her classroom, Miss Margaret Cartier—now retired—told ACTION LINE she may still have some of your poems. "I've kept many things from past years, particularly examples of creative writing," she said. "I use them as examples in class, or just read them myself." She remembers you well, and said she will search through her "boxes and files" for your high school poems. ACTION LINE will send you Miss Cartier's address.

Death Notice

Q. My brother died Aug. 5 in Kansas City, Mo. We have tried to find out if a local newspaper carried notice of his death, but are not sure where to write. Can you tell us? Mrs. D. L. D., Torrance.

A. You can write to the customer service office of the Kansas City Star Times, 1729 Grand St., Kansas City, Mo., 64108, for a copy of the Aug. 6 newspaper containing your brother's obituary. Enclose 25 cents to cover postage and the price of the paper. The Main Kansas City Library, 805 Grand St., can supply you with a photostatic copy of the obituary if you send 25 cents to the periodical department.

Flipper Slippers

Q. would love to go swimming with my husband and children, but I'm ashamed of my feet. I've had extensive surgery on them, and they are badly scarred and sensitive. Where can I find some rubber footlets? E.S. Lakewood.

A. Divers' Corner, 11200 S. Old River School Road, Downey, carries black slippers or booties made from neoprene foam rubber. The slippers come in different styles, some covering about two inches above the ankle while others cover about nine inches. The prices range between $6 and $8. In Long Beach, Kenny's Sporting Goods, 635 Pine Ave., can special order a similar product known as a flipper slipper for $6.75.

Flowers for Milady

Q. In May, my mother ordered china flowers from World Art Flowers in Westport, Conn. Her check for $15.25 was cashed, but she has not received the flowers. Mrs. D. K., Long Beach.

A. ACTION LINE talked with Constance Dunne, customer relations manager for the company located at 2 First St. in Norwalk, Conn. She explained that if your mother ordered the mixed bouquet, it will be sent to her immediately. If she ordered the roses, it will take a few more weeks until the company gets in a new shipment. Miss Dunne promised to contact your mother by mail.

alongside the Cleveland blaze over 15,000 acres in the Fallbrook-Temecula area. Firefighters feared the two might join. The flames threatened 25 homes in the Rainbow Valley area. Firefighters said they saved 66 homes by wetting down roofs.

A THIRD FIRE, near Escondido about 90 miles south of Los Angeles, charred 6,000 acres and blackened the walls of several $50,000 homes. Two women were treated for minor burns in a 90-acre blaze near El Cajon, east of San Diego. The fire burned six houses.

Fire fighters were aided by 15 airplanes dropping water, several helicopters, and more than 200 pumper trucks and bulldozers.

They were hampered by the wind, blistering temperatures, and humidity that sagged to 10 per cent.

This was an objective listed by former Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford in a magazine article June 18.

Nixon said at a news conference the next day he hoped to do better than that.

The presidential decision will still be based on three factors Nixon had named earlier:

1. The ability of the South Vietnamese to assume a greater share of military activity. Answering a question, Ziegler said that Nixon is satisfied with the progress of the South Vietnamese in becoming more capable of self defense and feels they are continuing to improve in this area.

2. Progress of the Paris peace discussions between the opposing sides. Ziegler declined to say whether the President is disappointed with the rate of progress — if any.

3. The level of enemy activity. There was no projection at this point of what the United States can expect pending the appraisals Nixon now has ordered.

The President's decision on a postponement of his decision on troop levels became final Friday, Ziegler said.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. negotiator at Paris, conferred with the President for more than an hour Friday, with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and the President's top adviser on national security Henry A. Kissinger sitting in.

THE CONFERENCE came on a flight back to the San Clemente White House from San Francisco at the conclusion of a summit talk with South Korean President Chung Hee Park.

LOS ANGELES — A settlement may be reached soon in a 36-day strike by 23,000 heavy equipment engineers, say union and management spokesmen.

"Negotiations have been going on almost continuously," I. E. Brown, Los Angeles district manager for the Associated General Contractors, said Friday. "We plan to continue them and are optimistic about a settlement."

A union spokesman, also optimistic about a settlement, said an important issue yet to be settled is a plan by construction companies to purchase strike insurance.

The union spokesman said such insurance would discourage management from settling disputes with the union. Meanwhile, the AFL-CIO Operating Engineers have extended picketing to almost all construction projects in Southern California.

To a question whether there were indications of rising infiltration from North Vietnam and whether this had a bearing on Saturday's announcement of the postponement of the presidential decision on troop reductions, Ziegler replied:

"We have been watching this rate of infiltration on a regular basis and it is down from its high point. But we want to watch it and we want to consider it to make sure that any conclusions regarding infiltration into South Vietnam have been fully assessed."

Search for Bodies Under Storm Debris

Ft. Rucker, Ala., said he first saw "animals, pigs and cows" in the debris.

"WE MADE several passes and as we got close enough we recognized human bodies. I counted about 40 bodies myself," Diggs said.

"Lord knows how many there were under the debris. If I hadn't seen it myself, I wouldn't have believed it. It was a nightmare."

Diggs said he made another pass over the area later and found that the tide had drawn the mass out to sea.

"We've already pulled some bodies out of the water and there's no telling how many more have been swept out to sea," said State Sen. Nap Cassibry, area Civil Defense coordinator.

Cassibry, who said Friday the toll could rise to 315 dead in Mississippi, also said it was believed that "more bodies are buried in the beach sand. Buried deep where they'll probably never be found."

A DELEGATION from the House Public Works subcommittee made a ground and aerial survey of the Mississippi Gulf Coast to lay the foundation for determining what further federal aid may be provided for the stricken area.

The flooded sections of Virginia officially were declared a disaster area Saturday by President Nixon, who made available $1 million in federal help for repair and restoration of public facilities. A spokesman for Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr., who had asked the designation, said the $1 million was expected to be "an initial allocation."

Volunteers and disaster relief agencies, pumped aid into communities upstream until Saturday — the most along the James where — energetic efforts were aimed at finding the bodies of those reported missing.

CIVIL DEFENSE coordinators said many of the bodies never would be found. Most of them had been in areas of west-central Virginia where whole communities were swept away early Wednesday by bloated streams.

Hardest hit in terms of loss of life was Nelson County, with a population of about 14,000 where 44 are known dead. In one of the county's communities, Davis Creek, 17 are known dead and 46 are missing from among a former population of 75.

Moon Real Estate License Rejected

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — James B. Mahler, a 75-year-old realtor, has been turned down in his request to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for a license to sell land on the moon.

Mahler wrote the Space Agency last month, saying "I desire to be the first real estate broker licensed to practice on the moon."

Mahler noted he had been a World War I Pilot in France, an experience which might come in handy on the moon in case it is populated by strange people, "especially women."

"The liberal education I acquired from French girls during the war and the valuable experience I gained, should enable me to cope with any situation with which I may be confronted," he told NASA.

Age of 75, the U.S.A. can well afford my loss should I fail to return."

In its reply, NASA said Mahler's request had to be rejected because of a 1967 treaty with 89 nations which said outer space and other planets are "not subject to national appropriation by claims of sovereignty, by means of use or occupation, or by any other means."

However, E. M. Shafer, associate general counsel for NASA, added:

"I cannot close without offering the comment that if, at the age of 75, you are still sustained by thoughts of the experience you acquired from French girls during World War I, the U.S.A. cannot really afford your loss. Best wishes."

$285,000 to Family

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mrs. Levenna McArthur and her six children have been awarded $285,000 from the Standard Oil Co. for the drowning death of her husband, Leroy, 57, a ship's carpenter who was thrown from a Standard Oil vessel at a pier at Richmond. A six-man, six-woman jury made the award in Superior Court.

Two Americans were killed and 99 wounded when the hospital 195 miles northeast of Saigon was struck Aug. 7 by enemy sappers.

The battle for Hill 102 had lasted three days. Four companies of the U.S. American Division occupied it at nightfall Saturday against light resistance after suffering a half dozen wounded. It was the first day since the battle began that the Americans suffered no combat deaths.

$285,000 to Family

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mrs. Levenna McArthur and her six children have been awarded $285,000 from the Standard Oil Co. for the drowning death of her husband, Leroy, 57, a ship's carpenter who was thrown from a Standard Oil vessel at a pier at Richmond. A six-man, six-woman jury made the award in Superior Court.

Volunteers and disaster relief agencies, pumped aid into communities upstream until Saturday — the most along the James where energetic efforts were aimed at finding the bodies of those reported missing.

CIVIL DEFENSE: Coordinators said many of the bodies never would be found. Most of them had been in areas of west-central Virginia where whole communities were swept away early Wednesday by bloated streams.

Hardest hit in terms of loss of life was Nelson County, with a population of about 14,000 where 44 are known dead. In one of the county's communities, Davis Creek, 17 are known dead and 46 are missing from among a former population of 75.

Catalina Needs STOLport to Prosper, Official Says

By BILL MAYER
From Our L.A. Bureau

There is talk in county government about winged magic that will swiftly transform Catalina Island into the biggest resort attraction in the West.

The key, officials say, is an airport — a flying field with a mini landing strip.

They would build it within a mile of Avalon, and they believe that a $100,000 investment of county money would bring in $1.5 million a year in taxes.

County Engineer John Lambie, who wrote a 50-page booklet of data on the subject, will ask the Board of Supervisors Tuesday to approve the project.

HIS OFFICE was confident that approval is only a formality. The supervisors ordered a study June 3 on the feasibility of building a STOL port — that is, a "short takeoff and landing" airport — at Pebbly Beach. Supervisor Burton Chace indicated then he thought the proposal looked good.

Now everybody else seems to be for it — the Avalon City Council, the county Aviation Commission, the island's businessmen and many others.

And Lambie. There are only slightly more than 1,700 people living in Avalon now. Lambie's research suggests a future population of 8,000 in the city and 12,000 at the Isthmus.

"The number of tourists," he writes "is expected to increase from the 1968 level of 210,000 to almost 750,000 by 1990."

BUT ALL THAT depends on whether the STOL port is built.

"Improved transportation is the key to the development of the island's 48,438 acres of lands," says Lambie.

It can be reached now by sea and air, but the travel is slow and sometimes difficult. The flying service, provided by Grumman Goose seaplanes, can't land at Avalon when the water is too rough, and the number of passengers is limited.

Also, the aircraft were manufactured 27 years ago, and nobody is building them now. When these wear out, apparently there will be no way of replacing them.

There are other disadvantages.

"The existing hill-top airport was constructed in 1946," Lambie reports. "It was opened to private aircraft in 1959. . . . Commercial flights . . . have never proved to be economically feasible. Clouds frequently hover the hill site, making the 'Airport in the Sky' unusable, and the 40-minute drive by bus to Avalon is a further disadvantage."

TRAVELERS can get to Catalina, of course, by water, but there are disadvantages that way, too. Lambie thinks the 27-mile sea trip from Wilmington will be an attraction for a long time, but it's too slow for commuters and others who may be in a hurry.

"The report," he says, "finds that the STOL port promises a pre-eminently practical and inexpensive solution to present transportation problems restricting travel between Catalina Island and the mainland."

He cites the de Havilland Twin Otter as the kind of aircraft that could use a field of that kind. It is being used now by local commuter airlines.

"Operating from strips as short as 1,000 feet," the report states, "this airplane can carry passengers in airline comfort from coastal and inland cities to the proposed STOL port."

Lambie estimates it would cost $3,376,000 to build the field. But 97 per cent of the funding would come from sources other than the county. The federal government would pay for more than half. The Santa Catalina Company will donate the land, appraised at $1,485,000.

MOST OF THE county's $100,000 would go for engineering and inspection costs.

And the STOL port would make money. Lambie says it would lose $17,500 the first two years, and from then on show a rising profit.

Torrance Man Slain Near Huron

A 28-year-old Torrance man was shot to death and another seriously wounded early Saturday after an argument on a rural road south of the Fresno County town of Huron.

Sheriff's deputies identified the dead man as Philip Martinez, visiting relatives in Huron. They said they had been unable to verify Martinez' address or occupation in Torrance.

Another man, Gaspar Hernandez, 25, of Huron, was in serious condition at County General Hospital in Fresno with a chest wound. Deputies booked Pasqual Lopez, 24, also of Huron, on suspicion of murder. Lopez, a farm laborer, walked to a Huron service station after the shooting.

U.S. Talks to Havana on Hijacking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has been quietly conferring with Cuba as part of its international effort to combat airliner hijackings, State Department officials disclosed Saturday.

The indirect overtures to the Havana government, with which Washington has had no diplomatic relations since January, 1961, were reported to have met with limited success so far, but the United States is persisting.

One measure would be mandatory return of hijackers to the country of origin, overriding any claim to the right of political asylum.

Colombia Airliner Hijacked

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A Colombian Avianca airliner with 30 persons aboard was hijacked by two passengers brandishing revolvers Saturday and forced to fly to Cuba.

The plane, an Avro 748 twin engine turboprop, landed at Barranquilla on the Colombia coast to refuel before heading across the Caribbean Sea to Santiago on Cuba's eastern-most tip.

(Officials in Havana reported the plane landed at mid-day in Santiago after being hijacked by two persons armed with three revolvers. The four-man crew and the passengers were lodged in Santiago hotels until arrangements are made for the release of the plane.

The plane was hijacked during a regularly scheduled flight from Bucaramanga to Bogota, the Colombian capital.

Blue Curtain Comes Down in Tate Massacre Case; Facts Remain Secret

Aug. 8-9 in the plush Benedict Canyon estate in which the blonde sex symbol and her film director husband, Roman Polanski, lived.

"Out main object is to get the case solved," one official remarked. "Getting pat's on the back or making people happy is way down on the list of priorities."

Too much already has been given out about the crime, they feel. Enough to hamper their investigation.

The men in blue two lieutenants and 17 sergeants specifically assigned to the case have been warned not to discuss the details with "outsiders." Underlings—even those on routine patrol—have been given the same instructions.

POLICE REPORTERS were banned from squad rooms and detective offices after one overheard—and printed—the fact that the investigation was centering in Canada.

Los Angeles County Coroner Dr. Thomas Noguchi, a usually reliable source for reporters, refuses to discuss the case, but refers reporters to an aide of the County Supervisors.

The aide, former newsman Robert Baker, can only say that all information must come from the police department.

The murder scene—the $200,000 secluded estate in which the slain actress prepared for her baby's arrival in two weeks—is out of bounds to newsmen. Despite Polanski's invitation at a press conference to "see for yourselves the orgy scene," newsmen were turned back by a guard—hired by the film director.

Other than the facts learned the day the murders were discovered by a maid as she entered the home ready for a day's work, all is speculation.

INITIAL facts released by police—before the news blackout—although somewhat skimpy are believed accurate:

Miss Tate, eight and a half months pregnant with what would have been a baby boy, was found in the living room of the home linked by a rope around her neck to the body of her former boyfriend, hair stylist Jay Sebring. She was killed by multiple stab wounds of the chest and back. She wore bikini pants and a brassiere.

Thirty-five year old Sebring, fully clothed, died from stab wounds in the body. The rope linking his neck with that of the blonde actress did not contribute to the cause of death.

Coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, died from stab wounds in the chest. Her body dressed in a nightgown, was found on the lawn.

Voityek Frokowsky, a 37-year-old Polish would-be writer and director and boyfriend of the Folger heiress, died of stab wounds of the body and extremities and of a gunshot wound in the back. His body, also fully clothed, was found on the front lawn of the ranch-style home about 20 yards from Miss Folger's body.

Steve Parent, an 18-year-old El Monte youth and friend of the estate caretaker, William Garretson, was found in his car, dead of multiple gunshot wounds of the chest.

Parent, visiting the caretaker at a guest house behind the main house, had left for home about midnight. Police theorize he was apparently trying to get away after seeing the actual murders or the bodies, but was killed before he could escape. The car's ignition was off as were the brakes. The transmission was in 'drive'.

TELEPHONE lines into the home were cut between 10 p.m., when the phone into the estate was last used, and 5:30 a.m., when the caretaker attempted to place a call out and found the lines dead.

Police were quoted as saying the murders were "ritualistic" and cited the fact that a black hood had been placed over Sebring's head. Blood had been splattered throughout the living room, on the porch and in a guest room. "Pig" in foot high letters were scrawled on the front door, apparently, police said, with the palm of a hand.

"It looked like a battlefield up there," one officer said as he came from the guest room. The struggle apparently went on throughout at least the two rooms.

Although no weapon was found at the scene, officers said they found pieces of what was believed to be a pistol grip inside the house.

Initially officers said no narcotics were found in the house, but it is believed some ("enough for an individual's use or a small party") were found in Sebring's auto. Police later confirmed narcotics were found "on the premises."

NOTHING was missing from the home; officers ruled out robbery as a motive.

They termed the killings "motiveless."

Only one release has been issued by detectives since the killings—and that on orders of the new police chief—which said little.

—None of the bodies had wounds involving the sex organs.

—Narcotics were found on the premises.

—The word "pig" written in blood was found on the premises.

—There is no evidence to connect the murders with any others.

"We have," the official release informed, "no further details of the investigation to release at this time."

The only reason for the release, they added, was "in the interest of accuracy."

With at least three times as many newsmen as detectives "digging" for information, police problems are compounded.

Reasons for the silence, police contend, are many:

—The law warns against releasing evidence which perhaps could prevent a fair trial.

—Information about the crime or investigation could "tip" the criminal.

—Information not publicly known is vital to questioning on a polygraph (lie detector).

But to the scores of reporters covering the case, who accept all the police reasons, two things are added: the public's "right to know," and facts to still the rumor mills.

And the rumor mills are busy.

Theories, written as fact, link several of the victims with a dope syndicate.

The Mafia has been mentioned.

A killing by "contract" was a popular premise for a time.

A DOPE PARTY in which an LSD user became a maniacal killer was a theory.

Toxicological tests which would determine what, if any, narcotic was being used at the house were concluded this week. The tests would even determine what, if anything, the five victims ate during the evening.

But the results aren't being made known.

Perhaps, say police, only the killer would know what was eaten because he ate with them.

For whoever the killer is, he was a friend enough to find and cut telephone wires in the dark.

Antisex Exploiting Laid to Right-Wing Extremists

DETROIT (AP)—The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith charged Saturday that a dispute over sex education in public schools is being used as "a rallying point" and "recruiting device" by what it termed right-wing extremists.

A 37-page report, compiled by the organization's Michigan regional office, concluded that "organized antisex education groups with definite extreme right-wing aspects have appeared all over the state."

Richard L. Benenthal, league regional director, said the John Birch Society is leading the campaign of opposition.

Benenthal said the report takes no stand on the merits of sex education and "is concerned only with the radical right exploitation of the issue."

Aug. 8-9 in the plush Benedict Canyon estate in which the blonde sex symbol and her film director husband, Roman Polansky, lived.

"Our main object is to get the case solved," one official remarked. "Getting past the back or making people happy is way down on the list of priorities."

Too much already has been given out about the crime, they feel. Enough to hamper their investigation.

The men in blue two lieutenants and 17 sergeants specifically assigned to the case have been warned not to discuss the details with "outsiders." Underlings—even those on routine patrol—have been given the same instructions.

POLICE REPORTERS were banned from squad rooms and detective offices after one overheard—and printed—the fact that the investigation was centering in Canada.

Los Angeles County Coroner Dr. Thomas Noguchi, a usually reliable source for reporters, refuses to discuss the case, but refers reporters to an aide of the County Supervisors.

The aide, former newsman Robert Baker, can only say that all information must come from the police department.

The murder scene—the $200,000 secluded estate in which the slain actress prepared for her baby's arrival in two weeks—is out of bounds to newsmen. Despite Polansky's invitation at a press conference to "see for yourselves the orgy scene," newsmen were turned back by a guard—hired by the film director.

Other than the facts learned the day the murders were discovered by a maid as she entered the home ready for a day's work, all is speculation.

INITIAL facts released by police—before the news blackout—although somewhat skimpy are believed accurate:

Miss Tate, eight and a half months pregnant with what would have been a baby boy, was found in the living room of the home linked by a rope around her neck to the body of her former boyfriend, hair stylist Jay Sebring. She was killed by multiple stab wounds of the chest and back. She wore bikini pants and a brassiere.

Thirty-five year old Sebring, fully clothed, died from stab wounds in the body. The rope linking his neck with that of the blonde actress did not contribute to the cause of death.

Coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, died from stab wounds in the chest. Her body dressed in a nightgown, was found on the lawn.

Voityck Frokowsky, a 37-year-old Polish would-be writer and director and boyfriend of the Folger heiress, died of stab wounds of the body and extremities and of a gunshot wound in the back. His body, also fully clothed, was found on the front lawn of the ranch-style home about 20 yards from Miss Folger's body.

Steve Parent, an 18-year-old El Monte youth and friend of the estate caretaker, William Garretson, was found in his car, dead of multiple gunshot wounds of the chest.

Parent, visiting the caretaker at a guest house behind the main house, had left for home about midnight. Police theorize he was apparently trying to get away after seeing the actual murders or the bodies, but was killed before he could escape. The car's ignition was off as were the brakes. The transmission was in 'drive'.

TELEPHONE lines into the home were cut between 10 p.m., when the phone into the estate was last used, and 5:30 a.m., when the caretaker attempted to place a call out and found the lines dead.

Police were quoted as saying the murders were "ritualistic" and cited the fact that a black hood had been placed over Sebring's head. Blood had been splattered throughout the living room, on the porch and in a guest room. "Pig" in foot high letters were scrawled on the front door, apparently, police said, with the palm of a hand.

High Court Nominee Under Fire

Haynsworth Ruling
May Have Helped
His Own Firm

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Supreme Court nominee Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., said Saturday he did own stock in a vending machine company when he ruled in favor of a textile firm that did business with the vending company.

But Haynsworth added he thought the action was "entirely proper. I wouldn't have done it if I thought otherwise. The judges in my court thought it was proper and Robert Kennedy thought so." Kennedy was attorney general at the time.

Haynsworth made the statements after the Chicago Daily News said that President Nixon's nominee owned 18 shares of Carolina Vend-A-Matic while he participated in a controversial labor law decision. Last week, Haynsworth declined to comment on whether he owned the stock during the court proceedings.

Carolina Vend-A-Matic operated vending machines in a number of textile plants, including some owned by Deering Milliken Co.

ON NOV. 15, 1963 Haynsworth, as a member of the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals, voted with the majority on a 3-2 decision that cleared Darlington Manufacturing Co. of unfair labor charges.

The National Labor Relations Board had charged the company, a subsidiary

HOME AFTER 18 YEARS

Army Sgt. Phillip LaLonde is buried in Detroit—18 years after being reported missing in action in Korea. His body was found in a ravine near Kwandara-Ri, South Korea. His father, Rosaire LaLonde, left, lifts his eyeglasses to wipe away a tear. His waiting, his anxiety for his missing son, is over.

of Deering Milliken and Co., closed a plant in Darlington, S.C., to avoid negotiations with a union.

After the decision, the Textile Workers Union leveled conflict of interest charges at Haynsworth, who had been an officer in the vending machine company. Haynsworth denied being an officer at the time of the ruling and a Justice Department investigation cleared him of the charges.

The News, in a story from its Washington bureau by William J. Eaton, said: "Records on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission show that Haynsworth swapped 18 shares of Carolina Vend-A-Matic Co., a one-seventh interest, for 14,173 shares of Automatic Retailers of America stock on April 8, 1964. Closing price of ARA stock was $32.25 on that day." That would have put the stock's value at $457,000.

HAYNSWORTH said his ARA stock was sold immediately for "under the market price," and he received less than $450,000 for it. He said brokers had handled the transaction, and he could not recall how much he got for the shares.

Airs GOP Strategy Dangers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader of the Republican National Committee says pursuing a Southern strategy would be foolish for the GOP because if George C. Wallace runs in 1972 President Nixon may need strength in the Northwest to win re-election.

But the author of the book which predicts the emergency of a majority Republican party based in the South, Midwest and Far West says he doubts Wallace could do as well in 1972 as he did in 1968 when he captured nearly 10 million popular votes and the electoral votes of five deep south states.

"I can't conceive of a situation in which he does better than last year if you have a successful Nixon administration," Kevin P. Phillips said in an interview — adding, "if it's not successful, you have other problems."

Phillips, an assistant to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, wrote "The Emerging Republican Majority," which views the Wallace campaign as a passing stage in the evolution of the South from solidly Democratic to predominantly Republican and concludes:

"The upcoming cycle of American politics is likely to match a dominant Republican party based in the Heartland, South and California against a minority Democratic party based in the Northeast and the Pacific Northwest."

From this book and from various Nixon actions, some political observers have concluded that the Republicans are shaping a Southern strategy which includes the virtual conceding of the Northeast to the Democrats.

But Jim Allison Jr., deputy national chairman, insists that both the adminis-

ADA Labels Nixon Team 'Sluggish and Reactionary'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans for Democratic Action said Saturday "the Nixon Administration has set a sluggish pace legislatively and a reactionary one administratively."

It credited the Senate with a progressive record highlighted by "a continuing and intensive focus on military-defense matters."

In releasing its analysis of the first seven months of the congressional session, the liberal organization criticized "lethargic House Democratic leadership" but praised the work of the Democratic Study Group on tax reform, high interest rates and education aid. This is a loosely knit organization of about 125 Democratic House members who generally support liberal causes.

THEY HAVE succeeded in coordinating liberal lead-

Train Derails in North Carolina

MEBANE, N.C. (AP) — The last six cars of Southern Railway's passenger train No. 29, en route from New York to Atlanta, derailed Saturday at Mebane.

There were no injuries, a Southern spokesman in Greensboro said, to the approximately 450 passengers on the 17-car train. Those on the derailed cars were taken by bus to Greensboro while those on the forward cars remained on the train.

tration and the Republican National Committee are pursuing a national strategy and that it intends to treat all sections equally.

crship and coalescing the support of liberal causes in the House," the analysis said.

It criticized the Administration's position on voting rights, electoral reform, civil rights enforcement and preventive detention, saying "all go to form a governmental mosaic consisting of a philosophical commitment and ideological conviction that extends the 'Southern strategy' utilized in the 1968 Nixon campaign to a condition of political permanence."

tion has displayed an expert agility in protecting and building its own political base while lacking the will to propose adequate solutions to national problems," it said.

"With the exception of the surtax proposal and the ABM deployment," the ADA said, "the Administration has not fought a legislative battle for its own programs and is all but invisible when funds are being considered."

"This may be good public relations, but it is bad leadership," it added.

High Court Nominee Under Fire

Haynsworth Ruling
May Have Helped
His Own Firm

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Supreme Court nominee Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., said Saturday he did own stock in a vending machine company when he ruled in favor of a textile firm that did business with the vending company.

But Haynsworth added he thought the action was "entirely proper. I wouldn't have done it if I thought otherwise. The judges in my court thought it was proper and Robert Kennedy thought so." Kennedy was attorney general at the time.

Haynsworth made the statements after the Chicago Daily News said that President Nixon's nominee owned 10 shares of Carolina Vend-A-Matic while he participated in a controversial labor law decision. Last week, Haynsworth declined to comment on whether he owned the stock during the court proceedings.

Carolina Vend-A-Matic operated vending machines in a number of textile plants, including some owned by Deering Milliken Co.

ON NOV. 15, 1963 Haynsworth, as a member of the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals, voted with the majority on a 3-2 decision that cleared Darlington Manufacturing Co. of unfair labor charges.

HOME AFTER 18 YEARS

Army Sgt. Phillip LaLonde is buried in Detroit—18 years after being reported missing in action in Korea. His body was found in a ravine near Kwandara-Ri, South Korea. His father, Rosaire LaLonde, left, lifts his eyeglasses to wipe away a tear. His waiting, his anxiety for his missing son, is over.

of Deering Milliken and Co., closed a plant in Darlington, S.C., to avoid negotiations with a union.

After the decision, the Textile Workers Union leveled conflict of interest charges at Haynsworth, who had been an officer in the vending machine company. Haynsworth denied being an officer at the time of the ruling and a Justice Department investigation cleared him of the charges. The News, in a story from its Washington bureau by William J. Eaton, said: "Records on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission show that Haynsworth swapped 18 shares of Carolina Vend-A-Matic Co., a one-seventh interest, for 14,173 shares of Automatic Retailers of America stock on April 8, 1964. Closing price of ARA stock was $32.25 on that day." That would have put the stock's value at $457,000.

HAYNSWORTH said his ARA stock was sold immediately for "under the market price," and he received less than $450,000 for it. He said brokers had handled the transaction, and he could not recall how much he got for the shares.

From this book and from various Nixon actions, some political observers have concluded that the Republicans are shaping a Southern strategy which includes the virtual conceding of the Northeast to the Democrats.

Airs GOP Strategy Dangers

WASHINGTON — A leader of the Republican National Committee says pursuing a Southern strategy would be foolish for the GOP because if George C. Wallace runs in 1972 President Nixon may need strength in the Northwest to win re-election.

But the author of the book which predicts the emergency of a majority Republican party based in the South, Midwest and Far West says he doubts Wallace could do as well in 1972 as he did in 1968 when he captured nearly 10 million popular votes and the electoral votes of five deep south states.

"I can't conceive of a situation in which he does better than last year if you have a successful Nixon administration," Kevin P. Phillips said in an interview — adding, "if it's not successful, you have other problems."

Phillips, an assistant to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, wrote "The Emerging Republican Majority," which views the Wallace campaign as a passing stage in the evolution of the South from solidly Democratic to predominantly Republican and concludes:

"The upcoming cycle of American politics is likely to match a dominant Republican party based in the Heartland, South and California against a minority Democratic party based in the Northeast and the Pacific Northwest."

But Jim Allison Jr., deputy national chairman, insists that both the adminis-

ADA Labels Nixon Team 'Sluggish and Reactionary'

WASHINGTON — Americans for Democratic Action said Saturday "the Nixon Administration has set a sluggish pace legislatively and a reactionary one administratively."

It credited the Senate with a progressive record highlighted by "a continuing and intensive focus on military-defense matters."

In releasing its analysis of the first seven months of the congressional session, the liberal organization criticized "languid House Democratic leadership" but praised the work of the Democratic Study Group on tax reform, high interest rates and education aid. This is a loosely knit organization of about 125 Democratic House members who generally support liberal causes.

THEY HAVE succeeded in coordinating liberal leadership and coalescing the support of liberal causes in the House," the analysis said.

It criticized the Administration's position on voting rights, electoral reform, civil rights enforcement and preventive detention, saying "all go to form a governmental mosaic consisting of a philosophical commitment and ideological conviction that extends the 'Southern strategy' utilized in the 1968 Nixon campaign to a condition of political permanence."

tion has displayed an expert agility in protecting and building its own political base while lacking the will to propose adequate solutions to national problems," it said.

"With the exception of the surtax proposal and the ABM deployment," the ADA said, "the Administration has not fought a legislative battle for its own programs and is, all but invisible when funds are being considered."

"This may be good public relations, but it is bad leadership," it added.

Train Derails in North Carolina

MEBANE, N.C. — The last six cars of Southern Railway's passenger train No. 29, en route from New York to Atlanta, derailed Saturday at Mebane.

There were no injuries, a Southern spokesman in Greensboro said, to the approximately 450 passengers on the 17-car train. Those on the derailed cars were taken by bus to Greensboro while those on the forward cars remained on the train.

tration and the Republican National Committee are pursuing a national strategy and that it intends to treat all sections equally.

'Cobras' Watch Negro Marchers

LONOKE, Ark. (UPI) — Warned by leaflets that they were under "constant surveillance" by a secret "Cobra" force, about 20 Negro militants "walking against fear" stepped off Saturday on the next-to-last leg of a 130-mile hike for the state capitol and a Sunday rally.

State police intelligence officers picked up in Carlisle, Ark., east of Lonoke, a leaflet signed by the COBRA, an acronym for "Congress Opposing Belligerent Revolutionary Action."

Addressed to the "peace-loving citizens of Arkansas," the leaflet said, "remain calm! COBRA never sleeps! (so you may!) These hoodlums are under constant surveillance!"

"King Cobra and his dedicated followers will not fail you!"

Lance "Sweet Willie Wine" Watson, march leader and "prime minister" of the Black Militant Invaders of Memphis, said the marchers were not "hoodlums."

"They must remember," Watson said, "we'll go just as far to protect our people as they will to protect their people — go further, if necessary."

The leaflet did not mention the Ku Klux Klan, but an informed source said the two organizations were closely related.

Watson called the march a "walk against fear, to prove that a black man can go anywhere he wants in Arkansas." It also is to protest the killing last Sunday night of a teen-age Negro in Benton, Ark.

'MISS BIKINI' A TIGER

Miss June Fletcher, 18, who captured the title of "Miss Bikini" at Long Branch, N.J., a month ago, plans to become a tiger. It may seem an odd ambition for a beauty queen having the classical measurements of 35-25-35, but Miss Bikini has a desire to be learned. She will enter Princeton University for classes next month along with 170 other coeds. To celebrate the glories of her diverse qualifications, Miss Fletcher will wear a "tiger outfit" to match Princeton's mascot and ride a fluorescent bicycle with black tiger stripes wherever she goes upon her arrival on campus.

Baja in Storm Path; Flood Losses Heavy

MEXICO CITY — Pacific storm Emily aimed for the west coast of Mexico on the Gulf of California Saturday, threatening to aggravate floods that have already killed nine persons and left 100,000 homeless south of the border.

The navy radio control tower at Mazatlan said the storm, with 53-mile-an-hour winds and heavy rain, appeared to be heading toward Guaymas, 140 miles from the U.S. border.

The Mazatlan airport was closed, all boats were told to stay in harbor and the Mazatlan-La Paz ferry was discontinued.

The Weather Bureau said four states may be affected unless Emily changes course — Nayarit, Sonora, Sinaloa and Baja California.

Heavy rains in south central Mexico, the result of a mass of tropical humid air in the Gulf of Mexico, have caused devastating floods in five other states — Oaxaca, Chiapas, Veracruz, Guerrero and Mexico, D.F., site of the capital.

Most of the 100,000 homeless reported by the Red Cross are in Oaxaca state, the worst hit. Officials said 80 per cent of the towns in Oaxaca were isolated by floods; an estimated 25,000 persons were flooded out by the Atoyac River, and regions in the isthmus of Tehuantepec were without drinking water.

More than 150 tons of relief supplies were sent into the affected areas and agricultural teams were inspecting massive crop damage.

Three persons were killed in Chiapas state when their homes collapsed under pressure of flood waters from the San Vicente River. A fourth death in the state was reported when a warehouse collapsed.

In Orizaba, Veracruz, four persons died when their pickup truck fell into a ravine after skidding on a partly submerged road.

New High-Performance Duster Adds Sporty Touch to Valiant Line

Plymouth's Valiant Line Has Two '70 Additions in Duster Models

By ART STEPHAN
Automobile Editor

The Plymouth Valiant line has two additions for 1970 — an all-new two-door coupe, the Duster, and the Duster 340, a new high-performance model sharing the same body. Both Duster models, as well as the restyled Valiant, will go on sale Sept. 23.

"The Duster and Duster 340 are significant additions to the Plymouth line in their respective market areas," said Chrysler-Plymouth General Manager Glenn E. White. "They offer a blend of such complementing features as appealing new coupe styling, economy budget prices, exceptional economy of operation without major sacrifice of performance on the Duster, and the availability of personalizing options."

Featuring an attractive and youthful sports coupe styling theme, the Dusters have tip-open rear quarter window glass, ventless front door glass and a chrome capped thin-section "B" pillar.

STANDARD ENGINE in Duster is a new 198 cubic inch six-cylinder engine, with the 225 cubic inch six-cylinder and the 318 cubic inch V-8 engines optional.

The youth-oriented Duster 340 is powered by the modern, light-weight, high performance 340 cubic inch, four-barrel engine as standard equipment.

Among the many Duster 340 features are a special instrument panel, road wheels, a new optional bucket seat with high back integral head restraints, special performance stripe treatment and special wide tread fiberglass belted tires.

Scoring repeated economy victories since its introduction in 1959, Valiant is noted for the good level of performance it delivers while still retaining outstanding economy.

Californians Planning Europe Trip Warned About Polio-Like Disease

Southland residents planning European vacations are being cautioned to seek vaccination against a current outbreak of a "polio-like" disease in Spain, according to Dr. J. D. Litwack of the city Health Department.

A letter from the office of the U.S. Surgeon General received Thursday warns would-be vacationers to seek polio booster vaccinations, Litwack said.

"The disease resembles polio, but has not been diagnosed as such yet," he added. "Because the incidence of polio is so much higher in Europe than it is in the United States, everyone planning to travel in Europe should be vaccinated."

Children with an initial polio vaccination need one booster dose of the oral vaccine, while adults who have had fewer than two oral doses should be vaccinated twice, six to eight weeks apart, Litwack said.

Adults who have had one or two boosters need only one oral dose, he added.

Today, we shall try to illustrate how one properly evaluates all the sub-factors that determine how an imperfection may or may not affect the value of a diamond. We must always remember, however, that imperfection is only one factor out of many which will aid one in determining a diamond's ultimate value.

Here is an example of what we mean:

You buy a diamond unmounted. It is mounted in a beautiful setting, held in place by 4 prongs. You wear it many, many years. It is with you everywhere.

(Even though a diamond is the hardest substance known to man, it is possible to be nicked or scratched due to long wear.)

So your diamond has a minute scratch on the girdle of the diamond and can only be seen with the aid of a 10-power microscope. This would be an imperfection.

How does this imperfection affect the value of your diamond?

The type of imperfection is a "scratch."

The size of the imperfection is "minute" and . . . can only be seen with the aid of a 10-power microscope.

The location of the imperfection: "... on the girdle of the diamond . . .". This means it cannot be seen unless the diamond is taken out of its mounting. Therefore, the location is such that the imperfection cannot be noticed and would be difficult to find, even with the aid of a 10-power microscope.

Combining all these factors together we have a harmless imperfection, impossible to be seen by the naked eye, and hidden by its setting.

THERE SHOULD BE NO APPRECIABLE AFFECT ON THE VALUE OF THIS DIAMOND!!

By using this approach, you are in a better position to judge whether or not an imperfection could affect the value of the diamond you are looking at.

New High-Performance Duster Adds Sporty Touch to Valiant Line

Plymouth's Valiant Line Has Two '70 Additions in Duster Models

By ART STEPHAN
Automobile Editor

The Plymouth Valiant line has two additions for 1970 — an all-new two-door coupe, the Duster, and the Duster 340, a new high-performance model sharing the same body. Both Duster models, as well as the restyled Valiant, will go on sale Sept. 23.

"The Duster and Duster 340 are significant additions to the Plymouth line in their respective market areas," said Chrysler-Plymouth General Manager Glenn E. White. "They offer a blend of such complementing features as appealing new coupe styling, economy budget prices, exceptional economy of operation without major sacrifice of performance on the Duster, and the availability of personalizing options."

Featuring an attractive and youthful sports coupe styling theme, the Dusters have tip-open rear quarter window glass, ventless front door glass and a chrome capped thin-section "B" pillar.

STANDARD ENGINE in Duster is a new 198 cubic inch six-cylinder engine, with the 225 cubic inch six-cylinder and the 318 cubic inch V-8 engines optional.

The youth-oriented Duster 340 is powered by the modern, light-weight, high performance 340 cubic inch, four-barrel engine as standard equipment.

Among the many Duster 340 features are a special instrument panel, road wheels, a new optional bucket seat with high back integral head restraints, special performance stripe treatment and special wide tread fiberglass belted tires.

Scoring repeated economy victories since its introduction in 1959, Valiant is noted for the good level of performance it delivers while still retaining outstanding economy.

A letter from the office of the U.S. Surgeon General received Thursday warns would-be vacationers to seek polio booster vaccinations, Litwack said.

"The disease resembles polio, but has not been diagnosed as such yet," he added. "Because the incidence of polio is so much higher in Europe than it is in the United States, everyone planning to travel in Europe should be vaccinated."

Children with an initial polio vaccination need one booster dose of the oral vaccine, while adults who have had fewer than two oral doses should be vaccinated twice, six to eight weeks apart, Litwack said.

Adults who have had one or two boosters need only one oral dose, he added.

Finch Hits Medicaid's High Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Robert H. Finch says the soaring cost of Medicaid is partially the fault of the medical profession, and that it should, but fails to, help police the program of health care for the poor.

In a letter to Sen. Abraham D. Ribicoff, D-Conn., Finch said "the need for genuine physician participation in controlling costs is self-evident."

The secretary, who recently tangled with segments of the American Medical Association and their supporters in Congress in an unsuccessful fight to nominate his choice for the nation's top health post, said doctors generate the bulk of Medicaid expenditures.

"But I am becoming to believe that a major factor in controlling skyrocketing costs is the degree to which physicians are involved in the program, not simply as purveyors of medical care but also as watchdogs of costs and guardians of quality," Finch said in an Aug. 15 letter to Ribicoff.

THE SENATOR is chairman of a government operations subcommittee preparing a report on health programs. He contends doctors are largely to blame for the federal government's need to pump $2.4 billion into Medicaid this year against only $800 million three years ago.

Finch's letter was in response to a June 13 letter from Ribicoff which asked the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to beef up its existing Medicaid cost control regulations.

In his letter, Ribicoff said any cuts in the Medicaid program at the local level "would make people the victims of austerity instead of the inefficiencies and waste that we know exist in Medicaid."

Along with the skyrocketing costs have come a flood of charges of abuse, overutilization and outright fraud, prompting two congressional investigations.

Last year, 2,700 doctors collected $25,000 or more each in Medicaid fees.

THE PROGRAM operates in 44 states or territories which administer it under a thinly staffed Medical Services Administration. Policing against fraud is left mainly to the states.

Finch suggested in his letter that state Medicaid directors work more closely with state medical societies and their medical advisory committees to encourage more physician involvement in controlling costs.

He also advised Ribicoff that he has appointed Blue Cross President Walter J. McNeerney to hear a task force "to investigate rising costs, fraud, poor management and other problems in Medicaid and related programs."

Pair Pedals 4,000 Miles to 'Study'

MIAMI (AP) — Two University of Washington juniors pedaled their way through a 61-day, 4,000-mile geography lesson that skirted America from its richest to its poorest, from the beauty of national parks to the sadness of slums.

"No textbook can copy what we've seen," said Steve McLaughlin, 20, of Seattle. "You are alternately thrilled and made sick by the sights of this great land."

McLaughlin and classmate Roger Drake, 19, averaged 14 miles an hour from Seattle to Miami on a jaunt that began June 23 and wound up Friday.

"It was the challenge and a thirst for knowledge," said the senior bicyclist. "We tuned up with a 400-mile cycling trip around the Olympic Peninsula in Washington State."

The trek carried the duo through Minneapolis, Rockford, Ill., Bloomington, Ind., Knoxville, Tenn., and Jacksonville, Fla. "We took 14 well-spaced days for vacationing," said McLaughlin, "so pedal time was actually 47 days."

Nixon 'Tee' for Newlyweds

President Nixon encountered a wedding reception Saturday at the Los Angeles Country Club where he played golf with Atty. Gen. John Mitchell. He congratulated the newlyweds at the first tee.

Then, displaying his golf technique for wedding guests, the President drove 150 yards down the fairway. The ball landed between two sand traps.

Nixon climbed into a golf cart with Mitchell and the two toured the course for 18 holes in warm sunshine.

The President flew to the Century Plaza Hotel 60 miles from the San Clemente White House. He went from the hotel by car to the country club for the golf game.

Standing on the first tee, Nixon greeted the bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Hayes of Los Angeles. The bride, the former Terry Lee Russell, was in her bridal gown and veil. They were introduced by Fred J. Russell, father of the bride, and Nixon's deputy director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness.

City From Ancient Past Found on Isle

ATHENS (UPI)—Archaeologists said Saturday they have discovered a 3,400-year-old city buried under volcanic lava and ash as well-preserved as the Roman town of Pompeii.

The city is Thira, located on the island of Santorini, 70 miles due north of Crete. It was destroyed by the same underwater volcano that wiped out the famous palace of Minos in Knossos, Crete, in 1500 B.C., starting the decline of the Minoan civilization, the first known civilization on European soil.

THE ERUPTION of the volcano caused a tidal wave that flooded the Greek islands and the mainland shores of the Aegean Sea. Then lava and ash rained down on the sites.

An archeological team headed by Prof. Spyros Marinatos, general inspector of antiquities, discovered Thira and already has unearthed two-story buildings with doors, windows and air holes on the roofs.

They also have found roads and squares of a city with an advanced civilization, as well as Minoan painted vases, jars and a medicine cabinet.

Pompeii, near Naples, is of later date. It was destroyed by an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D.

Marinatos said he has used a new technique in excavating Thira. Instead of exposing ancient ruins to the elements, his team is digging tunnels to reach them wherever possible.

SOME OF THE buildings found are comparable to Minoan and Mycenaean construction, he said.

Building Paces Boom in Western Economy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Construction paced a continuing midsummer boom in the Western economy, the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco said Saturday, but manufacturing employment weakened.

In a related report, the Labor Department reported nonfarm employment declined "fractionally" in mid-July in the eight Pacific states, but the decline of 6,000 jobs was less than usual.

The Federal Reserve noted unemployment in states in the 12th District went down by more than 4 per cent between the first and second quarters at a time when the national rate was going up.

"In the face of an increasingly restrictive monetary policy, commercial banks in the 12th District recorded a $1.3 billion increase in total credit during the second quarter on a seasonally adjusted basis," the bank said.

"THIS GAIN, which reversed the first-quarter contraction, represented nearly 30 percent of the nation's total bank-credit expansion for the spring quarter."

Mortgage lending also stepped up during the second quarter, the Federal Reserve said. The increase by banks of $175 million was 50 per cent more than the first quarter, and savings and loan institutions registered the largest quarterly gain since 1961 — $290 million.

The 12th Federal Reserve District includes Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

In the same states except Utah, the Labor Department said nonfarm wage and salary employment was 10,019,200 in mid-July. Although the decrease in jobs was less than seasonal from the middle of June, job gains in manufacturing and construction were less than usual for the period.

"JULY'S INCREASE of 17,000 jobs in manufacturing was held down by losses in aerospace and lumbering, which decreased 2,900 and 900 respectively," the department said.

Police Say Mafia Has New Foe

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—After a year of trying to place the blame elsewhere, authorities have concluded that one or more old-west style vigilante groups trying to drive out the Mafia may be responsible for a series of bombings in this resort city.

Police apparently have been working on this theory for several weeks, but it only came to public attention earlier this month.

During a preliminary hearing for two men accused of detonating two bombs at the Tucson home of Mafia kingpin Joseph Bonanno on July 22, 1968, the first public inkling of something amiss was revealed.

The former girl friend of a brother of one of the accused testified she had been told by the two defendants that an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had asked the two men to bomb Bonanno's home. She said she was told that the agent wanted to start a war among different factions of the Mafia here so that they would drive each other out of the city.

SHE IDENTIFIED the agent only as "Dave."

The next day FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover sent a special investigator here from Washington, D.C., to look into the charge. Hoover also said that the agent involved in the allegation no longer worked for the bureau.

Several days later, however, it was learned that the agent involved in the charge had quit his job with the FBI on the day before the court testimony.

Then acting police chief William Gilkinson revealed that the Bonanno bombing and several others in the past 12 months may have been the work of a vigilante group.

Without naming names, Gilkinson said when the investigation was completed, "there are going to be a lot of people involved that you would never suspect in a situation such as this. A lot of well known people are going to have to answer for their actions."

Boat Blast Burns Two Crewmen

Two crewmen were injured in an explosion aboard a charter fishing boat in San Pedro Harbor Saturday.

Firemen said Robert White, 39, and Jesse Henley, 15, both of Huntington Park, were apparently using ether to prime a generator aboard the 40-foot fishing boat Norden.

The ether can exploded in their faces. Both were taken to Harbor General Hospital, where they were treated for burns on the face and arms and released.

The explosion occurred as passengers waited to board the boat at the 22nd Street landing.

City From Ancient Past Found on Isle

ATHENS (UPI)—Archaeologists said Saturday they have discovered a 3,400-year-old city buried under volcanic lava and ash as well-preserved as the Roman town of Pompeii.

The city is Thira, located on the island of Santorini, 70 miles due north of Crete. It was destroyed by the same underwater volcano that wiped out the famous palace of Minos in Knossos, Crete, in 1500 B.C., starting the decline of the Minoan civilization, the first known civilization on European soil.

THE ERUPTION of the volcano caused a tidal wave that flooded the Greek islands and the mainland shores of the Aegean Sea. Then lava and ash rained down on the isles.

An archaeological team headed by Prof. Spyros Marinatos, general inspector of antiquities, discovered Thira and already has unearthed two-story buildings with doors, windows and air holes on the roofs.

They also have found roads and squares of a city with an advanced civilization, as well as Minoan painted vases, jars and a medicine cabinet.

Pompeii, near Naples, is of later date. It was destroyed by an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D.

Marinatos said he has used a new technique in excavating Thira. Instead of exposing ancient ruins to the elements, his team is digging tunnels to reach them wherever possible.

SOME OF THE buildings found are comparable to Minoan and Mycenaean construction, he said.

Building Paces Boom in Western Economy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)

Construction paced a continuing midsummer boom in the Western economy, the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco said Saturday, but manufacturing employment weakened.

In a related report, the Labor Department reported nonfarm employment declined "fractionally" in mid-July in the eight Pacific states, but the decline of 6,000 jobs was less than usual.

The Federal Reserve noted unemployment in states in the 12th District went down by more than 4 per cent between the first and second quarters at a time when the national rate was going up.

"In the face of an increasingly restrictive monetary policy, commercial banks in the 12th District recorded a $1.3 billion increase in total credit during the second quarter on a seasonally adjusted basis," the bank said.

"THIS GAIN, which reversed the first-quarter contraction, represented nearly 30 percent of the nation's total bank-credit expansion for the spring quarter."

Mortgage lending also stepped up during the second quarter, the Federal Reserve said. The increase by banks of $175 million was 50 per cent more than the first quarter, and savings and loan institutions registered the largest quarterly gain since 1964 — $890 million.

The 12th Federal Reserve District includes Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

In the same states except Utah, the Labor Department said nonfarm wage and salary employment was 10,019,200 in mid-July. Although the decrease in jobs was less than seasonal from the middle of June, job gains in manufacturing and construction were less than usual for the period.

"JULY'S INCREASE of 17,000 jobs in manufacturing was held down by losses in aerospace and lumbering, which decreased 2,900 and 900 respectively," the department said.

Police Say Mafia Has New Foe

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — After a year of trying to place the blame elsewhere, authorities have concluded that one or more old-west style vigilante groups trying to drive out the Mafia may be responsible for a series of bombings in this resort city.

Police apparently have been working on this theory for several weeks, but it only came to public attention earlier this month.

During a preliminary hearing for two men accused of detonating two bombs at the Tucson home of Mafia kingpin Joseph Bonanno on July 22, 1966, the first public inkling of something amiss was revealed.

The former girl friend of a brother of one of the accused testified she had been told by the two defendants that an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had asked the two men to bomb Bonanno's home. She said she was told that the agent wanted to start a war among different factions of the Mafia here so that they would drive each other out of the city.

SHE IDENTIFIED the agent only as "Dave."

The next day FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover sent a special investigator here from Washington, D.C., to look into the charge. Hoover also said that the agent involved in the allegation no longer worked for the bureau.

Several days later, however, it was learned that the agent involved in the charge had quit his job with the FBI on the day before the court testimony.

Then acting police chief William Wilkinson revealed that the Bonanno bombing and several others in the past 13 months may have been the work of a vigilante group.

Without naming names, Wilkinson said when the investigation was completed, "there are going to be a lot of people involved that you would never suspect in a situation such as this. A lot of well known people are going to have to answer for their actions."

Boat Blast Burns Two Crewmen

Two crewmen were injured in an explosion aboard a charter fishing boat in San Pedro Harbor Saturday.

Firemen said Robert White, 39, and Jesse Henley, 15, both of Huntington Park, were apparently using ether to prime a generator aboard the 40-foot fishing boat Norden.

The ether can exploded in their faces. Both were taken to Harbor General Hospital, where they were treated for burns on the face and arms and released.

The explosion occurred as passengers waited to board the boat at the 22nd Street landing.

EDWARD DAVIS

Nation's Top Cop
Followed a Dream

Ever since he was a kid he dreamed of being a cop. This week he takes over as the No. 1 Cop in the nation — chief of police for the City of Los Angeles.

Edward Davis was born in Los Angeles 52 years ago, the son of a chemist and the grandson of one of the early certified public accountants in Los Angeles.

Both professions, he admits, "bored" him.

"THE FAMILY always tried to push me towards being an accountant or a CPA or chemist, but I happened to live down the street from the then mayor of the city, Frank Shaw, and they always had uniformed policemen guarding his house. So, on the way to and from school I'd walk by and talk to them. Some were detectives — very interesting fellows — who'd have all kinds of sea stories to tell about police work.

"I couldn't wait until I was 21 so I could become a policeman."

Although he went to work for the city in two other departments — "I've always fed at the public trough" — it was just until he turned 21 years old — old enough to join the Los Angeles Police Department.

"If it hadn't been for those policemen who guarded the mayor, I'd probably be an accountant today," he says with a smile.

AND IT'S because of this "cop on the beat" relationship, that one of the first programs the new police chief plans to push is a similar plan.

"We can't afford to put the cop back on the beat in a city as dispersed as the city of Los Angeles — it would take hundreds of millions of dollars. But we can do something similar."

He calls it the "basic radio car plan" in which a radio car district is stabilized around the clock with a nine-man crew that stays in the neighborhood.

"I don't like the impersonal business of shifting radio car districts every night and having community relations done by specialists instead of the cop on the beat," the youthful-looking chief says.

THE MEN in the cars will cover a 100 square block area, learn to know the area and the people and meet, once a month, with residents in the district.

"The policemen will talk about their problems... the public will talk about theirs. This is what we need. Rather than talk about race or creed or color, good community relations is talking about how we can help each other."

"Although the kids won't be as fortunate as I was, to be able to talk to a policeman on the way to and from school, at least he'll be able to do it once a month."

A veteran of three years in the U.S. Navy during World War II, the chief has worked almost every department in the force. He admits being a patrolman for seven years; a sergeant for four years, a lieutenant for four years, a captain for five years, an inspector for six years, and was named deputy chief in 1966.

"That should," he says with a laugh, "add up to 29 years."

ALTHOUGH his police activities keep him busy, he still has time to spend with his wife, Virginia, and their three children, and participate in community organizations.

He is commander of Police Post 381, of the American Legion, the largest Legion post in California.

He is chairman of the law and order commission of the State American Legion.

He has been a part-time faculty member of the California State College at Los Angeles and is a lecturer at the University of Southern California.

HE HAS held numerous professional offices including vice chairmanship of the electronic data processing committee of the California State Peace Officers Association; former vice president of the board of directors of the Los Angeles Fire and Police Protective League; chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Peace Officers Research Association of California, and currently heads the advisory committee of a special project on police officer selection which is being conducted by the Institute for Local Self-Government, an arm of the California League of Cities and the California Supervisors Association.

He also teaches Sunday School.

HE'S CONSIDERED a law-and-order man, a cop's cop, a no-nonsense policeman, a chief that can effectively direct one of the biggest police forces in the country.

But both friend and critic alike agree on one important fact about him:

"He's a fair cop."

Youths Kill Boy, Wound
One Other

HIGHLAND PARK — A carload of youths, with shotguns sticking out the windows, fired upon several other, killing one and wounding another late Friday night, police said.

The other youths, standing in front of a house, fired with hand guns at the car as it sped away, but did not hit any of its occupants, officers said.

JAMES Lloyd Cook, 19, was killed as he stood on his doorstep with four friends, police said. A companion, Craig Gentis, 21, was wounded in both arms, and taken to County-USC Medical Center, they said. Gentis was reported in satisfactory condition.

Officers said they booked Armando Lopez and Albert Garcia, both 19, and a 14-year-old boy for investigation of murder.

They said Lopez told them he had accused Cook of stealing.

$82,183 Road Job Pact
Let; More Work Due

By RALPH McCLURG
Staff Writer

The California Division of Highways has awarded a $82,183 contract for highway improvements on Carson Street in Hawaiian Gardens and Lincoln Avenue in Cypress, and authorized a call for bids for similar improvements on Firestone Boulevard in Downey and Norwalk.

The Carson Street-Lincoln Avenue contract went to Smith Electric Supply of Stanton. The department had earlier awarded the contract to Steiny and Mitchell, Inc. of Los Angeles who had submitted a bid of $71,804. Upon the company's failure to execute the contract it was awarded to the second lowest bidder.

The Hawaiian Gardens-Cypress work calls for the installation of traffic signal and highway lighting systems, and construction of left-turn storage lanes on Carson Street-Lincoln Avenue between Bloomfield Avenue in Hawaiian Gardens and Denni Street in Cypress.

Lincoln Avenue in Orange County (Cypress) is the extension of Carson Street in Hawaiian Gardens (Los Angeles County).

The Downey-Norwalk job calls for the widening of Firestone Boulevard (Route 105) to provide left turn lanes for both east and west bound traffic at three intersections from Woodruff Avenue in Downey to Interstate 605 in Norwalk.

Traffic signal and highway lighting system will also be modified at the intersections. Bids for the work will be opened Sept. 18 in Los Angeles. Approximately $68,000 is available for the project, including a $13,800 contribution by the city of Downey.

Camille: Most Devastating Storm Known in America

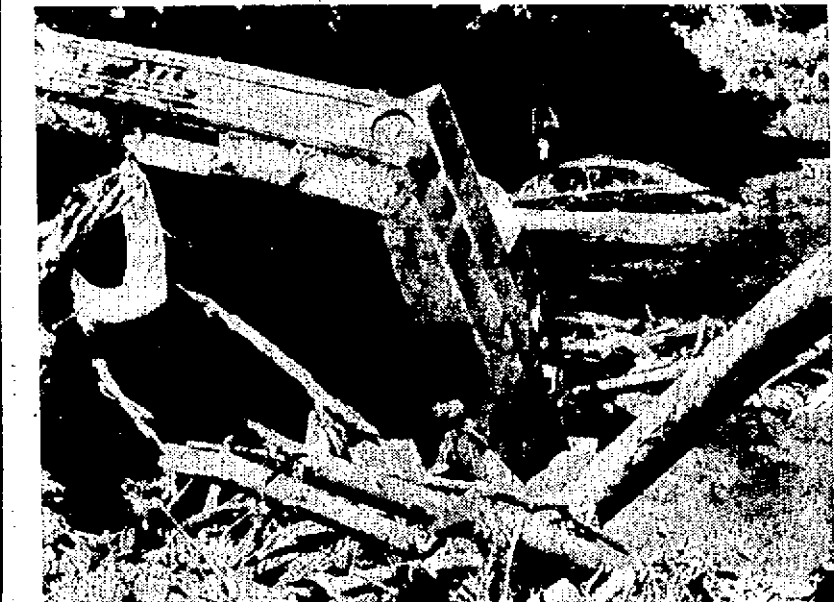

Hurricane Camille has been acknowledged by Dr. Robert H. Simpson, chief of the National Hurricane Center at Miami, to be "the greatest storm of any kind that has ever affected this nation." Its cost in terms of human lives, suffering and loss has not been totaled and may never be. But the shape and extent of the disaster is emerging. United Press International assigned a team of reporters to discover not only what happened but how it happened and what it means, in human terms, for the future. Their numbers included Rabun Matthews of the Atlanta bureau, Frank Elledge of Miami, William Vaughn of Jackson, Jack Payton of New Orleans and UPI senior editor David Smothers. The following is their team report.

By DAVID SMOTHERS
PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss. (UPI) — It began as "a glob of weather," a hazy patch of clouds detected by a weather satellite off the coast of Africa.

It became Camille, a name that will live in infamy in the litany of hurricanes: a hellion which drifted in seeming innocence across the Atlantic Ocean, gathered her terrible strength over Cuba, and fell without mercy upon the southern coast of the United States.

The cost of Camille will not be known for months. But the awesome outlines of its havoc are discernible.

THERE ARE close to 300 known dead and the total in Mississippi alone could rise to 500. The dead still lie in their crushed homes, in back water bayous, in fallen stands of timber, in the waters of the Gulf of Mexico where Camille swept them from the land.

There are hundreds of thousands homeless. In news dispatches of disasters, the word "homeless" usually means people who have been driven from their homes for a time and who will return. There is little to return to in Pass Christian and other towns along the Gulf Coast.

There are homes cut off at the foundation and spewed across Harrison County, mansions whose second floors gleam in the blazing sun above first floors eviscerated by Camille's tidal wave. There are brave words of rebuilding from some, despair in the hearts of many others.

THERE ARE towns listed on the map that do not exist any more. South of New Orleans, Boothville and Venice just north of the mouth of the Mississippi River are, for all purposes of habitation, gone. At midweek they were under five feet of water and the buildings belonged to the catfish and the minnows.

There are economies in shambles, perhaps battered beyond repair and damage estimates ranging from $50 million to $1 billion. Since Civil War days, Mississippi's Gulf Coast has been a resort haven, first for the plantation aristocracy, more recently for Midwesterners seeking the sun and the water. Now waterfront motels at Biloxi stand as empty skeletons, all but the bare bones washed away by Camille. The lobbies of proud hotels and go-go girl joints are water-scarred caves. Again, there is brave talk of a comeback and a good share of hopeless shrugs.

Biloxi had a prosperous "Cannery Row" along the shore where brown and white jumbo shrimp from the Gulf were packaged. The canneries — 40 or so — are gone and fishing boats 400 feet long rest on front lawns 150 yards from the shoreline.

Gulfport, 15 miles down the coast, was an ocean going port of consequence. Now three large freighters lie on the beach, their propellers silhouetted against the sand. The word is that it might take another tornado to get them floating again.

ALL THE cliches have been used to describe this devastated land — the sweeping giant's hand, the homes smashed and scattered as if they were toys, the people dazed and uncomprehending, the charnel house scent of the dead. They were all true.

Yet it began with that "glob of weather" which, according to Director Robert Simpson of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, was pinpointed off Africa Aug. 5.

By Aug. 12, it was a "tropical wave" over Puerto Rico and, Simpson said, "we knew it was intensifying."

At about this time the storm got its name, Camille. It was predestined. Ever since World War II and its jargon of "Able-Baker-Charlie," the Weather Bureau has assigned hurricanes names in advance and in alphabetical order. For obscure reasons, they are always the names of women. Camille was to be the third hurricane of the year.

On Saturday Aug. 16, Arnold Sugg, a top forecaster

at Hurricane Center, reported, "an Air Force plane flew over Puerto Rico into Camille and found 908 millibars of pressure — and couldn't believe it — in the eye."

The plane went back to McCoy Air Force Base near Orlando, Fla., for refueling and headed into the eye of the hurricane again. This time, it was 905 millibars. Then the plane

Camille: Most Devastating Storm Known in America

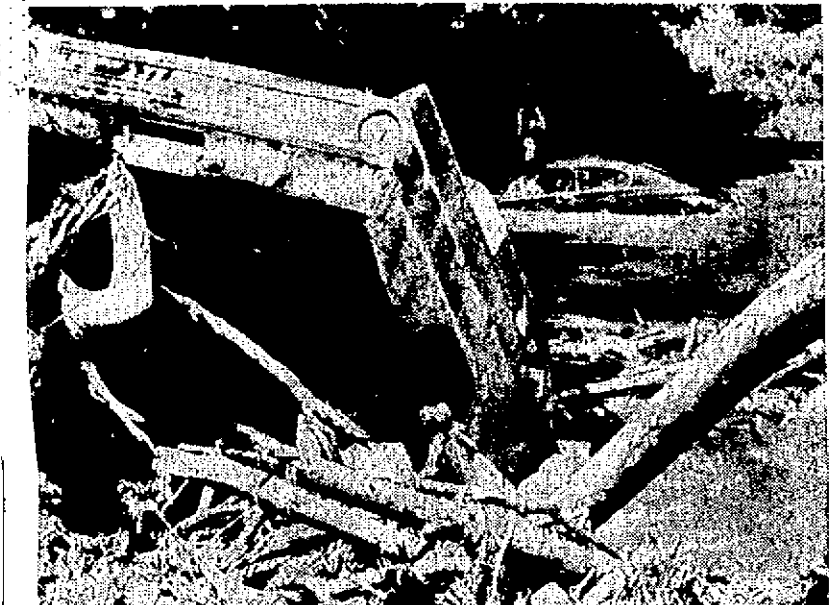

Hurricane Camille has been acknowledged by Dr. Robert H. Simpson, chief of the National Hurricane Center at Miami, to be "the greatest storm of any kind that has ever affected this nation." Its cost in terms of human lives, suffering and loss has not been totaled and may never be. But the shape and extent of the disaster is emerging. United Press International assigned a team of reporters to discover not only what happened but how it happened and what it means, in human terms, for the future. Their numbers included Rabun Matthews of the Atlanta bureau, Frank Eldge of Miami, William Vaughn of Jackson, Jack Payton of New Orleans and UPI senior editor David Smothers. The following is their team report.

By DAVID SMOTHERS
PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss. (UPI) — It began as "a glob of weather," a hazy patch of clouds detected by a weather satellite off the coast of Africa.

It became Camille, a name that will live in infamy.

my in the litany of Hurricanes: a hellion which drifted in seeming innocence across the Atlantic Ocean, gathered her terrible strength over Cuba, and fell without mercy upon the southern coast of the United States.

The cost of Camille will not be known for months. But the awesome outlines of its havoc are discernible.

THERE ARE close to 300 known dead and the total in Mississippi alone could rise to 500. The dead still lie in their crushed homes, in back water bayous, in fallen stands of timber, in the waters of the Gulf of Mexico where Camille swept them from the land.

There are hundreds of thousands homeless. In news dispatches of disasters, the word "homeless" usually means people who have been driven from their homes for a time and who will return. There is little to return to in Pass Christian and other towns along the Gulf Coast.

There are homes cut off at the foundation and spewed across Harrison County, mansions whose second floors gleam in the blazing sun above first floors eviscerated by Camille's tidal wave. There are brave words of rebuilding from some, despair in the hearts of many others.

THERE ARE towns listed on the map that do not exist any more. South of New Orleans, Boothville and Venice just north of the mouth of the Mississippi River are, for all purposes of habitation, gone. At midweek they were under five feet of water and the buildings belonged to the catfish and the minnows.

first for the plantation aristocracy, more recently for Midwesterners seeking the sun and the water. Now waterfront motels at Biloxi stand as empty skeletons, all but the bare bones washed away by Camille. The lobbies of proud hotels and go-go girlie joints are water-scarred caves. Again, there is brave talk of a comeback and a good share of hopeless shrugs.

Biloxi had a prosperous "Cannery Row" along the shore where brown and white jumbo shrimp from the Gulf were packaged. The canneries — 40 or so — are gone and fishing boats 400 feet long rest on front lawns 150 yards from the shoreline.

Gulfport, 15 miles down the coast, was an ocean going port of consequence. Now three large freighters lie on the beach, their propellers silhouetted against the sand. The word is that it might take another tornado to get them floating again.

ALL THE cliches have been used to describe this devastated land — the sweeping giant's hand, the homes smashed and scattered as if they were toys, the people dazed and uncomprehending, the charnel house scent of the dead. They were all true.

Yet it began with that "glob of weather" which, according to Director Robert Simpson of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, was pinpointed off Africa Aug. 5.

By Aug. 12, it was a "tropical wave" over Puerto Rico and, Simpson said, "we knew it was intensifying."

At about this time the storm got its name, Camille. It was predestined. Ever since World War II and its jargon of "Able-Baker-Charlie," the Weather Bureau has assigned hurricanes names in advance and in alphabetical order. For obscure reasons, they are always the names of women. Camille was to be the third hurricane of the year.

On Saturday Aug. 16, Arnold Sugg, a top forecaster

at Hurricane Center, reported, "an Air Force plane flew over Puerto Rico into Camille and found 908 millibars of pressure — and couldn't believe it — in the eye."

The plane went back to McCoy Air Force Base near Orlando, Fla., for refueling and headed into the eye of the hurricane again. This time, it was 905 millibars. Then the plane went back to Homestead Air Force Base and the crew slept for 18 hours.

"They were just great," Sugg said. "They found for us this information which is the lowest pressure ever recorded by an aircraft in the Atlantic, the Caribbean or the Gulf of Mexico."

"If it hadn't been for the Air Force recon, we would never have known how serious this hurricane was going to be until after the fact."

spread havoc from Alabama to Louisiana in 1965. In the words of a New Orleans weatherman, she "was only bobcat size among hurricanes, but she was a vicious, spitting feline who tried to kill everything within her reach."

Later, Simpson followed Camille's path from Florida to Louisiana and concluded "hurricane Camille was a tightly-knotted little storm, but it was the most intense we've ever recorded. By any yardstick you want to measure, hurricane Camille was the greatest storm that has ever affected this nation."

HE CONFIRMED the belief of many who lived through it and observers who came in its wake — that "only a tornado or a barrage of tornadoes whirling out of the straight-on force" of the hurricane could have picked its targets so indiscriminately and destroyed them with such a vengeance.

"It reminded me of the meat chopper action of a Midwest tornado," Simpson said. "It looked more like two or three dozen Midwest tornadoes had followed each other between Central Pass Christian and East Long Beach, Miss."

On Sunday at 9 a.m. CDT the hurricane warnings were extended to New Orleans and Grand Isle. Simpson was told that many Gulf residents, like those in Florida, were keeping their cool and staying put. "My God, why don't they get off the beaches while there is still time?" he said.

He knew that by that time Camille was packing winds of more than 200 miles per hour, the strongest ever hurled by a hurricane against the U.S. mainland.

They were moving out along the Gulf Coast, but not enough of them.

OLD TIMERS in Pass Christian just didn't believe it would be that bad. Mrs. John G. McCluskey, wife of a retired engineer from New Orleans, said "we heard the warnings, but there had never been water on this property before and we stayed." The McCluskeys' lives were saved because the giant tide that swept their property lifted their home on its back and deposited it gently on Pass Christian's second street.

While bodies were being picked out of trees in Pass Christian, an Army sergeant detached for rescue work observed the "the young said they were too tough for it to get them and the old ones said it never happened before and it wouldn't happen now." Such were the ones who died.

At 11:37 p.m. Sunday, Camille passed 39 miles east of New Orleans. Its hell had already broken loose and its eye was boring in on Pass Christian.

Pass Christian is, or was, a quiet, somewhat elegant, somewhat shabby community of about 2,500 just west of Gulfport. Its spacious homes near the shore housed the old families, retired professional men and their wives, and even some New Orleans businessmen who liked the place well enough to commute the 60 miles back and forth every day. There was also a sizable Negro population and their homes were not stately or fit to stand up against a hurricane.

THERE WAS a party of sorts in Pass Christian Sunday night. It was in the Richelieu Apartments, a three-story brick building just across U.S. 90 from the Gulf. Most of the 75 to 90 residents moved out, but 23 elected to wait out Camille in a third floor apartment.

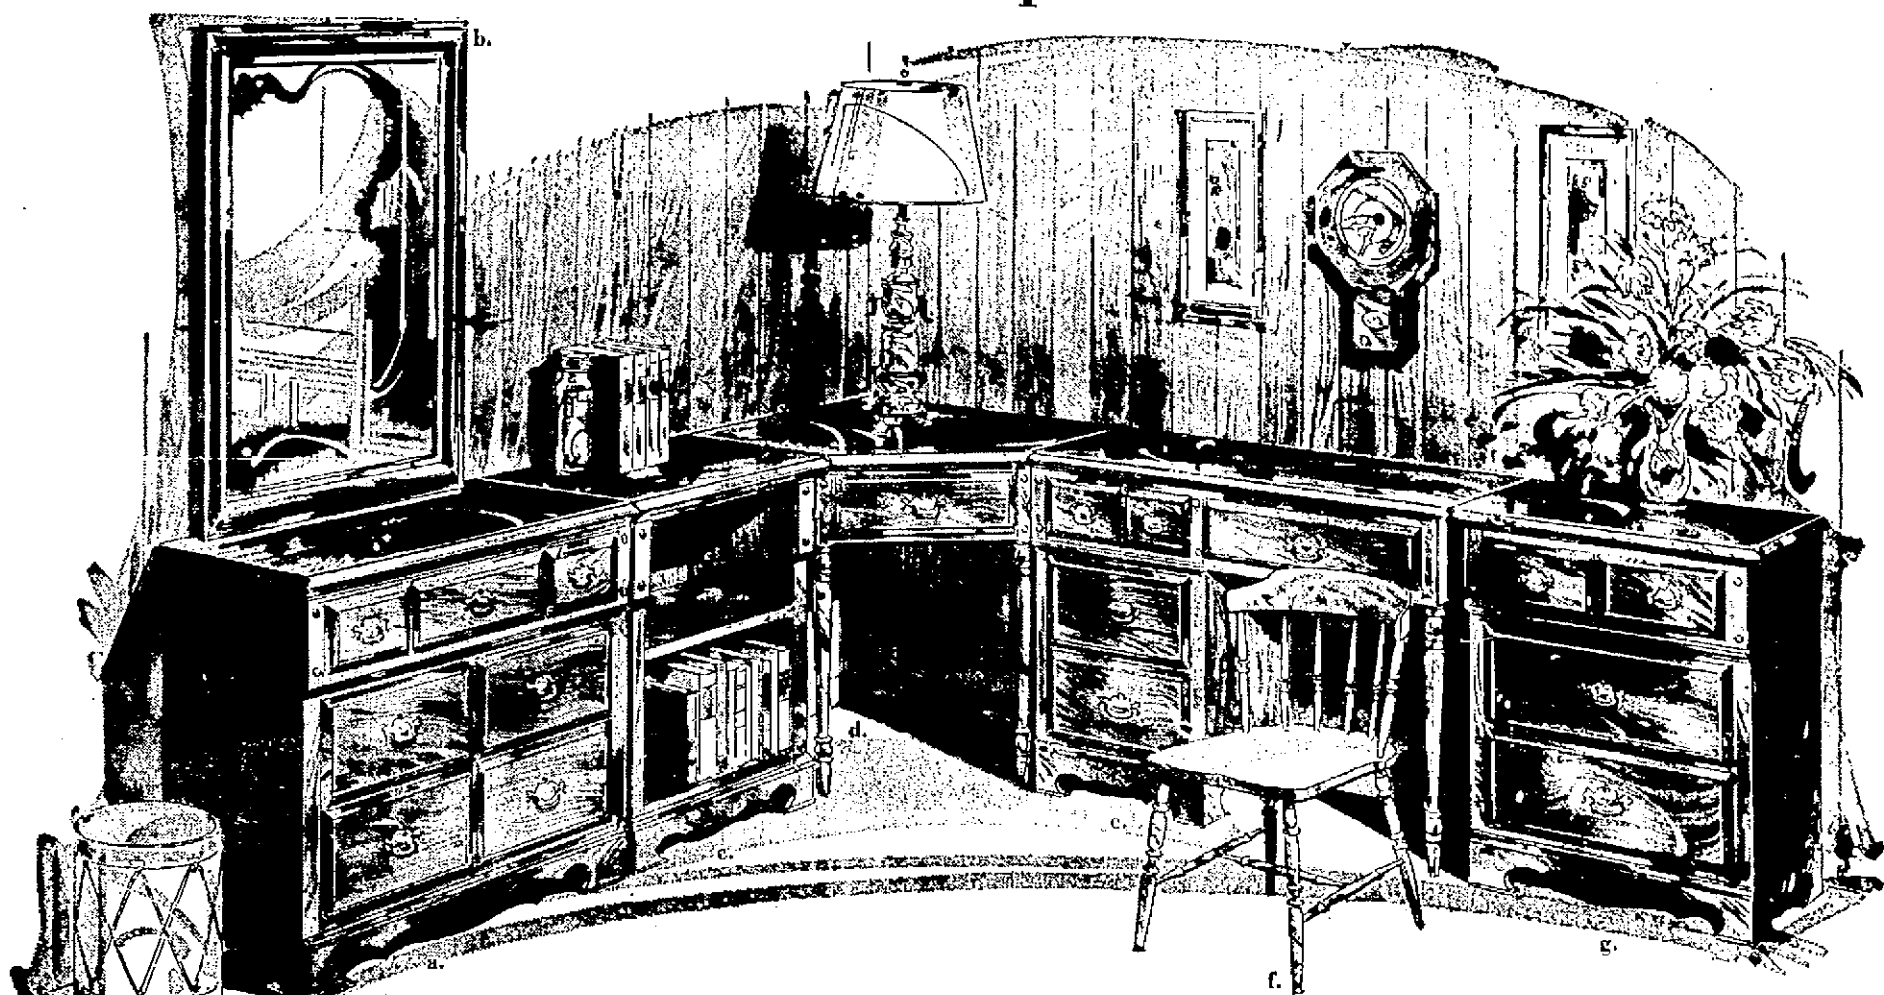

"We went back there I can't say how many times — three or four, I guess — and talked to the manager," recalled Assistant Police Chief Tom Ruspoli. "But they didn't think they would be harmed. The place looked sturdy."

"I imagine a little bit of drinking went on, but at

Dead, Missing Hunted Amid Rubble

sent 25-foot flood waters boiling out of the Blue Ridge Mountains Wednesday. Within 24 hours, 27 persons were counted dead in Virginia and West Virginia and at least 30 were missing.

Salvage owner Robert Fisher watched the James River rise from 9 to 30 feet at Howardsville, Va., in about three hours. "It just looks like the river got up and moved," he said.

Along the Gulf Coast, it was two days before the terrible tribute Camille had exacted became apparent. Rescue crews did not reach Pass Christian in force until Tuesday and it was not until Thursday that Seabees, gas masks over their faces to keep out the stink of death, began plucking bodies from the trees and rubble.

Similarly, it was not until Tuesday that the elimination of towns in the Louisiana Delta became known. UPI reporter Jack Payton went into the area in an Army duck — the only feasible means of transportation — and reported:

"Venus and Boothville, along with the smaller villages of Buras and Empire, were only names on sunken sign posts. The towns are gone and soon the water which destroyed them will also be gone.

"Schools of minnows and an occasional catfish swim through what used to be bedrooms, kitchens and business offices.

"Where the road ends, there was a battered house, the only Venice residence not under water or gone. The house is owned by A. C. Y. Cooper, who said it is about three miles from its original foundation."

"This is it," Cooper said. "I built this house after Betty wrecked my old one four years ago. My last payment on this one was in April. Now look at it. No more. Just no more."

THERE WAS grief to spare along the Gulf Coast.

On Wednesday a man drove, up, got out and stood beside the block-square flattened rubble that remained of the Richelieu Apartments. A woman followed him from the car, distraught. "No, no, you must be wrong," she said. "It must be farther down. This can't be it."

The man shook his head and the woman began to cry.

Close by, a Mobile hospital team from the NASA base at Huntsville, Ala., tried to help the people of Pass Christian help themselves. Old Negro women lay on cots in the high school building that was the NASA headquarters. Black babies wandered aimlessly about the corridors in their diapers. A white woman sat in a chair while her foot was swathed in bandages.

Outside, Davis E. Foxworthy, chief of technical services for the Huntsville NASA installation, pleaded with Air Force men from Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi to get a crane. "There's a house with a family — a couple and two babies — dead in the next block," he said. "We can see them but we can't get to them."

Along the coast, the sun drilled without pity upon the wreckage. Air conditioning was the least of the accepted amenities of civilization to some strangers. There was no electricity. No water fit for drinking. No telephones for any but essential purposes. Roads closed. Precious little food or gasoline.

BLACKS AND WHITES stood sweating in queues to buy ice for $1 a pound. A supermarket sold bread at 50 cents a loaf until it ran out. A man who owned an artesian well offered free water for any who wanted it — one of the many instances of unselfish kindness in the disaster. There were those who took the water and peddled it for $1 a gallon — one of many demonstrations of humans' willingness to exploit each other under any or all conditions.

Rats fed on cat food spilled from a demolished cannery on the Gulfport shore. Fattened, mud-eaten dogs were becoming dangerous. Planes ferried the dead northward to Hattiesburg and Army trucks rolled by in the stifling heat carrying refugees to Jackson.

The threat of epidemic disease hung in the moist air and the coast seemed a place where hope had gone out with the tide.

Yet there were those who insisted they would not give up on their chances on the Gulf Coast; indeed, they could not.

Gus Stevens, who lost his Harbor House restaurant, his own home and his pleasure boat when the storm hit Biloxi, said, "This set us back 20 years unless the state and federal governments can wipe this disaster from people's minds. But if they can reach the moon they can cure hurricanes."

W. C. Dorsett, manager of one of Biloxi's most sumptuous hotels,

Tight Money Market Puts School Bond Sale in Bind

Trustees of ABC Unified School District have requested the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to sell $1.9 million in local school bonds but according to a communication received by the district the supervisors are going to have to search for a buyer "due to the tight money market."

The bonds are the remaining amount of the $8 million authorized by the voters in Sept. 1960. The money is needed by the district to continue its classroom building program that is being expedited as fast as land for projected new schools can be acquired.

Dr. Murrell Miller, superintendent, said that it is anticipated that the supervisors will open bids for the proposed sale about Sept. 23. However, Miller pointed out that the district had received two letters from the San Francisco offices of the Bank of America that suggested that their institution will no longer bid on bonds with interest rate ceilings of five per cent.

The communication also said that "It is a completely unrealistic bidding practice to bid on such bonds in today's tight money market. Those districts with authorized but unsold bonds will have to gain voter approval to issue the bonds at a higher rate of interest than the previously approved five per cent."

After hearing of the bond money crisis, the trustee took two actions in effort to continue the district's systematic program of site acquisition and school house construction.

They plan to search for some new agency or individual other than the Bank of America to purchase the remaining $1,905,000 in bonds and to push forward with the scheduled Oct. 14 bond election calling for the sale of $12 million in local bonds and the acceptance of up to $18 million in state loans.

If the bond proposition is approved by the electors the district plans to sell the bonds as the money is needed as the assessed valuation increases. It is estimated the current year assessed valuation of around $150 million will jump to $250 million by the year 1972-73.

Barry to Speak at Murphy Dinner

Sen. Barry Goldwater has agreed to keynote a dinner in behalf of Sen. George Murphy Oct. 15 in San Diego. Dinners will take place at the same time in Fresno, Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Francisco and plans are to have a Republican senator address each one of these as well.

TUNNEY Rep. John V. Tunney (D-Ill.) who's been chairing congressional committee hearings in San Diego and Los Angeles counties, appeared as a witness before another in San Francisco during the week.

He called on Congress to set an example for private industry by stopping the discharge of pollutants into San Francisco Bay by federal facilities.

CLASSES An analysis of California's four most recent state administrations will make up a UCLA extension course this fall.

Twelve classes will be held on Wednesdays from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in room 2160 in Bunch Hall on the UCLA campus in Westwood. Sessions begin Sept. 24.

The administrations of Earl Warren, Goodwin Knight, Edmund G. Brown and Ronald Reagan will be explored. Political scientist Melvin H. Bernstein will serve as instructor.

POWER PLANTS Area Congressmen Craig Hosmer (R-Long Beach) and Chel Holifield (D-Montebello) have asked Gov. Ronald Reagan to set up a State Power Plant Siting Authority to make sure the state's electric utilities have room for needed expansion.

In a letter to the governor, the congressmen said electric power demands in California may be multiplied five times by the year 2000 and sites for generating stations are becoming critically short.

Both congressmen are members of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy and foresee difficulties in locating nuclear power plants in California due to earthquake faults and land shortage.

LUAU The Lakewood Democratic Club will hold its annual luau today at 4 p.m. at 4605 Arbor Road, Long Beach, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Wienberg.

There will be entertainment provided by the King Benny Navahi band. Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco is expected to be a guest. The public is invited.

BENEFIT

A fund-raising barbeque, sponsored by the Peace and Freedom Party, to benefit the Long Beach Free Clinic and the Long Beach Free Press, will be held at the home of Virginia Waters, 1485 La Perla Ave., on Saturday, Sept. 13, at 1 p.m.

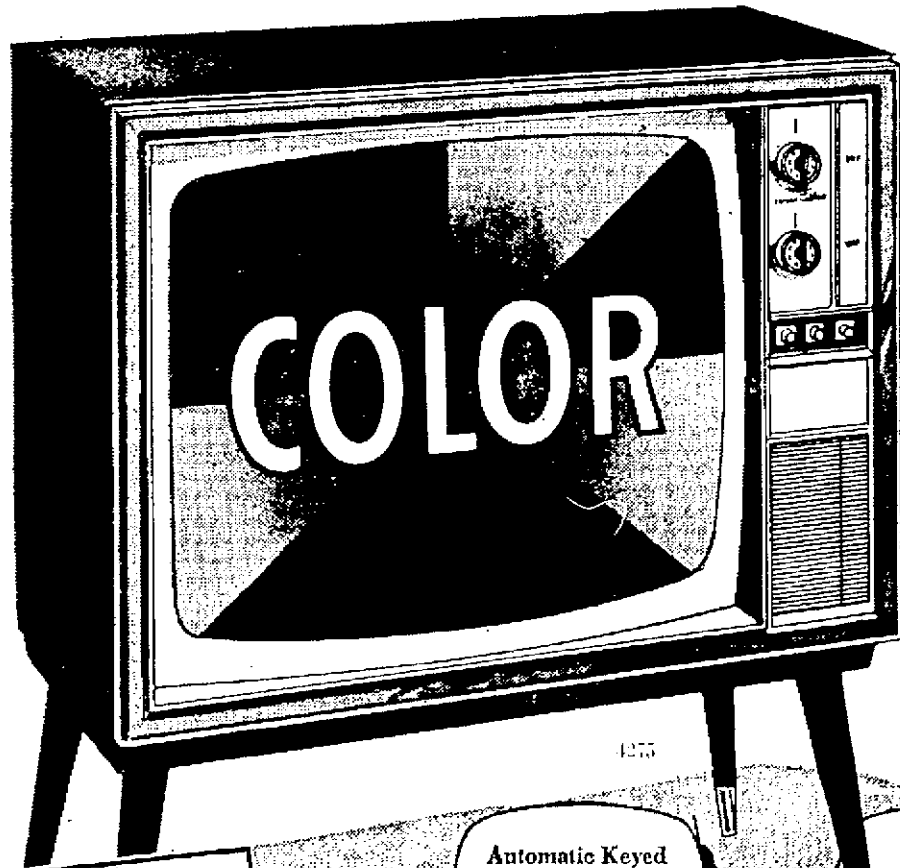

Donation to the affair, which will feature two folk-rock bands will be $2.50, a spokesman said.

FILM

A film titled "United Nations — Peace Dove Unmasked" will be shown by the South Bay Youth Film Forum at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the American South Bay American Opinion Library, 1532 Carson St., Torrance.

Von Braun, 3 Astronauts Among First 10 Named for Space Hall of Fame Honors

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dr. Werner von Braun and three astronauts were among the first 10 space pioneers named Saturday to the National Space Hall of Fame.

The astronauts chosen were Capt. Alan B. Shepard Jr. (USN), Col. John H. Glenn Jr., (USMC, ret.) and the late Lt. Col. Edward H. White.

Morgan J. Davis, president of the new hall in Houston, said tribute will be paid to the 10 men at the first annual awards dinner in the Albert Thomas convention center Sept. 27.

The honorees were:

—Braun, director of the Space Agency's Marshall Space Flight Center, leading authority in the field of rocket booster systems for space payloads.

—Rep. Albert Thomas of Texas, deceased, who dedicated the final years of his life to support of the nation's space effort.

—Shepard, chief of astronaut office, Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, and the first American to journey into space during a suborbital flight, May 5, 1961.

—White, the first astronaut to walk in space, June 3, 1965, and who died Jan. 27, 1967, in the flash fire of the Apollo 1 during a simulation countdown.

—Dr. Karl H. Debus, director, NASA John F. Kennedy Space Center.

—Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deceased, who served as deputy administrator of NASA. His work was prominent in the decision to mount a lunar exploration mission.

—Dr. Maxime A. Faget, director of engineering and development at the manned spacecraft center.

director, MSC, who directed flight crew selection and training and conduct of missions.

—Glenn, former astronaut, now president, Royal Crown Cola International, New York City, who flew the first manned orbital mission for the U.S., Feb.

Dr. Robert H. Goddard, deceased, who did basic research work in the use of rockets to power booster systems for launching payloads.

Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, will be the speaker for the dinner. Schriever, (USAF, Ret.), now chairman of the board of Schriever & McKee Associates, Inc.

familiar goldfish, ambles by, oblivious to the black-rubbered invaders."

I reach the rock now where we beforehand agreed to meet McComack for further instructions. Reluctantly I surfaced into the midst of giggles and exclamations.

"Some of you went entirely too fast through the kelp," McComack cautions, climbing onto the rock island. "Take your time or you're going to get caught in it."

The same seriousness of the classroom takes over and I remember the morning it all began.

We sat in rows of peeling green folding chairs — apprehensively — looking out of the glass wall of the school, located at the foot of Belmont Pier.

"The diver's worst enemy in the water is himself," he had begun, opening the four-week, 9:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. class. "Your thinking process is slower underwater because of environmental water pressure."

"Divers have to be in unbelievably good shape," he had said next. I looked at the flab riding my waist.

Later, we swam lengths of the pool with 10-pound weights, tread water with the same weights, swim underwater a length, floated 10 minutes. We got in shape.

The rest of that first class McComack had spent introducing us to the tools of our new trade — the air tank or "bubble machine," the wet suit, the snorkel, face mask, fins, flotation devices, buoyancy vests, weight belts and the buddy, the partner who you always dive with — your other chance.

While passers-by had pressed their noses against the school's glass wall, watching, we struggled with 40-pound air tanks, fins, masks.

McComack wanted to give us a glimpse of things to come so we met at the bottom of the pool to try out the equipment.

I found myself holding my breath, forgetting the rubber mouthpiece clenched between my teeth — my link with life. Like a piece of cork, I popped to the surface. I tried breathing through it in a familiar environment. It worked! I spent the rest of the class session breathing on the bottom of the pool.

During the class McComack had discussed various pressures the diver is subjected to at different depths. He had given us a problem to work out, using tables that tell divers what dives require decompression stops and the time on the surface required before a repetitive dive.

The second meeting had dealt with a series of diseases divers are subject to like air embolism or the bends.

The former, we learned, is caused by holding your breath while ascending. Symptoms are paralysis of extremities, loss of speech, unconsciousness and sometimes death. The latter results when a diver surfaces too fast. Skin rash, convulsions, unconsciousness result.

MALCOLM EPLEY

NEWSPEOPLE working the Sharon Tate et al murder case say they've never encountered such tight-lipped police policy. What information leakage has been permitted has been completely reversed in later "disclosures", which makes any kind of reports, official or scuttlebutt, suspect.

There are various theories. One is that the police fear any slight disclosure might compromise their efforts to identify and capture the murderers. That hardly justifies blotting out details of the murder scene, which the murderers know and must be sure the police know. (Still, in other cases, I have seen similar secrecy which made no sense at all.)

Another theory is that the police aren't saying anything about developments because all on that score is negative. Could be.

Many suppose, of course, that the law men are fearful that, by some hook or crook, anything given to the press might legally jeopardize the case they hope to press some day against somebody. In view of the peculiarities of modern court decisions this may be a valid reason for keeping mum.

In his current post as chief expeditor of the civil calendar backlog, Judge Francis last year settled 552 cases in chambers. At the going rate of four-plus trial days for each matter, the time saved adds up to 2,208 days. That is considerable accomplishment any time, but doubly valuable when case backlog is 2,430 as it is today. Chief Clerk Reynolds Newton estimated it will take about 10 years to dispose of this backlog at the current rate of 20 cases a month.

How does the settlement judge operate?

"I try to act like a dumb jury and tell people how the jury would react," he says.

The act not only beats retirement (he tried that for two months once) it is the second best job he's ever had.

"Of course the best job I had was shotgun messenger on the San Francisco-Barslow run. I should have stayed with Wells Fargo.

Those were the days . . . Never had to fire that shotgun once. I decided I didn't care to risk my neck for any shipment, including gold, and fortunately I never had to."

'Alternate House' Could Help Castaway Youth -- If Funded

By PRESTON REESE Staff Writer

Where do they go?

A 17-year old living on his own, jobless, broke.

An 18-year old girl, separated from her husband, unable to find work and unable to return home.

They're runaways, castaways, temporary dropouts from society — punished rather than helped.

Where do they go?

Right now: Juvenile Hall, where young people are held only to be released to the street again, or to a detention camp.

At present there are no facilities in Long Beach to help shelter the homeless, jobless youths whose numbers are growing in the city and throughout the country.

Some find a blanket and bed for the night at the homes of other young people through word of mouth referrals from those having had similar experiences. Others don't — they sleep in parks, on the beach, wherever they can find a place where police don't pick them up.

Mozelle Moore, a representative of the Youth Opportunities Center, 1318 Pine Ave., a state-funded youth employment office, is chairman of a newly formed committee of citizens who recognized this problem.

"Of every 100 youths seen at YOC, 20 have housing problems. We can't ignore or condemn them for being shiftless because their very presence here indicates they are trying to help themselves," Mrs. Moore said.

Plans for an "Alternate House," sponsored by the committee, have materialized thus far in the form of a two-story duplex at 1734 Linden Ave. which will serve as temporary housing for a maximum of 10 people.

The house itself is almost furnished. All that's missing are its 16 to 21-year old occupants and the money needed to run the house, which rents for $160 a month.

Until funding can be obtained, the committee is seeking pledges for rent, gas, water and electric bills. A middle-aged couple who will live in and act as house parents must also be paid. Until these pledges are found, the house cannot open. Alternate House will

Loan Crisis Forcing Students Out of College

By WALT MURRAY Staff Writer

Keith Grayson, 20-year-old business major at California State College at Long Beach, is getting painful, first-hand experience in the world of finance.

He's one of hundreds of CSLB students — and one of tens of thousands of students across America — whose schooling may be curbed by cuts in student loan funds and harder-to-get student bank loans.

Keith, who has relied on student loans to get through his first two years of college, fears he won't be able to return to State this fall unless he finds a new loan source.

Although Keith's handicapped father supports three children, the family's income is not low enough to be considered poverty-level. But there's not enough cash to put Keith through school, even though he works part-time.

It's low-middle income students like Keith who are in greatest financial need for next fall, says Donald A. Tisdale, CSLB financial aids officer.

"We're obligated to take care of the very poorest students first," Tisdale says. "This year there's just not enough left over for many needy students, no matter how good their grades are. We've already turned down more than 25 per cent of the students who would normally be eligible."

"More students will have to take full-time jobs next year, which is hardly conducive to study," Tisdale says.

"Some students will be forced out of school for financial reasons. We're very distressed about it. Every student should have the opportunity to attend a public college — with ability, not money, as the barrier."

Loans to graduate students, he says, are almost unavailable.

This summer's loan crisis comes from two main sources:

—A 30 per cent cut this year in federal monies allocated for student loans under the National Defense Education Act.

—Tightening of student loans from private banks under the federally-subsidized Guaranteed Bank Loan Program.

"We're going to have to turn down an increasing number of students who apply for NDEA loans," Tisdale says. "I have no way of knowing how many students the banks are turning down, but one bank no longer makes loans to freshmen and another makes loans only to students whose parents have large accounts."

"Even though the banks have the right to deny loans, they have a moral commitment to help needy students," Tisdale said. "The bankers urged the program be established three years ago because it was lucrative for them then."

He said the bank loan program — which catered more to middle-income students — was begun three years ago to take up the slack when taxpayers begin to balk at government education spending.

The government set an interest rate of 7 per cent, but prime interest rate is now 8.5 per cent and even higher for most loans, Tisdale says.

"The banks aren't taking a loss, but they're not making as much on student loans as other loans," Tisdale says. "It's the long pay-off time — which often stretches to 10 years — that bothers the banks most."

"There's two or three billion dollars in total student loans still out now and there's an increasingly tight money market this year," Tisdale says.

The crisis has become more complex because of increasing loan money needed for especially-recruited poverty-level students, most of them in the Educational Opportunities Program.

"These students must receive larger financial aid packages, which means fewer other students will get loans. The government urged us to actively recruit low-income, high-potential students, but hasn't given us the money to support them. We're worried whether we'll have enough money to support the EOP students we have now."

One windfall, he said, was a $93,000 first-time state budget for EOP at CSLB.

Another possible source of money is a newly-formed citizens' committee to raise funds for disadvantaged students at five state colleges in Southern California.

Tisdale hopes Congress will respond to a deluge of mail from students and parents and pass emergency appropriations for student loans next month.

Last year, he said, about 10 per cent of CSLB students received financial aid from some source.

That year 746 students had NDEA loans totalling $556,000. 238 had special grants totalling $163,000 and 884 received a half million dollars in work-study programs.

Only the work-study program is adequately funded this year, Tisdale said.

"I am a stranger in a strange land, an aquamarine land of..."

golds and silence; orange and peace."

It is a land of liquid where inhabitants neither demand nor expect anything, a land where no one needs little white pills or powder to float.

I am a scuba diver on my first underwater sightseeing trip off the coast of Santa Catalina Island. And though the big, white boat that brought me and 30 other students from Pacific Divers Supply Inc. is bobbing just 50 feet away, it is far enough away to belong to another world, a world of haste and noise; freeway and smog.

We students are following Instructor Paul McComack through a jungle of kelp which sways brilliant gold from the ocean floor 25 feet below.

The sun is piercing the water, sending sprays of brightness to further illuminate the treasures below.

A fish, looking very much the big brother of the familiar goldfish, ambles by, oblivious to the black-rubbered invaders.

I reach the rock now where we beforehand agreed to meet McComack for further instructions. Reluctantly I surfaced into the midst of giggles and exclamations.

"Some of you went entirely too fast through the kelp," McComack cautions, climbing onto the rock island. "Take your time or you're going to get caught in it."

The same seriousness of the classroom takes over and I remember the morning it all began.

We sat in rows of peeling green folding chairs — apprehensively — looking out of the glass wall of the school, located at the foot of Belmont Pier.

"The diver's worst enemy in the water is himself," he had begun, opening the four-week, 9:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. class. "Your thinking process is slower underwater because of environmental water pressure."

"Divers have to be in unbelievably good shape," he had said next. I looked at the flab riding my waist.

Later, we swam lengths of the pool with 10-pound weights, tread water with the same weights, swim underwater a length, floated 10 minutes. We got in shape.

The rest of that first class McComack had spent introducing us to the tools of our new trade — the air tank or "bubble machine," the wet suit, the snorkel, face mask, fins, flotation devices, buoyancy vests, weight belts and the buddy, the partner who you always dive with — your other chance.

While passers-by had pressed their noses against the school's glass wall, watching, we struggled with 40-pound air tanks, fins, masks.

McComack wanted to give us a glimpse of things to come so we met at the bottom of the pool to try out the equipment.

I found myself holding my breath, forgetting the rubber mouthpiece clenched between my teeth — my link with life. Like a piece of cork, I popped to the surface. I tried breathing through it in a familiar environment. It worked! I spent the rest of the class session breathing on the bottom of the pool.

During the class McComack had discussed various pressures the diver is subjected to at different depths. He had given us a problem to work out, using tables that tell divers what dives require decompression stops and the time on the surface required before a repetitive dive.

The second meeting had dealt with a series of diseases divers are subject to like air embolism or the bends.

The former, we learned, is caused by holding your breath while ascending. Symptoms are paralysis of extremities, loss of speech, unconsciousness and sometimes death. The latter results when a diver surfaces too fast. Skin rash, convulsions, unconsciousness result.

Next we had gone into what to do when faced with an eel, a sting ray, a sea lion, a killer whale, a shark.

During the course we covered everything from care of equipment, catching marine life and preparing it for the table, communicating under water to face mask clearing.

We were tested on all subjects.

This morning we were finally ready.

"See that rock over there," McComack is saying. "We'll cut across to there and then head back to the boat."

Again we descended into stillness and color.

A star fish with purples and blues and whites as sparkling as any gem cling to jutting rocks, strange plant life abounds along with a million other treasures more glittering and wonderful than the wonders of strange ports.

Suddenly a mass of grey appears on the horizon. A giant killer whale. It is. I know it has to be. I look again to make sure. A white ladder descends from "the whale."

In an instant I know it is the vessel which brought me to this strange land.

Hesitantly I begin the flight back into the old familiar world.

NEWSPEOPLE working the Sharon Tate et al murder case say they've never encountered such tight-lipped police policy. What information leakage has been permitted has been completely reversed in later "disclosures", which makes any kind of reports, official or scuttlebutt, suspect.

There are various theories. One is that the police fear any slight disclosure might compromise their efforts to identify and capture the murderers. That hardly justifies blotting out details of the murder scene, which the murderers know and must be sure the police know. (Still, in other cases, I have seen similar secrecy which made no sense at all.)

Many suppose, of course, that the law men are fearful that, by some hook or crook, anything given to the press might legally jeopardize the case they hope to press some day against somebody. In view of the peculiarities of modern court decisions this may be a valid reason for keeping mum.

Involved in all this, incidentally, is a principle not just concerned with satisfying public curiosity about a sensational case. Tight-lid secrecy makes it difficult if not impossible for the public to judge the efficiency and diligence of the men the taxpayers pay to enforce the law.

WE HAVE become accustomed in recent years to seeing obviously guilty persons go without punishment because of some "error" made by law enforcement people. In some cases procedures which never before were considered error are suddenly tabbed as improper by an appeals court.

On this issue, Sen. George Deukmejian of Long Beach, a candidate for attorney general, offered some comment the other day that makes solid sense. He said: "Releasing suspects because of a procedural error on the part of a law enforcement officer has dangerous consequences. It merely increases the disrespect for the law from all concerned. A criminal knows he stands a good chance of being acquitted on a technicality — the public sees this, too, and is concerned."

"Society should not be punished because of a procedural error by the police. The individual policeman should be punished for doing his job incorrectly." That's right. Punish the cop if he commits a technical faux pas, but it's an absurdity to consider that his error rights a wrong which some one else has committed against society.

With the high courts constantly thinking up new ways for the police and the trial courts to be wrong, it's a golden age for criminals and defense lawyers. But for law-abiding society, under siege from the greatest crime surge in U.S. history, it has another color.

IT'S SORT of scary going into a bank that smells strongly of smoke.

You may wonder if what little money you have in there may be in jeopardy.

So it was at Security Bank, First and Pine, Friday after fire gutted Di-Giorgi's restaurant, which adjoins the big Security Bldg. on the north. Plenty of smoke must have seeped through the fire walls.

"It doesn't mean we have money to burn," said one bank official, who may be thought I was going to ask for a loan.

Over the weekend, experts with special equipment were scheduled to go over the entire building on a smoke odor elimination project.

Good. In these precarious times, one feels better in a bank where the help is not red-eyed and weepy-looking.

Poor, always with us, can reduce ranks

THE POOR may always be with us, but the Nixon Administration has come up with the first proposal in a generation offering a reasonable opportunity to reduce their numbers.

President Nixon's "new federalism" ranks in importance with President Roosevelt's first proposals for a social security system in the mid-1930s. It is that 30-year-old system which has become in Nixon's words "cumbersome, unresponsive and ineffective," and ripe for replacement.

THE NEW DEAL programs were intended to help those poor people who, because of unemployment or other causes beyond their control, were temporarily in need. The New Federalism of President Nixon recognizes that the problems of the 1970s are different. Today, the problem is not the temporary poor. It is the permanent poor, those who are second and third generation welfare recipients. In principle, the New Federalism attempts to deal with their problem through a system of work programs and family allowance.

As a Syracuse University researcher, Warren Haggstrom, has pointed out, there is substantial question whether the problems of the poor primarily result from a lack of money. The rise in real per capita public welfare expenditures over the past decade have not had a demonstrated effect on the psychological functioning of welfare recipients.

THE NIXON PROPOSALS would attack that problem by a series of job training and work programs aimed at breaking the cycle of dependency; by abolishing the present "welfare mothers" system which has led to the breakup of families; by establishing child care centers, freeing mothers for work training, and by more federal job-training slots.

The emphasis on these work requirements is vital. It is needed to make the basic concepts of the plan acceptable to the middle-class Americans who will be paying the bills. The New Federalism does not come at bargain prices. It authorizes relief for 12,400,000 needy Americans who now get none. Its first-year cost is $4 billion more than is now being spent. The reforms proposed by President Nixon appear to be right for this time in this country. The old system no longer works, and its costs in increased delinquency, crime and the breakup of the family are intolerable in a nation as affluent and compassionate as the United States.

It's a man's law

EDITOR:

Of the hundreds of bills pressing on our legislators, none was more sorely destined to pass than the "no guilt", "be kind to the children" divorce bill.

Do women benefit from such a law? Definitely not — this is a man's law. Under this proposed law a woman's home will become a paper house. Do innocent partners benefit from this law? Hardly. Will this law "spare" the children? Not really. In fact, in the administration of this law, children will see innocent parents being repressed and disadvantaged while guilty parents are rewarded and protected.

Kindness in divorce does not lie in enforced pleasantness in the courtroom by forbidding expressions of suffering, or even hate. Catharsis is necessary by the time two people reach the divorce court. Children will be able to understand lashing out better than silencing. Where is the kindness in telling the child "Your world is dead, but it's nobody's fault"? He knows better. Children do not require perfection in parents in order to love them. It is not destructive, rather it is honest and constructive to say: "Your mother (or father) was nice to you, but she (or he) was not nice to the other parent, and is largely to blame for the home breaking up. Don't stop loving the guilty parent, but do understand and help and love the wronged parent."

Under this law every marriage will be completely at the mercy of the weaker and baser partner.

Speaking of puppets

EDITOR:

One need but look at the Nixon practice in respect to Vietnam to see the sharp contrast between his words and his deeds. It requires a profound contempt for the understanding of men to claim to respect the sovereignty and equal rights of men of all countries at a time when the military power of the United States is being used to destroy the Vietnamese people, and to impose on them as their government a clique of handpicked U.S. puppets.

Crying hustlers peddle 'mags' to poor

Violin spider

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission has quietly reopened an investigation, which it had abandoned in 1967, into magazine subscription salesmen.

Hustling subscriptions is an old racket, but it has mushroomed alarmingly in both volume and viciousness. Today, over 50 major sales organizations are peddling periodicals across the country. While many are legitimate, others will stop at nothing to make their sales.

They operate a multi-million-dollar business which specializes in high pressure, fast talk, deception and fraud. They laugh, cry and cajole; they plead, push and intimidate; anything to make a sale. They prey upon the simple, the senile and the serviceman. They are rotten to the centerfold.

CONSIDER these examples:

—Combat veteran Stan Garis of Kunkletown, Pa., taking a few days leave after six months in the Vietnam jungles, was waylaid at the Honolulu airport by two pretty American girls. They lured him into their car, explained sweetly that they were exchange students trying to win a trip to Europe. When he parted company with sugar-voiced Jacques Helgen and Michele Laurendeau, the soldier found himself $196 poorer and $349 in debt out of his GI pay to Publishers Continental Sales Corp., of Michigan City, Ind., for magazine subscriptions enough to last 12 years.

—Lonely, 80-year-old widower Burton Keiper of Long Pond, Pa., barely managed to exist on $97.60 a month in Social Security payments. A few weeks ago, two young girls knocked on his door and invited him to participate in a little contest. All he had to do, they said, was to pick some numbers. Joan Hutchins and Kathy Baugh of Stroudsburg, Pa., left with $53.50 of his meager subsistence. Keiper was left with a whopping "balance due" and subscriptions to Look and Parents magazines that would afford him reading pleasure into his 90th year.

—A newly-married Ohio serviceman stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., was fast-talked into $438.53 worth of magazine subscriptions he didn't want. The salesman threw in bonus gifts including a "deluxe" tabletop book stand (four pieces of stained wood), a large cook book, a two-volume medical encyclopedia, a dictionary, a gift subscription to Holiday magazine, and an illuminated picture of Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane. Yet bonus gifts are an outright violation of the magazine publishers' Code of Ethics. When the serviceman was sent to Vietnam, he received threats of demotion in military rank — another violation — if he didn't pay for the unwanted subscriptions. These methods were used by Franklin Reader's Service of Washington, D.C. — a bonded member of Central Registry, which administers the code.

—A 78-year-old Temple, Pa., woman was pounced upon by a magazine salesman in a housing project for the elderly. Confused by the high-pressure techniques, she signed for several subscriptions. She later suffered a severe heart attack and was hospitalized for four weeks. When she couldn't make the subscription payments, she was harassed by phone and served with a 48-hour legal notice. The company which resorted to such squalid action was Home Reader Service of Harrisburg, Pa., whose parent company is a member of Central Registry.

STATE AND LOCAL governments have passed assorted laws to stop the magazine pushers. Pennsylvania Rep. Fred Rooney has called for a congressional investigation, but still they push.

Some operate in flagrant disregard of the local laws. Others dance delicately around the fringes of the laws. Worst are the itinerants who know they won't be around by the time the slow-moving legal machine has worked up a head of steam.

The peddler-plagued state of Delaware, for instance, is bedeviled both by telephone solicitors and nomadic poachers who stop only long enough to make their kill.

"Sometimes these people have become threatening and insulting towards prospective customers," says Deputy Attorney General Jerome O. Herlihy. "In one case a young salesman was chased out of a house by the lady of the house who had to arm herself with a shotgun."

What do we (cough!) do next?

THE PROTECTION of natural resources is a primary obligation of government and the people. Seventy years ago the conservation movement received the inspiring leadership of Theodore Roosevelt. The 1970s demand the same kind of leadership to conserve our clean water and clean air.

We have learned how to stop soil erosion, and we're doing so. But we continue to pollute our air and our water. It has become a national emergency. It's time for America to stop, look, listen and act.

Each year, as I travel to cities across the nation, I see dirtier air and more polluted rivers and lakes.

Los Angeles frequently looks as if it is fogged in, with the visibility down to three miles or less because of the smog.

The magnificent Potomac River is so polluted that the people of Washington, D.C., cannot swim in it. In fact, some physicians recommend shots for anyone who accidentally falls into the Potomac. New York City, Philadelphia, Boston and many other cities do no better.

Cleveland not only has the fifth dirtiest air in the country, but the Cuyahoga River there is so filled with industrial wastes that it actually is a fire hazard. A recent blaze caused enough damage to prove this is no joke.

SO MANY human and industrial wastes have been dumped into Lake Erie that some biologists think that great body of water is irreversibly becoming inert; one day no life at all will exist in the lake. Ten billion gallons of industrial wastes are poured into Lake Erie every day. The same is increasingly true of Lake Ontario and Lake Michigan, and even the great Lake Superior is threatened by industrial waste.

But this is only the obvious pollution. We have entered an era of deadlier, more invisible pollutants, and we are only beginning to grasp what the long-term effects of pesticides and thermal pollution might be.

HUBERT HUMPHREY

Accumulations of DDT already are hurting fish and birds. DDT does not break down. It is dispersed to all corners of the earth. We just don't know what subtle carcinogenic, hormonal, or genetic effects it might finally have on man.

Nuclear power plants require vast quantities of water for cooling purposes. These plants are springing up all over the nation; it is estimated that eventually most of the water flowing into the vast Chesapeake Bay will have been heated 10 to 20 degrees above normal water temperature. We have not yet been able to calculate what damage this heated water will cause aquatic life.

Must we continue to diminish the natural resources of this fragile planet? The answer is no. We can clean up our dirty air and water, but it will cost money. We can prevent further pollution, but it will take leadership from business and government.

LOOK AT air pollution. It wasn't until 1955 that the federal government even began to research into the causes and effects of dirty air. It wasn't until 1963 that small grants became available for starting air pollution control programs. And it wasn't until 1967 that the federal government finally moved to suggest standards and spark programs to prevent further air pollution.

In most cities, air pollution is continuing to get worse. The number of cars is increasing even faster than population. Automobile exhaust is full of carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons, and gases and other particles that, together with sunlight, make photochemical smog.

Air pollution injures people, kills and injures plants, attacks clothing and building materials. The cost of America is estimated at $12 billion a year. The cost in especially dirty cities may go as high as $200 per person per year.

To stop this, the federal government spent the totally inadequate sum of $20 million during the 1952-60 years. The clean air act of 1963 and the air quality act of 1967 dramatically increased federal efforts to clean up dirty air and prevent further pollution.

Authorizations to clean up the air were increased to $74 million last year. Another $423 million was authorized for 1968-70 for air pollution control efforts.

Beginning in the 1968 model year, auto emission standards were set and then were tightened for 1970 model cars. Air pollution control regions are being set up all across the country.

THE SAME sort of federal initiative has been taken to control water pollution. Congress first acted in 1949 to help in the building of sewage treatment plants. But the investment through 1960 was held to $50 million a year. The problem continued to get worse.

Further action is needed to control oil and thermal pollution. The House and Senate both passed bills last year, but could not reconcile their differences. The House again passed a bill in April, but the Senate has not acted.

Strong leadership from the White House is absolutely essential in the fight against both air and water pollution. So far it has not been given.

The Nixon administration is failing to protect our air and water resources. It is providing no moral or material leadership. The hard-won programs of the past eight years are in danger of being starved.

Therefore, Congress must take the lead. The House and Senate should ask the President to call national conferences on air and water pollution to help set new directions for the 1970s. We should take the lead in the United Nations to promote stronger international standards.

If the Nixon administration is not forced to act, most Americans will be trapped in cities of gray, dirty air and oozing, befouled rivers. The well-to-do will be able to escape to the seashore, but most Americans will have to stay home and suffer.

Poor, always with us, can reduce ranks

THE POOR may always be with us, but the Nixon Administration has come up with the first proposal in a generation offering a reasonable opportunity to reduce their numbers.

President Nixon's "new federalism" ranks in importance with President Roosevelt's first proposals for a social security system in the mid-1930s. It is that 30-year-old system which has become in Nixon's words "cumbersome, unresponsive and ineffective," and ripe for replacement.

THE NEW DEAL programs were intended to help those poor people who, because of unemployment or other causes beyond their control, were temporarily in need. The New Federalism of President Nixon recognizes that the problems of the 1970s are different. Today, the problem is not the temporary poor. It is the permanent poor, those who are second and third generation welfare recipients. In principle, the New Federalism attempts to deal with their problem through a system of work programs and family allowance.

As a Syracuse University researcher, Warren Haggstrom, has pointed out, there is substantial question whether the problems of the poor primarily result from a lack of money. The rise in real per capita public welfare expenditures over the past decade have not had a demonstrated effect on the psychological functioning of welfare recipients.

THE NIXON PROPOSALS would attack that problem by a series of job training and work programs aimed at breaking the cycle of dependency; by abolishing the present "welfare mothers" system which has led to the breakup of families; by establishing child care centers, freeing mothers for work training, and by more federal job-training slots.

The emphasis on these work requirements is vital. It is needed to make the basic concepts of the plan acceptable to the middle-class Americans who will be paying the bills. The New Federalism does not come at bargain prices. It authorizes relief for 12,400,000 needy Americans who now get none. Its first-year cost is $4 billion more than is now being spent. The reforms proposed by President Nixon appear to be right for this time in this country. The old system no longer works, and its costs in increased delinquency, crime and the breakup of the family are intolerable in a nation as affluent and compassionate as the United States.

Crying hustlers peddle 'mags' to poor

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission has quietly reopened an investigation, which it had abandoned in 1967, into magazine subscription salesmen.

Hustling subscriptions is an old racket, but it has mushroomed

JACK

alarmingly in both volume and viciousness. Today, over 50 major sales organizations are peddling periodicals across the country. While many are legitimate, others will stop at nothing to make their sales.

They operate a multi-million-dollar business which specializes in high pressure, fast talk, deception and fraud. They laugh, cry and cajole; they plead, push and intimidate; anything to make a sale. They prey upon the simple, the senile and the serviceman. They are rotten to the centerfold.

CONSIDER these examples:

—Comal veteran Stan Garis of Kunkletown, Pa., taking a few days leave after six months in the Vietnam jungles, was waylaid at the Honolulu airport by two pretty American girls. They lured him into their car, explained sweetly that they were exchange students trying to win a trip to Europe. When he parted company with sugar-voiced Jacques Holgelien and Michele Laurendeau, the soldier found himself $196 poorer and $349 in debt out of his GI pay to Publishers Continental Sales Corp., of Michigan City, Ind., for magazine subscriptions enough to last 12 years.

—Lonely, 80-year-old widower Burton Keiper of Long Pond, Pa., barely managed to exist on $97.60 a month in Social Security payments. A few weeks ago, two young girls knocked on his door and invited him to participate in a little contest. All he had to do, they said, was to pick some numbers. Joan Hutchins and Kathy Baugh of Stroudsburg, Pa., left with $53.50 of his meager subsistence. Keiper was left with a whopping "balance due" and subscriptions to Look and Parents magazines that would afford him reading pleasure into his 90th year.

—A newly-married Ohio serviceman stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., was fast-talked into $438.53 worth of magazine subscriptions he didn't want. The salesman threw in bonus gifts including a "deluxe" tabletop book stand (four pieces of stained wood), a large cook book, a two-volume medical encyclopedia, a dictionary, a gift subscription to Holiday magazine, and an illuminated picture of Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane. Yet bonus gifts are an outright violation of the magazine publishers' Code of Ethics. When the serviceman was sent to Vietnam, he received threats of demotion in military rank — another violation — if he didn't pay for the unwanted subscriptions. These methods were used by Franklin Reader's Service of Washington, D.C. — a bonded member of Central Registry, which administers the code.

—A 78-year-old Temple, Pa., woman was pounced upon by a magazine salesman in a housing project for the elderly. Confused by the high-pressure techniques, she signed for several subscriptions. She later suffered a severe heart attack and was hospitalized for four weeks. When she couldn't make the subscription payments, she was harassed by phone and served with a 48-hour legal notice. The company which resorted to such squalid action was Home Reader Service of Harrisburg, Pa., whose parent company is a member of Central Registry.

STATE AND LOCAL governments have passed assorted laws to stop the magazine pushers. Pennsylvania Rep. Fred Rooney has called for a congressional investigation, but still they push.

Some operate in flagrant disregard of the local laws. Others dance delicately around the fringes of the laws. Worst are the itinerants who know they won't be around by the time the slow-moving legal machine has worked up a head of steam.

The peddler-plagued state of Delaware, for instance, is bedevilled both by telephone solicitors and nomadic poachers who stop only long enough to make their kill.

"Sometimes these people have become threatening and insulting towards prospective customers," says Deputy Attorney General Jerome O. Herlihy. "In one case a young salesman was chased out of a house by the lady of the house who had to arm herself with a shotgun."

It's a man's law

EDITOR:

Of the hundreds of bills pressing on our legislators, none was more surely destined to pass than the "no guilt," "be kind to the children" divorce bill.

Do women benefit from such a law? Definitely not — this is a man's law. Under this proposed law a woman's home will become a paper house. Do innocent partners benefit from this law? Hardly. Will this law "spare" the children? Not really. In fact, in the administration of this law, children will see innocent parents being repressed and disadvantaged while guilty parents are rewarded and protected.

Kindness in divorce does not lie in enforced pleasantness in the courtroom by forbidding expressions of suffering, or even hate. Catharsis is necessary by the time two people reach the divorce court. Children will be able to understand lashing out better than silencing. Where is the kindness in telling the child "Your world is dead, but it's nobody's fault." He knows better. Children do not require perfection in parents in order to love them. It is not destructive, rather it is honest and constructive to say: "Your mother (or father) was nice to you, but she (or he) was not nice to the other parent, and is largely to blame for the home breaking up. Don't stop loving the guilty parent, but do understand and help and love the wronged parent."

Under this law every marriage will be completely at the mercy of the weaker and baser partner.

Speaking of puppets

EDITOR:

One need but look at the Nixon practice in respect to Vietnam to see the sharp contrast between his words and his deeds. It requires a profound contempt for the understanding of men to claim to respect the sovereignty and equal rights of men of all countries at a time when the military power of the United States is being used to destroy the Vietnamese people, and to impose on them as their government a clique of handpicked U.S. puppets.

"It's still too late," she said, "this country has kept the blacks in slavery for 350 years."

"When you were at all those fancy schools," he said irritably, "didn't you learn that slavery goes back centuries and that Africans were trading slaves long before the whites got there? What happened was that the British, French, Dutch, Spanish, Portuguese, even the Scandinavians bought slaves from black traders. Slavery went to the Caribbean and came to the American colonies late. When those maritime nations lost their colonies, they lost the problem.

"That 350-year stuff is a cliché," he continued. "The Negro who lives today can't help what happened back then and neither can I. It's now that counts. Every white person in this country can do something in his own life to help Negroes. If you really mean it, why don't you work in an anti-poverty center or join VISTA or the Peace Corps?"

That wasn't her style, she said thoughtfully. Besides, it is "too late." She liked "bumming around" and would ski in Sun Valley next winter. "A cop-out," the newsmen said righteously. "The only way to help people is to do it. You only complain and won't take responsibility. Masochism is cowardly."

"It's too late," she said firmly. "We can't talk any more. Your views are too different. You're in another generation. There's no point in talking."

End politics in judge appointment

UNDER OUR PRESENT system any vacancy in a state court is filled by appointment by the governor. After appointment the new judge holds office until the term expires, when he must stand for election. But if no candidate opposes him he is automatically elected without appearing on the ballot. In practice this means the appointed judge has a lifetime job. It has been a good system. But it is one in which politics can be the major factor in the appointment. It is not based on selection of men who are always the best qualified.

In many cases a governor has paid off political debts — or appointed close friends who may not measure up to the experience, qualifications and standing in the legal profession that should be present in all appointments. For several years it has been advocated that the governor be restricted in each appointment to a list of three candidates recommended by the State Bar Association. This would mean the state wide association would have the responsibility of choosing outstanding men in the profession regardless of politics.

GOVERNOR REAGAN has called for the legislature to take such action to restrict his powers in judicial appointments. But the members of the legislature have refused to do so. The inference is that each member has hopes that one of his own constituents would be chosen. This is especially true of members of the party in power.

State Sen. George Deukmejian, majority floor leader and candidate for state attorney general, in a letter to the State Bar Association called for placing the recently defeated Judicial Merit Selection Amendment on the state ballot for voter consideration at the next election and goes on to say: "Similar bills, all strongly backed by Governor Reagan, have been de-

What bad news should be censored to give everyone only good news?

DURING THE moist-brow, finger-clutching days of the Second World War there was always the reassuring voice of the radio announcer, Gabriel Heatter. "Alh, there's good news tonight," he would begin.

Then he would soothe everybody with accounts of the bloody Battle of the Bulge, the earthquake in Turkey and the inevitable famine in Armenia.

Gabriel came to mind when the latest issue of Editor & Publisher reported the newest reaction to the perpetual claim that newspapers are concerned only with lust, crime, violence and juvenile delinquency and can't be bothered with good news.

THE MIAMI NEWS published all editions for one day without stories of violence. Even the comics were censored.

Says E. & P.: "The editors were sorely tested because the biggest story in weeks — a Miami fugitive sought for murdering a policeman was captured in a shootout — broke that day." But the editors held to their non-violent pledge.

Editor Sylvan Meyer concluded: "This de-emphasis of violence for this one day may demonstrate that we, as readers, would not receive from our paper an accurate and complete picture of the world around us if the paper practiced such deliberate selectivity every day and tried to shield us from reality."

ON FRIDAY, AUG. 15, a congressional hearing on dangerous drugs was held at the new Federal Office Building in Los Angeles. There were so much testimony, so many statistics, such an abundance of news this reporter may have failed to make some points completely clear.

The witnesses established — at least to the committee's satisfaction — that stringent regulations are going to have to be imposed by Congress on the exportation of drugs; that the drugs are going to Mexico — or as far as the border, anyway — and then finding their way into the hands of smugglers and being returned to the United States for illicit sale; and that some big name drug makers bear a moral responsibility in all this because they are shipping drugs south of the border in such unrealistic quantities they must know something's going on.

THE SPECIAL MEANING given some words at the hearing also created misunderstanding. By "dangerous drugs" the committee did not mean heroin and the like. It meant amphetamines, stimulants, and barbiturates, depressants.

California Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch said more than 12,000 pounds were seized last year.

"This is over six tons," he said. "It is estimated some 17 million pills were contained in the seizures. The preponderance tested out to be high quality, not counterfeits and not home laboratory products."

"And this," commented Rep. John V. Tunney, committee chairman, "is just the tip of the iceberg."

LITTLE HAS BEEN known about the effects of these pills, Rep. Richard T. Hanna, a committee member said. He set about finding out, consulting the National Institute of Mental Health and others.

"Heavy doses of amphetamines can produce a temporary mental derangement requiring hospitalization," he said. "The syndrome is characterized by a paranoid state accompanied by auditory and visual hallucinations. Long term heavy users are usually irritable and unstable while abrupt withdrawal can result in deep, suicidal depressions."

"Large doses of barbiturates produce an effect that resembles alcoholic drunkenness. Perceptions are distorted and reactions and responses are slowed down. The ability to think, concentrate, or work is lessened. Often there is confusion, slurred speech and staggering. Emotional control is weakened and users may become irritable, angry and aggressive until they finally fall into a deep sleep."

IN THE ARGOT of the user, a former addict testified, the pills are known as uppers, downers, goofballs, bennies and speed. Just how many are excessive depends on the individual, he said. At one time, he added, he was taking 30 a day.

The addict's appearance introduced a curious note of pathos into the proceedings. His light frame, his trem-

'Daddy, what is a prevailing wage?'

From Our L. A. Bureau

BACK IN 1967-'68 about 335 top county job holders didn't get any salary increases for a year, and Judge William Levitt of the Superior Court is worried about that. The judge mentioned something called "prevailing wages" and has ordered the Board of Supervisors to pay these executives the raises they didn't get two years ago.

And what, then, are prevailing wages? The phrase is in the county charter, in a rule saying the supervisors must pay a man at least as much as he could earn in the same job in private industry.

For years this requirement has confounded everybody, apparently, but superior court judges.

If you are hiring a carpenter or painter or plumber, there is no problem. All you have to do is find out the union scale. But how do you figure prevailing wages for a deputy sheriff or a fireman or a social worker?

THE COUNTY Economy and Efficiency Committee has done some arithmetic in this field, and maybe somebody ought to tell it to the judge. The committee says that for about half the county's employees, you can't pay prevailing wages. There are no jobs in private industry like theirs.

But those who draw up salary ordinances are resourceful characters, and they found a way. They decided a deputy sheriff ought to get what a Los Angeles policeman gets, and a county fireman the same pay as a city fireman, and a social worker . . . A social worker?

Well, here it's a little harder. There are no city social workers. But the budget makers, undaunted, came up with an idea. All you have to do, they said, is look to other counties — San Francisco, usually — for clues. None of this answers the description of what the charter calls prevailing wages, but if you don't keep your eyes on it too long, it does seem reasonably close.

THE ONLY THING wrong with the system is that while the county is watching the city, the city is watching the county. And what do you suppose they're doing up in San Francisco?

Of course, the judge could say one of these arguments applies to executives, because executives are one thing you can always find in private industry. All you have to do is compare Chief Administrative Officer

London Hollinger with the president of General Motors.

Well, there's an answer to that one, too.

In General Motors the men in the top jobs have to show a profit. If they hire too many people and the profit evaporates, they're likely to wind up outside on their ass.

The more people Hollinger and the other high priests of county government get on the payroll, the bigger the administrative salaries. They don't have to watch expenses. The money for the jobs doesn't come out of profits. It comes out of taxes.

IN 1967 a consulting firm, Theodore Barry & Associates, did a survey and, Judge Levitt says, "it included findings as to prevailing salaries in private industry with respect to county executives . . . The board took no action thereon . . ."

One of Barry's findings was that Hollinger, who was then getting $35,000 a year, should have got $11,500 more. In all, the study reported, department heads and other high ranking officials in 1967-'68 were underpaid $547,000. The average pay raise for these upperdogs then would have been more than 10 per cent.

The figures are important, because that's what Judge Levitt's order could cost the taxpayers of Los Angeles County.

L. A. C. SAYS

End politics in judge appointment

By L. A. COLLINS Sr.

UNDER OUR PRESENT system any vacancy in a state court is filled by appointment by the governor. After appointment the new judge holds office until the term expires, when he must stand for election. But if no candidate opposes him he is automatically elected without appearing on the ballot. In practice this means the appointed judge has a lifetime job. It has been a good system. But it is one in which politics can be the major factor in the appointment. It is not based on selection of men who are always the best qualified.

In many cases a governor has paid off political debts — or appointed close friends who may not measure up to the experience, qualifications and standing in the legal profession that should be present in all appointments. For several years it has been advocated that the governor be restricted in each appointment to a list of three candidates recommended by the State Bar Association. This would mean the state wide association would have the responsibility of choosing outstanding men in the profession regardless of politics.

GOVERNOR REAGAN has called for the legislature to take such action to restrict his powers in judicial appointments. But the members of the legislature have refused to do so. The inference is that each member has hopes that one of his own constituents would be chosen. This is especially true of members of the party in power.

State Sen. George Deukmejian, majority floor leader and candidate for state attorney general, in a letter to the State Bar Association called for placing the recently defeated Judicial Merit Selection Amendment on the state ballot for voter consideration at the next election and goes on to say: "Similar bills, all strongly backed by Governor Reagan, have been defeated three years running in the legislature." Deukmejian said that he had wholeheartedly supported the legislative proposals and was disappointed at this most recent defeat.

"Had the Grunsky Bill passed, we would have assured the people of California that future judges would be appointed primarily on the basis of merit and competence. At the present time, California has an outstanding judicial system; our judges are of the highest quality, and exhibit great competence. But, as the appointive system now stands, some future governor would be able to appoint judges solely on the basis of politics. This would not be in the best interests of the people of California.

"THREE YEARS of hard work on the part of myself and other supporters of this plan literally have been wasted, and this at a time when confidence in our court systems is waning. If we can ever hope to restore confidence in our judicial systems by the great mass of people, it will be through a system of selection on the basis of ability and achievement rather than party affiliation."

Deukmejian said that he is confident that if given a choice on the ballot, "the people of California will overwhelmingly support this proposal. It is the feeling of those of us in the legislature who supported the bill, and also of Governor Reagan, that competence and not politics should be the basis for selecting our judges in California. In so far as the legislature as failed to endorse this plan, I am calling on the California Bar Association to summon its forces and get this measure on the ballot at the next election."

If the bar association favors the change, as it has indicated, it now faces the obligation of sponsoring such a measure to be placed on next year's ballot. In my opinion it would be public service for the association to accept that responsibility because it is probable the measure would be enacted by a large vote.

What bad news should be censored to give everyone only good news?

DURING THE moist-brow, finger-clutching days of the Second World War there was always the reassuring voice of the radio announcer, Gabriel Heatter. "Ah-h, there's good news tonight," he would begin.

Then he would soothe everybody with accounts of the bloody Battle of the Bulge, the earthquake in Turkey and the inevitable famine in Armenia.

Gabriel came to mind when the latest issue of Editor & Publisher reported the newest reaction to the perpetual claim that newspapers are concerned only with lust, crime, violence and juvenile delinquency and can't be bothered with good news.

THE MIAMI NEWS published all editions for one day without stories of violence. Even the comics were censored.

Says E. & P.: "The editors were sorely tested because the biggest story in weeks — a Miami fugitive sought for murdering a policeman was captured in a shootout — broke that day." But the editors held to their non-violent pledge.

Editor Sylvan Meyer concluded: "This de-emphasis of violence for this one day may demonstrate that we, as readers, would not receive from our paper an accurate and complete picture of the world around us if the paper practiced such deliberate selectivity every day and tried to shield us from reality."

During May, 1969, the Fort Worth Press and Star-Telegram, a study shows, devoted 21,336½ column inches to the activities of young people under 25. Of the total, 16,910½ were classified good news, 4,034 bad and 342 neutral. Even higher percentages

Jr. High Parents Fight Half-Day Session Plan

Carson's unfinished Curtiss Junior High School, already plagued by a heavy equipment operators strike, now centers in a parent group's decision to fight a school administration plan for temporary half-day sessions.

The $3.2-million school was to be completed for a Sept. 15 opening, but the strike has destroyed any chance of an on-time opening.

School administrators propose to put the 1,550 Curtiss students and the 1,550 students of nearby Carnegie Junior High School on double-day sessions at the Carnegie campus.

Parents have objected -- decrying reduced instruction time under the administration plan, which would be operative for six to 10 weeks.

Leaders of 40 protesting parents met last week with Robert H. Reinhard, Harbor Area administrative coordinator for Los Angeles City Schools. Since they have been holding door-to-door meetings with their neighbors.

One parent contended, "If the school isn't finished until six to 10 weeks after classes begin, our children will lose between 36 and 60 hours of class time."

Reinhard answered, "We would hope they would make it up at home. He said most of the lost time would be supervised study time, the end of a period used by teachers for homework assignments. Reinhard suggested parents make sure children study at least 1 1/4 hours per day at home."

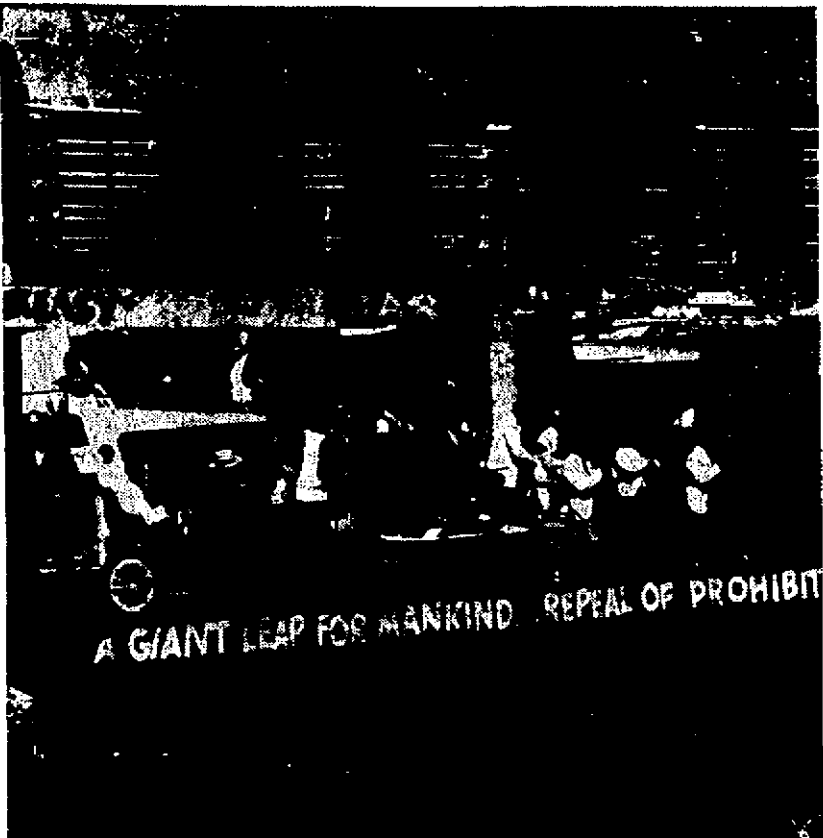

While the heavy equipment operators' strike was primarily blamed for the delay in completion of the 53-classroom school, other factors were also cited.

Another speaker, Ken Ingraham, asked if anything could be done to utilize morning hours for Curtiss students and afternoons for Carnegie students. Ingraham, president of the Homeowners of Leadership-Dominguez, suggested field trips for the periods.

Under the administration plan, Carnegie students will go to school from 7:30 a.m. to 12:48 p.m. Curtiss students will use the same classrooms from 11:30 a.m. to 4:46 p.m.

The Carnegie lunch hour would coincide with the first Curtiss class period and the Curtiss lunch period, with the last Carnegie class.

Reinhard said the 1,550 Curtiss pupils cannot be sent to schools they would have attended had the new school not been built. Portable classrooms, he said, were moved to other overcrowded areas.

CHARACTER BOATS Zany Craft Win Newport Prizes

Newporters, who admit that playing is not only fun but a full-time occupation, did it again Saturday afternoon with their Character Boat Parade.

The annual water-borne spoof of just about everything that's happened lately or long ago played to in-counted thousands lining the miles of shoreline on mainland, peninsula and islands.

Highest draw was the moon landing, of course; one craft was full of "moon men" who put a "do not disturb" sign on the moon and invited "Yankees Go Home" with another. It won the "Dirty Old Manifold" award, only one of several zany honors put out.

ANOTHER FLOAT detailed man's flight from biplane to Apollo 11, and aboard it was a replica of the Wright Brothers' craft. It won the "Memorable Moments" theme award.

But the biggest laugh was a parody on it all. In one float's view of things, "A giant leap for mankind" was the repeal of prohibition — and a jazz band and dancing girls in a speakeasy told the story. The "Drippy Stuffing Box Award" went for that layout.

Pirates were there with beard and sword. And so was a white whale, astride which perched a shapely girl.

OTHER ODD-BALL awards honored the zany craft and the characters aboard them. Among them were: "The 'Ancient Mariner'" award, to a craft by that name and depicting an ancient mariner; the "Wheel, Steam and Bell" award, to the African Queen; the "Loose Screw" award to the Island Princess; the "Bilgy Binnacle" trophy to Polly's Polly, and the "Big Toot" to a tug done up like Little Toot.

GOOD JOB IF YOU LOVE NATURE

Violators, Fawns Catch Warden Eye

By ROBIN PAXTON Staff Writer

Compassion for animals, a gentle spirit, a watchful eye and a stern hand at law enforcement: that's what game wardens are made of.

They must know detailed characteristics of hundreds of species of animals protected in California, be photographers, public relations officials and public speakers.

They inspect crates of imported animals at the airport, drop into pet shops to check for illegal possession of certain wildlife, and patrol country, mountain and desert roads for hunters out of season.

They pick up badgers, raccoons, foxes, deer, desert tortoises in the city and release them in the wilds.

They pick up out-of-season hunters in the wilds, and bring them to court in the city.

GAME WARDEN Richard S. Novotny, who lives in Long Beach, but works a territory reaching all the way to the Ventura County line, is an expert in all these areas.

Five years of experience as warden in Los Angeles County have taught Novotny the wily ways of poachers, importers and pet shop owners trying to outsmart Department of Fish and Game regulations.

"People think we're ogres when we tell them they can't possess certain animals. They don't realize that we protect these animals from being kept in captivity for human safety as well as to maintain the balance of nature," Novotny explained.

"Certain wild birds, for example, are threatened with extinction. If they're kept in pet shops and homes, they're unable to reproduce, and we'll lose the species altogether."

"Dangerous fish, such as piranha, are highly marketable times. Pet shops pay about two cents apiece for them, then sell them for $5. Trouble is, those little devils are lethal. A three-inch piranha can tear your hand apart."

Novotny specializes in protection of exotic animals and has found there is no limit to the ingenuity of pet shop owners trying to harbor and sell illegal animals.

"AS I WALK in the front door of the shop an attendant walks out the back with a tankful of fish. Or they pour dye into the tank so you can't see what's in there."

Following a tip that a local pet store was selling piranha, Mrs. Novotny and the couple's three children, Mary Anne, 14; Bill, 12; and Linda, 8, went in to see if they could buy one.

"They had them all right," Mrs. Novotny chuckled, "and when I bought one I asked for a receipt. The owner looked a little nervous and said, 'Well, we don't really like to do that. The fish are illegal, you know, but the warden's never given me any trouble.' It was all the kids could do to control themselves!"

Novotny also spends entire afternoons at Los Angeles International Airport inspecting crates of imported animals. If illegal animals are found the ordering agency can send them back without punishment. If the animals are removed from the airport grounds, however, Novotny has to track them down and cite the owner.

"YOU JUST NEVER know what will be in those crates," Novotny said. "Some airlines refuse to transport snakes, for example, so the shippers mark the crates with something else. I've gotten bitten a couple of times because of that."

"Some people get very emotional when you try to prevent the importation of these exotic animals. There's a lot of money involved in the animal business, and the more exotic the animal, the more money a dealer can get for it. One man I cited for illegal possession threatened to kill me."

But there are rewards to the job, as well.

"If you love nature and enjoy being alone this is a good job," Novotny said, as we climbed into the Santa Monica mountains to release a fox which had been brought that day to the Long Beach Animal Shelter.

As he maneuvered along the bumpy dirt fire road, covering deer tracks with Ford tracks, and scanned the silent mountainsides, it was easy to tell he was at home.

"I ALWAYS TRY to set animals free where I know they'll find food and water — and far enough out of town so they won't end up in someone's backyard." He stopped the car, pulled the boxed fox out of the backseat, set it on the ground and opened the lid.

In a flash, one beautiful little fox had disappeared into home territory.

"This was no new experience for Novotny but he looked pleased, as if it were the first animal he had seen run free."

But he also must spend long hours late at night tracking poachers in those mountains.

"We don't dare use headlights—they're a dead giveaway," Novotny explained, "so we have to kind of feel our way around these dirt roads."

And as they "feel their way," they must keep a sharp lookout for bullet shells, recently kicked-up dust and spotting lights used by hunters to locate herds of deer.

"THE SUBJECT of deer is dear to the hearts of the Novotnys right now, as they currently are harboring two small fawns until they can be released to the wilds."

Neil, named after singer Neil Diamond, was found in a burned-out house and taken to an animal shelter. Tagalong was a anonymous "gift" to another animal shelter.

The Novotnys realize it is a violation of Fish and Game Department regulations to keep the fawns and they are practicing what they preach constantly to others never to do.

Mrs. Novotny even took Tagalong to her daughter's elementary school to explain to the children why they must never take wild animals away from their natural homes.

"But we really had no choice," apologized pretty, blonde Anne Novotny. "There are no facilities for caring for these little fellows, and the zoo doesn't want them. They have too many already."

"AND THEY were so young and weak when we got them, they never would have survived had we left them on their own. They didn't even know how to eat."

"The trouble is," said the concerned warden, "people see these irrestable babies out in the woods, and either can't resist bringing one home for the kids, or think the mother has deserted them."

Mrs. Moore said "hopefully, the house will shelter youths with the intent of entering them into the labor market."

"After they begin their first job, they will be expected to contribute some part of their paycheck toward the upkeep of Alternate House. This will continue until they are finally self-sufficient in a home of their own."

in 1961 after four years handling civil pretrials. The job evolved from an impasse in a complicated roller coaster injury case in 1959. When attorneys for both sides finally agreed they might be able to work things out if they could talk in chambers to another judge, the case was sent to Judge Francis who settled it. From this came discussions and then the creation of the job he has fulfilled since the new courthouse opened.

Most of his cases are personal injury, a few are contracts, and once in a while a divorce. They are referred from the master calendar if both sides want to talk settlement, and he also has a regular calendar of cases where attorneys have asked for a conference prior to trial.

The judge recalls among his most interesting cases one where a pretty young woman lost the tip of her nose when she got too close to a biting dog. Plastic surgery, however, actually improved her appearance and when the defendant offered to settle the judge advised her: "I think you should accept. No jury would look at a lovely thing like you and agree that you have suffered enormous damage."

Jr. High Parents Fight Half-Day Session Plan

Carson's unfinished Curtiss Junior High School, already plagued by a heavy equipment operators strike, now centers in a parent group's decision to fight a school administration plan for temporary half-day sessions.

The $3.2-million school was to be completed for a Sept. 15 opening, but the strike has destroyed any chance of an on-time opening.

School administrators propose to put the 1,550 Curtiss students and the 1,650 students of nearby Carnegie Junior High School on double-day sessions at the Carnegie campus.

Parents have objected—decriing reduced instruction time under the administration plan, which would be operative for six to 10 weeks.

Leaders of 40 protesting parents met last week with Robert H. Reinhard, Harbor Area administrative coordinator for Los Angeles City Schools. Since, they have been holding door-to-door meetings with their neighbors.

One parent contended, "If the school isn't finished until six to 10 weeks after classes begin, our children will lose between 36 and 60 hours of class time."

Reinhard answered, "We would hope they would make it up at home. He said most of the lost time would be supervised study time, the end of a period used by teachers for homework assignments. Reinhard suggested parents make sure children study at least 1 1/2 hours per day at home."

While the heavy equipment operators' strike was primarily blamed for the delay in completion of the 53-classroom school, other factors were also cited.

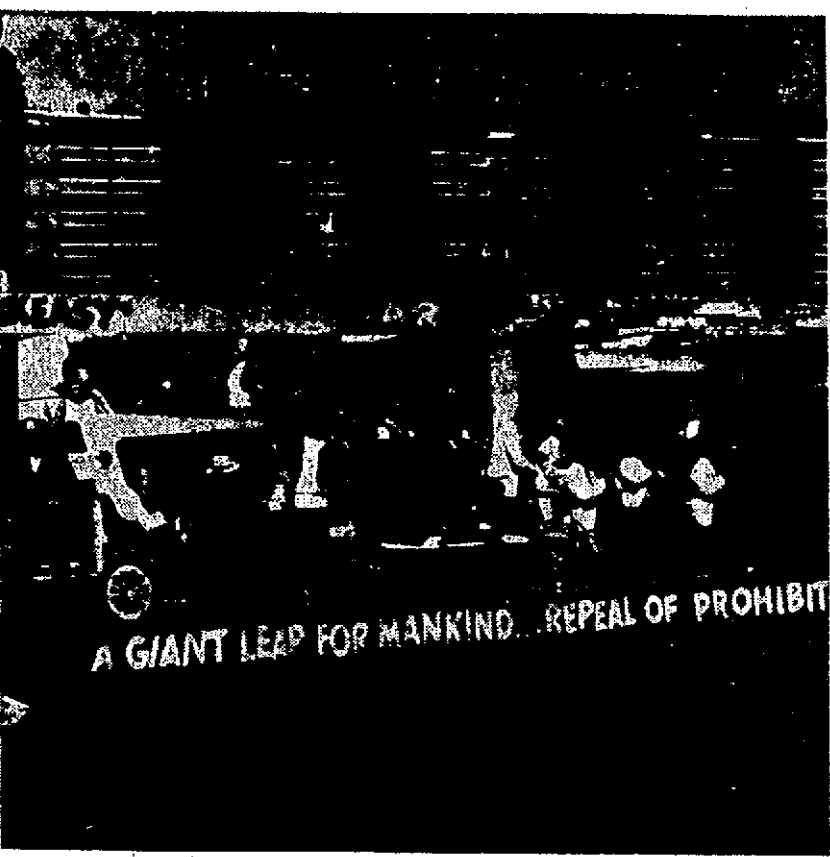

Another speaker, Ken Ingraham, asked if anything could be done to utilize morning hours for Curtiss students and afternoons for Carnegie students.

Ingraham, president of the Homeowners of Leadership-Dominguez, suggested field trips for the periods.

Under the administration plan, Carnegie students will go to school from 7:30 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Curtiss students will use the same classrooms from 11:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

The Carnegie lunch hour would coincide with the first Curtiss class period and the Curtiss lunch period, with the last Carnegie class.

Reinhard said the 1,550 Curtiss pupils cannot be sent to schools they would have attended had the new school not been built. Portable classrooms, he said, were moved to other overcrowded areas.

CHARACTER BOATS

Zany Craft Win Newport Prizes

Newporters, who admit that playing is not only fun but a full-time occupation, did it again Saturday afternoon with their Character Boat Parade.

The annual water-borne spoof of just about everything that's happened lately or long ago played to uncounted thousands lining the miles of shoreline on mainland, peninsula and islands.

Biggest draw was the moon landing, of course; one craft was full of "moon men," who put a "do not disturb" sign on the moon and invited "Yankees Go Home" with another. It won the "Dirty Old Manifold" award, only one of several zany honors put out.

ANOTHER FLOAT detailed man's flight from biplane to Apollo 11, and aboard it was a replica of the Wright Brothers' craft. It won the "Memorable Moments" theme award.

But the biggest laugh was a parody on it all. In one float's view of things, "A giant leap for mankind" was the repeal of prohibition — and a jazz band and dancing girls in a speakeasy told the story. The "Drippy Stuffing Box Award" went for that layout.

Pirates were there with beard and sword. And so was a white whale, astride which perched a shapely girl.

OTHER ODD-BALL awards honored the zany craft and the characters aboard them. Among them were: The "Ancient Mariner" award, to a craft by that name and depicting an ancient mariner; the "Wheel, Steam and Bell" award, to the African Queen; the "Loose Screw" award to the Island Princess; the "Blugy Binnacle" trophy to Polly's Folly, and the "Big Toot" to a tug done up like Little Toot.

GOOD JOB IF YOU LOVE NATURE

Violators, Fawns Catch Warden Eye

By ROBIN PAXTON
Staff Writer

Compassion for animals, a gentle spirit, a watchful eye and a stern hand at law enforcement: that's what game wardens are made of.

They must know detailed characteristics of hundreds of species of animals protected in California, be photographers, public relations officials and public speakers.

They inspect crates of imported animals at the airport, drop into pet shops to check for illegal possession of certain wildlife, and patrol country, mountain and desert roads for hunters out of season.

They pick up badgers, raccoons, foxes, deer, desert tortoises in the city and release them in the wilds.

They pick up out-of-season hunters in the wilds, and bring them to court in the city.

den's never given me any trouble. It was all the kids could do to control themselves!"

Novotny also spends entire afternoons at Los Angeles International Airport inspecting crates of imported animals. If illegal animals are found the ordering agency can send them back without punishment. If the animals are removed from the airport grounds, however, Novotny has to track them down and cite the owner.

"YOU JUST NEVER know what will be in those crates," Novotny said. "Some airlines refuse to transport snakes, for example, so the shippers mark the crates with something else. I've gotten bitten a couple of times because of that."

"Some people get very emotional when you try to prevent the importation of these exotic animals. There's a lot of money involved in the animal business, and the more exotic the animal, the more money a dealer can get for it. One man I cited for illegal possession threatened to kill me."

Alternate House will hold an "open house shower" Sept. 7 at 2 p.m. to introduce the house to the community and to inform the public of the conditions existing at Alternate House and the goals the committee seeks to accomplish.

GAME WARDEN Richard S. Novotny, who lives in Long Beach, but works a territory reaching all the way to the Ventura County line, is an expert in all these areas.

Five years of experience as warden in Los Angeles County have taught Novotny the wily ways of poachers, importers and pet shop owners trying to outsmart Department of Fish and Game regulations.

"People think we're ogres when we tell them they can't possess certain animals. They don't realize that we protect these animals from being kept in captivity for human safety as well as to maintain the balance of nature," Novotny explained.

"Certain wild birds, for example, are threatened with extinction. If they're kept in pet shops and homes, they're unable to reproduce, and we'll lose the species altogether."

"Dangerous fish, such as piranha, are highly marketable times. Pet shops pay about two cents apiece for them, then sell them for $5. Trouble is, those little devils are lethal. A three-inch piranha can tear your hand apart."

Novotny specializes in protection of exotic animals and has found there is no limit to the ingenuity of pet shop owners trying to harbor and sell illegal animals.

"AS I WALK in the front door of the shop an attendant walks out the back with a tankful of fish. Or they pour dye into the tank so you can't see what's in there."

Following a tip that a local pet store was selling piranha, Mrs. Novotny and the couple's three children, Mary Anne, 14; Bill, 12; and Linda, 8, went in to see if they could buy one.

"They had them all right," Mrs. Novotny chuckled, "and when I bought one I asked for a receipt. The owner looked a little nervous and said, 'Well, we don't really like to do that. The fish are illegal, you know, but the warden's never given me any trouble. It was all the kids could do to control themselves!"

Novotny also spends entire afternoons at Los Angeles International Airport inspecting crates of imported animals. ## It's a Tough Switch From Medic to Marine

"You have to be an expert in staying alive, so you can keep the Marines in your unit alive." That phrase is being hammered daily into Navy hospital corpsmen at the Marines' Field Medical School at Camp Pendleton.

For Hospitalmen 2.C. Bob Hocter and Joe Carr the pace has been blistering. They had to make a swift adjustment from the world of crisp whites and antiseptic order from the past 18 months aboard the USS New Jersey.

Turning a corpsman into a nonabrasive part of a Marine unit is not easy. For most the field school is the first taste of what combat is like.

A bullhorn screamed into the afternoon heat. "Move, Doc, move! Stay there and you're dead. Move! Move! Move!"

"Cease fire. They're all dead. Form up over here."

Sheepishly Hocter and Carr's patrol began to rise. Now their drill instructor, two-time Vietnam veteran S/Sgt. Ed Snipes, would re-explain the muffed tactics.

Next time they would do better. They had to.

Rapidly the students become proficient in first aid, minor surgery, patient sorting, helicopter evacuation, field sanitation and personal hygiene.

In a brief five-week period Hocter and Carr will literally become Marines — in thinking, skills and reaction.

Southland Aerospace Leads Rest in State Fair Exhibits

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

SACRAMENTO — Southland aerospace know-how dominates the theme exhibits in the 1969 renewal of the California State Fair here.

Three buildings are devoted to exhibits involving America's vitality in aeronautics and space exploration with North American Rockwell's Apollo lunar capsule and McDonnell Douglas' Thor-Agena workhorse rocket among the primary stars of the show, which runs through Sept. 9 at the Cal Expo grounds located in the northern reaches of the state capital.

NOT EVEN the U.S. Air Force — a major contributor to the State Fair's aerospace exhibition — can match either the number or the spectacle of the Southland exhibits.

In addition to "Charlie Brown," the lunar capsule that paved the way for the historic first steps on the moon by Apollo 11, the North American display includes a mockup of the X-15 — part airplane, part rocket ship — and a restored P-51 Mustang, one of World War II's most reliable aircraft.

The McDonnell Douglas exhibit merely opens with its 3-story-tall Thor-Agena rocket. Also on view from the Long Beach firm is a model of the DC-10 jumbo jet, shown in size comparison with such other Douglas products as the DC-9, the "Stretch" 61 super jet, the F4-B Phantom jet fighter-bomber, and the revolutionary short take-off transport plane, the STOL 210.

'Hair' Warning

TOKYO (AP) — Police have warned the producers of a Japanese version of the musical "Hair" that the actors will have to keep some clothes on because "there is a law in the country that prohibits going naked in public."

THERE ARE other Southland products in this aerospace exhibit — the state is calling its 1969 program "A Moon-age State Fair" — including some from companies with Southern California branches. The facsimile of the Mobile Quarantine Facility used to house Apollo 11 astronauts following their return from moon strolling, a product of the Airstream Trailer Company, was built in Ohio although the company has its West Coast plant at Cerritos. The 35-foot MQF was one of the top drawing cards on opening day here Friday.

Within the scope of the comprehensive, 3-building display, visitors may chart the history, successes and progress of American achievements in space. From the Air Force's OV-1 (the first military orbital craft) through a wide range of other space vehicles — the exhibition is thorough and exciting. It may be poor judgment to say so but the display is also highly educational.

IN COMPANY with the permanent state arts display, an encompassing trailer review and the normal (or super-normal) appliances of most state fairs — rides, dining facilities and other attractions — the aerospace display gives the 1969 State Fair an "in step with the times" aura. Publicists of the fair are predicting that the fair will break prior attendance marks easily, perhaps before two-thirds of its 18 days have passed. It has the attractions to accomplish this feat.

Southland Aerospace Leads Rest in State Fair Exhibits

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

SACRAMENTO — Southland aerospace know-how dominates the theme exhibits in the 1969 renewal of the California State Fair here.

Three buildings are devoted to exhibits involving America's vitality in aeronautics and space exploration with North American Rockwell's Apollo lunar capsule and McDonnell Douglas' Thor-Agena workhorse rocket among the primary stars of the show, which runs through Sept. 9 at the Cal Expo grounds located in the northern reaches of the state capital.

NOT EVEN the U.S. Air Force — a major contributor to the State Fair's aerospace exhibition — can match either the number or the spectacle of the Southland exhibits.

In addition to "Charlie Brown," the lunar capsule that paved the way for the historic first steps on the moon by Apollo 11, the North American display includes a mockup of the X-15 — part airplane, part rocket ship — and a restored P-51 Mustang, one of World War II's most reliable aircraft.

The McDonnell Douglas exhibit merely opens with its 3-story-tall Thor-Agena rocket. Also on view from the Long Beach firm is a model of the DC-10 jumbo jet, shown in size comparison with such other Douglas products as the DC-9, the "Stretch" 61 super jet, the F-4 Phantom jet fighter-bomber, and the revolutionary short take-off transport plane, the STOL 210.

'Hair' Warning

TOKYO — Police have warned the producers of a Japanese version of the musical "Hair" that the actors will have to keep some clothes on because "there is a law in the country that prohibits going naked in public."

THERE ARE other Southland products in this aerospace exhibit — the state is calling its 1969 program "A Moon-age State Fair" — including some from companies with Southern California branches. The facsimile of the Mobile Quarantine Facility used to house Apollo 11 astronauts following their return from moon strolling, a product of the Airstream Trailer Company, was built in Ohio although the company has its West Coast plant at Cerritos. The 35-foot MQF was one of the top drawing cards on opening day here Friday.

Within the scope of the comprehensive, 3-building display, visitors may chart the history, successes and progress of American achievements in space. From the Air Force's OV-1 (the first military orbital craft) through a wide range of other space vehicles — the exhibition is thorough and exciting. It may be poor judgment to say so but the display is also highly educational.

Jefferson Airplane Members Sentenced

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three members of the Jefferson Airplane rock and roll group have been given suspended sentences on charges of possessing marijuana.

Criminal Court Judge Bernard Bagert handed down the sentences Friday to John W. Cassidy, 26; Charles W. Cassidy, 29, and Mary A. Mayer, 21.

Satellite Launched

VANDENBERG — An Air Force-industry team launched a satellite employing a Titan 3B Flash Agena Combination rocket here Saturday.

purtenances of most state fairs — rides, dining facilities and other attractions — the aerospace display gives the 1969 State Fair an "in step with the times" aura. Publicists of the fair are predicting that the fair will break prior attendance marks easily, perhaps before two-thirds of its 18 days have passed. It has the attractions to accomplish this feat.

Court Order Halts Picketing

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court injunction halting picketing at Vancouver International Airport was granted the department of Transport Saturday. Airport officials said 100 striking Oil Workers Union pickets were dispersing, and air traffic was returning to normal.

The strikers set up picket lines around the busy airport early Saturday, canceling flights and causing confusion among passengers and workers.

STUDENTS PACE THEMSELVES

CSLB Learning Center Works!

It works! And the word is beginning to get around at Long Beach City College.

"It" is the new Learning Improvement Center, located in the Library building on the liberal arts campus. This is the place where 240 Psychology 1 students voluntarily put in 5,000 hours of extra time last spring in various "self-paced review" programs devised by William D. McGrath, psychology instructor and director of the center.

The results? For students who spent the average number of hours in the Center program, final grade distributions in Psychology 1 were as follows: A's, 45 per cent; B's, 26 per cent; C's, 20 per cent; D's, 5 per cent; and F's, 1 per cent. Comparable grade distributions in a "normal" grade curve would approximate 6 per cent A, 24 per cent B, 40 per cent C, 24 per cent D and 6 per cent F.

For the first time this fall, auto-tutorial programs in basic English and mathematics will be added to existing self-paced review and multi-sensory learning programs. An enrollment of about 700 students is expected in the L.I.C. program this fall compared with 240 during the spring.

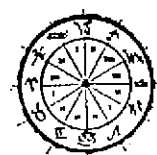

ASSIGNED TO the center parttime this fall to work with McGrath in further development of English and mathematics review programs will be Ann Fitzgerald of the English Department and John K. Lenhart of Mathematics-Engineering.

Also due for expansion this fall is a tutorial service manned by volunteers from Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, and other tutorial personnel. Some 40 tutors will be available covering just about every subject area, and a substantial increase is expected over the 150 students enrolled for tutorial services last spring.

Says William G. Millington, LBCC's dean of instruction, "This is one of the most exciting and successful experiments we have ever attempted."

"There are other schools with more elaborate equipment and facilities for learning centers — but we have Bill McGrath. Thanks to his dedication and creative innovations, the LBCC learning improvement program is unquestionably among the most effective of its kind in the entire country."

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your Birthday today: The keyword for the coming year is peace. A permanent base can be established now for later expansion. If necessary, your chart is at a maximum; put it to best use. Friends should be handled with extreme conservatism. Today's natives often have psychic gifts; those who write for a living are going to have a most exciting year.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Family and close associates will give you a puzzle to ponder all day. A simple answer can resolve a complicated home problem. Your hospitality brings more love than you imagine.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Control the most creative, experimental phase of your work. Personal concerns may have somewhat sidetracked your attention from job goals. Give it more thought.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Unforeseen delays or the whims of older associates complicate today. Take advantage of any interruption to seek sound medical advice.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Continue along strongly individualistic lines now. News arrives from all over. Take a brief rest, give your system a chance to catch up.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): Unexpected success. Be confident to your own ideas or working conditions, break usual habits. New interests can open new paths for you, particularly where women and children are involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your ambitions and intuition must lead today; logic will miss the more important goals. Friends do not have the supplies you need. Define charges due up sentimental liberation. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Novelty takes your eye today. Try out whatever seems sound enough to hold together for the excitement. One of those days in which everybody chimes in with happy coronation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21): General trends favor you and your affairs. Romantic interests flourish brightly. Just remember to keep your 100 going in good order while you enjoy rich personal life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New luck turns your way. Take it all in stride. Add to savings. There may be the chore of entertaining "friends of friends" tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The stable approach is the only way to success today. Spring your ideas one at a time, and just enough to keep the series going. Ideas about some hobby may turn into new ventures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Personal affairs hold your main attention today. Family problems may exist, but can be resolved somewhat with a few words of reassurance. Romantic interests thrive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Nothing planned this morning comes to pass the day you should it. It is just as well for the picture would not have fit any of the scenarios by the time it comes off.

3 Killed in Oxnard

A Buena Park youth and two others were killed when the car in which they were riding went out of control and crashed onto a rocky beach near Oxnard Saturday, critically injuring a fourth person.

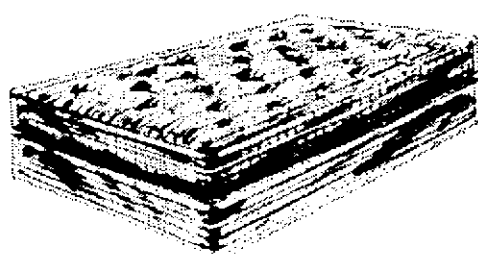

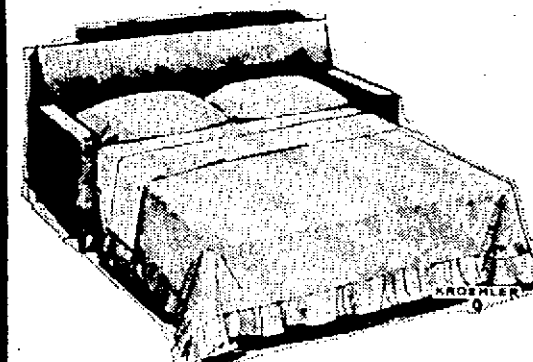

Dead were Mario Castro, of Buena Park, and Los Angeles residents Salvador Rivera, 16, and Karl Mesler, 17, driver of the car. Juan Molina, 21, of Oxnard, was critically injured.

The speeding car hit a bridge abutment on Highway 1 near Sycamore Canyon and sailed 100 feet through the air before crashing onto the beach 30 feet below, California Highway Patrol officers said.

It took nearly 90 minutes for firemen to cut the victims from the wreckage, officers reported.

STUDENTS PACE THEMSELVES CSLB Learning Center Works!

It works! And the word is beginning to get around at Long Beach City College. "It" is the new Learning Improvement Center, located in the Library building on the liberal arts campus. This is the place where 240 Psychology 1 students voluntarily put in 5,000 hours of extra time last spring in various "self-paced review" programs devised by William D. McGrath, psychology instructor and director of the center. The results? For students who spent the average number of hours in the Center program, final grade distributions in Psychology 1 were as follows: A's, 45 per cent; B's, 26 per cent; C's, 20 per cent; D's, 5 per cent; and F's, 1 per cent. Comparable grade distributions in a "normal" grade curve would approximate 6 per cent A, 24 per cent B, 40 per cent C, 24 per cent D and 6 per cent F.

For the first time this fall, auto-tutorial programs in basic English and mathematics will be added to existing self-paced review and multi-sensory learning programs. An enrollment of about 700 students is expected in the L.I.C. program this fall compared with 240 during the spring.

ASSIGNED TO the center parttime this fall to work with McGrath in further development of English and mathematics review programs will be Ann Fitzgerald of the English Department and John K. Lehnert of Mathematics-Engineering.

Also due for expansion, this fall is a tutorial service manned by volunteers from Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, and other tutorial personnel. Some 40 tutors will be available covering just about every subject area, and a substantial increase is expected over the 150 students enrolled for tutorial services last spring.

Says William G. Millington, LBCC's dean of instruction, "This is one of the most exciting and successful experiments we have ever attempted."

"There are other schools with more elaborate equipment and facilities for learning centers — but we have Bill McGrath. Thanks to his dedication and creative innovations, the LBCC learning improvement program is unquestionably among the most effective of its kind in the entire country."

NEW SEAL BEACH RESERVOIR FROM FREEWAY

Seal Beach's Reservoir Covered With Huge Tent

By BOB SANDERS Staff Writer

Approaching it on the San Diego Freeway it looks like a great, light tan circus tent or the top half of a gigantic Easter egg sticking out of the ground.

It is, of course, neither.

It is the new City of Seal Beach reservoir, built at a cost of $820,000 to provide for the city's water needs now and for the next ten years.

The reason it looks so different is a modern innovation in reservoir covers, which the city decided to use after months of intensive study.

MOST MODERN reservoirs are covered with a concrete or steel roof to prevent contamination or evaporation of the water.

Not Seal Beach's, though.

It is covered with a gigantic tent, made of a special nylon-vinyl fabric held up above the water surface by 2 1/2 pounds per square foot of air pressure.

The 50,000 square-foot cover weighs about two tons and is held up by air pressure built up by two 1 1/2-horsepower motors attached to the pumps.

Engineers estimate that, if both pumps were turned off, it would take a full 24 hours before the cover would settle to the water surface.

City Manager Lee Risner is pretty proud of the city's new reservoir and cites it as another example of the "forward look" the city uses in planning for the future.

THE NEW reservoir has a capacity of 3.6 million gallons of water and is supplied mainly by a 900-foot deep well drilled right at the site.

Water from another city well as well as the Metropolitan Water District can also be pumped directly into the reservoir.

The project was financed jointly by the city of Seal Beach and the federal government. The city provided $460,000 from revenue bonds and its general fund and the Department of Housing and Urban Development provided the other $360,000.

The entire project included a 4,000 gallon-per-minute pumping station and approximately three miles of 18-inch and 22-inch water mains.

Assistant City Engineer Bill Murphy points out that storing water in the new reservoir, with its nylon-vinyl cover, costs only about 3 cents a gallon, as compared with the 5 to 10 cents it would cost in a steel and concrete covered reservoir.

THE RESERVOIR itself is 14-foot deep and lined with a 3/32nd-inch sheet of rubber laid on a loose rock foundation to prevent leakage.

But the cover is the most impressive part of the reservoir—at least to the San Diego Freeway motorists.

It is strong enough to be walked on.

In fact, last week, traffic on the freeway was slowed just slightly by two men, one with a camera, stomping around on the air-filled gargantuan half-a-balloon.

Walking across the top gives a sensation similar to the one a person gets in an old-fashioned Fun House where the boards under your feet move up and down under your feet.

It is even more fun with another person walking, because you feel his footsteps as you walk.

It was proposed to Murphy that the city use it as an amusement attraction for the small fry of the city but he didn't think it would be too good.

"The walls are a little slop on the sides," he said. "I'm afraid we might lose a few."

Atlas Gets Variance to Use Trailer Office

Atlas Fabricators, Inc., was given a special permit last week by the Planning Commission to use a trailer as a temporary office for the American Electric Co., which leases from the Atlas firm.

Ben Wadsworth, representing Atlas Fabricators, said the trailer is "better than the housing we front against," and pointed out that it would be between two buildings, and thus hidden from outside view.

COMMISSIONERS received one letter of protest, from Ronald M. Bishop, 2808 Cade St., expressing opposition to any special permit for the company.

"I consider the manufacture of napalm in large quantities as too hazardous to be located in such close proximity to residential areas as this is," Bishop wrote.

"Having neither the time nor the inclination to be a crusader," Bishop added, "I feel it is the duty and responsibility of the city officials to see that operations of this kind are not permitted to become a hazard to the community."

WADSWORTH told commissioners, however, that the Long Beach Fire Department agrees that "napalm is not a fire hazard, not dangerous," as it is manufactured at the plant.

L.B. Pays Water Bill

The highest monthly bill ever received by the Long Beach Water Department from the Metropolitan Water District was ordered paid Thursday by the local Water Commission.

C. Kenyon Wells, general manager of the Long Beach department, said the $185,597 bill for July represented the largest ever for the city from MWD, and reflected the recent rate increase by the district.

Long Beach now is paying $49 an acre-foot for Colorado River water, delivered by the MWD. The rate went into effect July 1. The city previously had been paying $43 an acre-foot.

Wells earlier had told commissioners the MWD rate will go up to $53 an acre-foot at the end of this fiscal year.

NEW SEAL BEACH RESERVOIR FROM FREEWAY

Seal Beach's Reservoir Covered With Huge Tent

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

Approaching it on the San Diego Freeway it looks like a great, light tan circus tent or the top half of a gigantic Easter egg sticking out of the ground.

It is, of course, neither.

It is the new City of Seal Beach reservoir, built at a cost of $820,000 to provide for the city's water needs now and for the next ten years.

The reason it looks so different is a modern innovation in reservoir covers, which the city decided to use after months of intensive study.

MOST MODERN reservoirs are covered with a concrete or steel roof to prevent contamination or evaporation of the water.

Not Seal Beach's, though.

It is covered with a gigantic tent, made of a special nylon-vinyl fabric held up above the water surface by 2 1/2 pounds per square foot of air pressure.

The 50,000 square-foot cover weighs about two tons and is held up by air pressure built up by two 1 1/2-horsepower motors attached to the pumps.

Engineers estimate that, if both pumps were turned off, it would take a full 24 hours before the cover would settle to the water surface.

City Manager Lee Risner is pretty proud of the city's new reservoir and cites it as another example of the "forward look" the city uses in planning for the future.

THE NEW reservoir has a capacity of 3.6 million gallons of water and is supplied mainly by a 900-foot deep well drilled right at the site.

Water from another city well as well as the Metropolitan Water District can also be pumped directly into the reservoir.

The project was financed jointly by the city of Seal Beach and the federal government. The city provided $468,000 from revenue bonds and its general fund and the Department of Housing and Urban Development provided the other $362,000.

The entire project included a 4,000 gallon-per-minute pumping station and approximately three miles of 18-inch and 22-inch water mains.

Assistant City Engineer Bill Murphy points out that storing water in the new reservoir, with its nylon-vinyl cover, costs only about 3 cents a gallon, as compared with the 5 to 10 cents it would cost in a steel and concrete covered reservoir.

THE RESERVOIR itself is 14-feet deep and lined with a 3/32nd-inch sheet of rubber laid on a loose rock foundation to prevent leakage.

But the cover is the most impressive part of the reservoir — at least to the San Diego Freeway motorists.

It is strong enough to be walked on.

In fact, last week, traffic on the freeway was slowed just slightly by two men, one with a camera, stomping around on the air-filled gargantuan half-a-balloon.

Walking across the top gives a sensation similar to the one a person gets in an old-fashioned pin house where the boards under your feet move up and down under your feet.

It is even more fun with another person walking, because you feel his footsteps as you walk.

It was proposed to Murphy that the city use it as an amusement attraction for the small fry of the city but he didn't think it would be too good.

"The walls are a little steep on the sides," he said. "I'm afraid we might lose a few."

Atlas Gets Variance to Use Trailer Office

Atlas Fabricators, Inc., was given a special permit last week by the Planning Commission to use a trailer as a temporary office for the American Electric Co., which leases from the Atlas firm.

Ben Wadsworth, representing Atlas Fabricators, said the trailer is "better than the housing we front against," and pointed out that it would be between two buildings, and thus hidden from outside view.

COMMISSIONERS received one letter of protest, from Ronald M. Bishop, 2808 Cade St., expressing opposition to any special permit for the company.

"I consider the manufacture of napalm in large quantities as too hazardous to be located in such close proximity to residential areas as this is," Bishop wrote.

"Having neither the time nor the inclination to be a crusader," Bishop added, "I feel it is the duty and responsibility of the city officials to see that operations of this kind are not permitted to become a hazard to the community."

WADSWORTH told commissioners, however, that the Long Beach Fire Department agrees that "napalm is not a fire hazard, not dangerous," as it is manufactured at the plant.

EARL WILSON

Carol Uses Crutches After Surgery

Hollywood — Carol Burnett showed me her operation. On her foot. "They call it Morton's Toe," she said, thrusting her bare foot forward as she sat curled up in a chair in a provocative beach outfit at her summer snuggery here at Malibu Beach. "I've got to get my other foot done next year. Oh, I know it sounds terribly glamorous. But it's not uncommon. Athletes get it" — she flashed me a warning look — "BUT IT'S NOT ATHLETE'S FOOT!" She had been swinging around on crutches here, which made it a little difficult to act as mother of three daughters and step-mother of Joe Hamilton's assorted eight. "But now I can wear a closed shoe" — and she's warming up for her third year hosting a variety series for CBS TV, a job a lot of wises thought was too much for her.

AS THREE TO FIVE children seemed to be taking swimming lessons in a pool right up against the windows, while a couple of writers were bowing goodbye after a story conference, Carol said, "I'm just shocked that we're on for three seasons."

"I don't think they were too thrilled about me doing it the first year. The odds were against us . . ."

But she and Joe Hamilton made the pieces fit, didn't they? One explanation is that Carol bubbles enthusiasm about her crew — Vicki Lawrence ("She wrote me a fan letter, that's how it started") and Lyle Waggoner ("We wanted a good-looking leading man. He walked into the office and four secretaries fainted. He's so handsome you think he's got to be a drunk or nasty or conceited but he's sweet and professional. His wife'll see an armoire or something she likes and he'll go home and make it.")

And Harvey Korman, "He's our Emmy winner."

Harvey is my pet. Working with him, it's not work."

Between work, she and Joe Hamilton dream up other work.

"We're thinking of a special on 'The Ugly Duckling.'"

"I would be the klutzy princess whose parents can't stand her. Down at the local pond she meets the local duck who's got a rope around his neck writing a suicide note . . . Oh, I love fairy tales!"

CAROL WAS president of Merv Griffin's fan club in 1950 when she was still in school. She believes the first TV she did in New York was for Paul Winchell. Later she was on the Buddy Hackett show. She has an excellent reputation for remembering those who were her friends in the earlier days.

"Censors," she said, "are like dentists." She did a sketch about nudists. A question was asked: "How do nudists dance?" The answer: "Very carefully."

"The censors didn't like that. They said, 'what do you say we make that 'cheek to cheek'?' We did and it got a roar."

At Carol and Joe's other home, the once-upon-a-time Harry James and Betty Grable house, they still have the model A 1929 Ford that Jim Nabors gave them.

"I'll always have it," she promised.

"When Joe drives it and it backfires, the kids all yell, 'Daddy's home!' It really sounds like St. Valentine's Day in Chicago. The poor parking boys at Chasen's and the Bistrò can't start it. They don't know how it works. And we go 'pluh, pluh, pluh' past the Jet Set and the Rollies. It's kind of reverse snobism, like me going into Bonwit Teller in Levis."

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP IN N.Y. . . . Glenn Ford, who just made captain in the Naval Reserve, will appear in the "Two Jims" movie — as the Naval Commander who took over after it was secured . . . Honey Merrill, who broke off with Jackie Gleason, is seeing singer Dick Roman . . . There's a play being written for Henry Youngman, "The Mayor of Hubblub" . . . Burt Lancaster's film, "The Gypsy Moth," will get a White House showing . . . The Julie Andrews-Rock Hudson movie, "Darling Lili," in production for a year, is finally set to open next spring.

Bill Cosby'll have 15-year-old singer Julie Budd in his Las Vegas International show . . . George Roy Hill, director of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," flew an antique plane coast to coast in a race with a car — and lost; he had to land every few hundred miles for fuel and repairs . . . Joe Kipness has offers to duplicate his Joe's Pier 52 restaurant in two Las Vegas hotels.

Christopher Plummer's costume in "Royal Hunt of the Sun" won't win any design awards — he wears only a loincloth . . . Arlo Guthrie says he won't attend the premiere of "Alice's Restaurant" unless the studio invites Officer William Obanheim — who once arrested Arlo for lit-

'Washington Slept Here' Revived, Funny As Ever

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

Perhaps the largest opening-night audience in recent Community Playhouse history laughed itself silly throughout a brilliant revival Friday night of Kaufman & Hart's timeless "George Washington Slept Here."

There was solid reason for this enthusiasm.

A good, if occasionally inconsistent cast highlighted by several very superior acting jobs keeps the pace consistently, smoothly upbeat. Credit guest director Jerry Anderson for a show that rarely falters, even in the midst of the most improbable hijinks.

Sustaining everything is an imaginative set and sight-and-sound effects nostalgically simulating several summer thunderstorms.

As indicated earlier, there is a timelessness about GWSH that defies the pass-house once inhabited, as it develops, not by G. Washington, but Benedict Arnold.

Bringing him off in wide-eyed innocence, Keith Houdysell almost seems typecast in the role. Balancing, complementing it all, is Betty Motsinger, the sharp-tongued, acid wife with heart of gold.

Stealing many a scene is English-born actor Denis Thomas, whose well developed back country Yankee twang never falters as he slyly cons the simple Mr. Fuller into buying pile upon pile of gravel, manure and other farm necessities.

He is rivaled as a scene grabber by young Larry Daggett, making his first stage appearance as a smart-alecky brat whose final comeuppance at the end of a board is meet, fitting and satisfying.

Those who share this writer's ever green affection for Kaufman & Hart will cheer loudly. Those who never knew — or whose memory has slipped — that noble pair would be hard put to find a better introduction.

Three-plus stars.

SAN DIEGO — Peru's 200-mile offshore limit is needed to protect its fishermen and "there is no question of compromise," says the Peruvian ambassador to the United States.

Fernando Berkeneyer said Friday the limit is "purely for humanitarian reasons — to give a livelihood to our people. We will continue to protect our fishing grounds."

Berkeneyer spoke to the World Affairs Institute at San Diego State College.

More than 90 U.S. fishing boats have been seized and fined by Peruvian authorities since 1961 for fishing within the limit without a special license.

American fishermen say the license cost is too high.

Berkeneyer said the fishing dispute between Peru and the United States could be resolved if the U.S. recognized Peru's "sovereignty of the seas" and complied with that country's fishing laws.

Leaning Tower May Get Assist

NEWCASTLE, Wyo. (UPI) — A Wyoming contractor will fly to Italy to discuss with government officials a proposal for stabilizing the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

L. W. Carlson said he was confident he had the answer to the stabilization problem which has been a great concern not only to the Italians, but to persons throughout the world.

The eight-story tower, considered an excellent specimen of Romanesque architecture, began to heel about the time its third story was completed.

The tower was begun in 1174 completed in the middle of the 14th century. It is 180 feet high and contains a bell chamber on the top story.

'There She Is... Miss America Time Arrives

By ROBERT GATTY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) It's getting to be that time of year again and before long Bert Parks will be singing about another Miss America in Atlantic City's Convention Hall.

Beginning Friday, 50 of the most beautiful girls in the United States will begin arriving in this seaside Cinderella city in hopes of succeeding last year's winner, Judith Ann Ford, who was Miss Illinois.

THE WEEK, climaxes Saturday, Sept. 6 at about midnight with the crowning of the victor, is packed with interviews, photo sessions, a parade, and grueling rehearsals.

"The Sound of Now," is the theme of the 1970 Miss America pageant, produced by George Cavaliere. The contestants, who always parade on the stage pageant night in the latest fall fashions, this year will "go mod."

They will wear, on some production numbers, corollies, owl-size sun glasses and bell-bottom slacks.

Pageant officials say skirts will be "two to three" inches above the knees, but refuse to call them "miniskirts."

One major change for television viewers will be the absence of Boss Myerson, Miss America 1945, as the television commentator.

MISS MYERSON, who has filled the role since 1951, is now director of consumer affairs for New York City. She will be replaced by Miss America 1966, the former Miss Kansas, Debbie Irene Bryant, of Overland Park, Kans.

'There She Is... 'Miss America Time Arrives

By ROBERT GATTY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) It's getting to be that time of year again and before long Bert Parks will be singing about another Miss America in Atlantic City's Convention Hall.

Beginning Friday, 50 of the most beautiful girls in the United States will begin arriving in this seaside Cinderella city in hopes of succeeding last year's winner, Judith Ann Ford, who was Miss Illinois.

THE WEEK, climaxes Saturday, Sept. 6 at about midnight with the crowning of the victor, is packed with interviews, photo sessions, a parade, and grueling rehearsals.

"The Sound of Now," is the theme of the 1970 MISS America pageant, produced by George Cavaliere. The contestants, who always parade on the stage pageant night in the latest fall fashions, this year will "go mod."

They will wear, on some production numbers, cow-prints, owl-size sun glasses and bell-bottom slacks.

Pageant officials say skirts will be "two to three" inches above the knees, but refuse to call them "miniskirts."

One major change for television viewers will be the absence of Bess Myerson, Miss America 1945, as the television commentator.

PERU AIDE DEFENDS FISH BOUNDARIES

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Peru's 200-mile offshore limit is needed to protect its fishermen and "there is no question of compromise," says the Peruvian ambassador to the United States.

Fernando Berkeneyer said Friday the limit is "purely for humanitarian reason — to give a livelihood to our people. We will continue to protect our fishing grounds."

Berkeneyer spoke to the World Affairs Institute at San Diego State College.

More than 90 U.S. fishing boats have been seized and fined by Peruvian authorities since 1961 for fishing within the limit without a special license.

American fishermen say the license cost is too high.

Berkeneyer said the fishing dispute between Peru and the United States could be resolved if the U.S. recognized Peru's "sovereignty of the seas" and complied with that country's fishing laws.

Leaning Tower May Get Assist

NEWCASTLE, Wyo. (UPI) — A Wyoming contractor will fly to Italy to discuss with government officials a proposal for stabilizing the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

L. W. Carlson said he was confident he had the answer to the stabilization problem which has been a great concern not only to the Italians, but to persons throughout the world.

The eight-story tower, considered an excellent specimen of Ramesque architecture, began to heel about the time its third story was completed.

The tower was begun in 1174 completed in the middle of the 14th century. It is 180 feet high and contains a bell chamber on the top story.

Hail to the chiefs.

With President Richard Nixon looking on, quarterback Len Dawson threw four touchdown strikes as the unbeaten Kansas City Chiefs massacred the Rams, 42-14, Saturday night before 58,306 stunned Coliseum patrons.

Dawson, who came equipped with a radar-arm, connected on 22 of 32 passes for 418 yards before retiring in the fourth quarter in favor of reserve Jack Lee.

The 13-year veteran from Purdue guided the Chiefs to a 28-14 halftime lead on touchdown passes of 72 yards to Frank Pitts, 33

Don Aronow added nine points to his 33 toward the world's offshore racing championship Saturday by winning the Long Beach Hennessy Cup Race by five seconds over Peter Rochschild, Newport Beach, in one of the most dramatic finishes ever seen in that type of racing.

Aronow, the famous Florida boat designer, drove his The Cigarette across the finish line at Belmont Pier in 4 hours, 12 minutes, 16 seconds for an average of 48.6 miles per hour, with Rochschild's Thunderballs, a boat of identical design with identical twin-engines (496-cubic-inch Mer-Cruisers) less than 100 yards behind.

The race was over a course of 206 statute miles and Aronow did it the hard way. He took the lead shortly after 10 a.m. as the race started in front of Belmont Pier, led out through Queen's Gate and upcast toward San Vicente Point, where one of his props hit an object and broke.

The Cigarette lay dead in the water for six or seven minutes while Aronow and his crewmen, navigator Eddie Eader, Newport Beach, and mechanic Barry Cordingly, Miami, pulled the broken prop and replaced it.

Aronow counted six boats going by, then set out in pursuit toward the east end of Catalina Island. He passed two before the ocean racers reached Avalon, then roared by two others going up the back side of the island.

Back in the calamitous months of April and May, the Angels were in full-fledged retreat. One of the reasons was because they found left-handed pitchers nearly indestructible.

At one point, the Angels were an embarrassing 0-12 against the portside fraternity and threatening to establish all sorts of records for frustration and futility.

If you examine the ledger today, you will find the Angels have won 15 of their

"When I'm in a slump, I would rather face a lefty. I have a bad habit of dipping my shoulder and wind up bouncing a lot of balls to the infield but when a left-hander is pitching I know I have to hang in at the plate and wait until the last minute. As a result I don't drop the shoulder."

Spencer's jolt came off Mike Kilkenny, the youngster who struck out 10 Angels in firing a three-hitter at them last week in Detroit. It was a landmark victory of sorts for the Angels. It was their 50th of the season and gave them a commendable 6.3 record on the home stand which winds up today.

And it happened because Rudy May is pitching the best baseball of his injury-plagued career.

May was not overly sharp, yielding four walks and falling behind many hitters, but he kept the Tigers off balance with a deft blend of curves and fastballs. The two Detroit runs were products of the long ball. Mickey Stanley hit May's fourth pitch of the game over the left-center field fence in the opening round and Bill Frechan lost one in the same vicinity in the eighth.

"I don't want to alibi but this made me a little wild," May said, pointing to a mean-looking blister on his left foot. "But if I last 27 against the lefties and it is not by sheer coincidence that their modest string of successes coincided with the early June arrival of one James L. Spencer.

Take Saturday at the Big A as a case in point.

Spencer sealed Detroit's doom with a two-run homer in capping a three run sixth inning as the Angels, behind Rudy May's five-hit pitching, sent the Tigers down to their first loss in six games, 5-2.

Spencer is one of baseball's non-conformists. He is a left-handed batter who likes to hit left-handed pitching. Of more immediate interest to the Angels, however, is the fact that he not only enjoys it but does remarkably well in exploding the old myth about percentages.

"If you check back I think you'll find I've always been a better hitter against left-handers," Spencer said as he reflected upon his seventh home run of the season and his second in as many games against the Tigers.

HAYWOOD SIGNS WITH ABA ROCKETS

DENVER — Olympic hero and University of Detroit all-America Spencer Haywood has signed a pro contract with Denver, the Rockets of the American Basketball Assn. announced Saturday.

Haywood, a 6-foot-9 center, led the U.S. Olympic team to victory in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City, and in his first year — as a sophomore — made all America at the University of Detroit.

Haywood, who has two years of eligibility remaining at Detroit, said he wanted to play pro basketball because of "overwhelming family responsibilities."

"I consulted with my high school coach and legal guardian before going to Denver to negotiate," the 20-year-old Haywood said. "We set a price which we both agreed on and we felt if Denver would meet our terms it would be okay to sign."

The Rockets said Haywood signed a long-term contract for a substantial amount, but declined to divulge any figures or comment on the report that the amount was about $250,000.

ABA president James Gardner granted the Rockets permission to sign Haywood under a league-by-law which states: "In case of extreme hardship, a player may be signed before his class graduates."

Haywood, who is not married, supports his mother and nine brothers and sisters.

The fly ball fell between Willie Davis, Maury Wills, and Teddy Sizemore. Donn Clendenon raced all the way around from first with the winning run and the Dodgers sheepishly walked off the field with their third loss in a row.

"It's hard to tell who should have caught it," said the manager, refusing to point to any of the players although leaving no doubt in anyone's mind that the ball should have been caught.

It was also another day of frustration with the bat as the Dodgers squandered their third sound pitching performance in a row. Jim Bunning impressed for the second time in Dodger logs, working seven strong innings. But the Dodgers managed a mere five hits off Don Cardwell and Ron Taylor.

Still, the game centered around the lazy pop fly by Dick Grote in the ninth, the third hit of the afternoon for the New York catcher.

There were two outs and Clendenon was at first a walk. Grote popped to short center, exactly the thing pitcher Jim Brewer wanted him to do.

Willie D. raced in from center, Wills and Sizemore ran out from the infield. But the ball fell between them and by the time Maury picked it up, there was nothing left to do but take a shower. Clendenon, running on the 3-2 pitch, easily scored and the Mets rang up their fifth win in a row over the Dodgers at Coney Island.

While Alston chose not to be critical of anyone, the players themselves weren't quite so kind.

"A ball like that has got to be caught," said Wills who was closest to it although it certainly wasn't his to catch. "If we're

The Rams led twice 7-0, on Larry Smith's one-yard smash and 14-7 on Roman Gabriel's 37-yard aerial to Jack Snow.

The Rams reciprocated, storming 66 yards in 6 plays with Jack Snow making a sparkling catch of Gabriel's 37-yard missile for the TD. Snow beat defender Emmitt Thomas in clutching his second TD reception of the young season.

After Pat Studstill was pressured into a 21-yard punt by Dave Martin, the Chiefs reeled 37 yards in two plays with Bob Holmes scoring equalizer from the one. The TD was set up by Dawson's 36-yard pitch to Gloster Richardson.

Green Bay Corralled by Cowboys' Defense

DALLAS (UPI) — Defensive end George Andrie wreaked havoc on Green Bay's passing game Saturday night and the Dallas Cowboys shook off a bad case of first half jitters to hammer the Packers 31-13 in a National Football League preseason game.

With a sellout crowd of 72,000 roaring its approval in the Cotton Bowl, the Cowboys dominated the Packers in every department. It was only Dallas' third victory in 10 exhibition games with the Packers.

Andrie personally threw Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr for 27 stars in losses, while linebacker Lee Roy Jordan and defensive end Larry Cole chipped in with other big quarterback trapping plays to keep Starr and understudy Don Horn under heavy pressure.

The Cowboys struck for two touchdowns in each of the second and fourth quarters as quarterback Craig Morton rallied the Cowboys to their second victory in three starts and handed the packers their second setback against a lone victory.

Dan Reeves, playing for the first this season, hit Lance Rentzel for a 57-yard halfback pass for the Cowboys' first touchdown.

Les Shy plunged three yards for another, rookie Calvin Hill dug out a tough one yard for the third and Bob Hayes pulled in an 18-yard pass for a fourth score.

Dallas scoring with a 37-yard field goal while Mike Mercer kicked 43 and 37 yarders for the Packers.

The Packers managed only their second touchdown of the preseason in the second quarter on a 17-yard pass from Horn to Travis Williams.

Starr was thrown for 48 yards in losses and Horn for 36 by the Cowboy front line, which was assisted by blitzes.

"Sometimes you go too far. Like that article on the Rams' Wendell Tucker. He couldn't hold a hand with Hirsch, Fears, or Boyd." Ralph Gutierrez, Norwalk.

Comment: I hope not, Ralph.

"I don't remember you ever saying something bad about Walter O'Malley, your idol, I guess. But how can that crook get a pitcher like Jim Bunning to GIVE the Dodgers the pennant? They didn't give up nothing for a greater pitcher." Vince Martinez, Wilmington.

Comment: Well, Vincent, I wouldn't call picking up a $75,000 salary nothing. And, by the way, could you be the same gent who took too many punches during a spectacular, but short, fight career?

"No one in his right mind will deny Phillips, the Lefty, due credit for the job he has done with the Angels. You spelled it well. You tacitly indicated that much of the muscle in the new heart beat came from the farm hands, but I believe you writin' guys should tip your toper with gusto toward the boys who dig up the talent, plant it where it will grow and cultivate it for the market place." Walt Blossfield, 1521 Gardena Ave., Long Beach.

Comment: Wait, I think you spent too much time in a place, but NOT the market place. And how was the trip? "You're bad enough, but you're not alone in stacking a journalistic defense for the Rams. Myself and many other football lovers at the plant wonder why such sweet-typies as Dick Bass and Tommy Mason can't take the exhibition game buff of the others. The other drones have to." Michael O'Brien, Torrance.

Comment: No defense for the Rams, Michael. The Ram coach simply wants to test unknown personnel, while preserving the injury-prone, whose ability of which he's well aware. And how are things in Belfast?

"AS FAR AS YOUR COLUMN ("George Allen continuing to do his thing"), I am a great admirer of Allen's. It is truly wonderful seeing the Rams, white and black, working harmoniously for a common cause. I think the Boston Celtics, too, is an illustration of leadership and camaraderie that makes champions." Allen (No relation), Long Beach.

Comment: Agreed (Note: But, George, I told your BROTHER not to write again. It gets embarrassing.

"I have composed a poem for football. The game is a agonizing, ordeal of survival, where men rise to great heights of genius and sometimes breathtaking failure." (Note: The first and last paragraphs.)

"With steely eyes, he surveyed the line And called the boys to a huddle. The day was gray, the rain came down As they all squatted there in a puddle." Resumption: "But not for his boys, they stood there "From the stands there came a moan, For Dumb Old Legs Kokomo Dropped the bomb in the end zone."

Comment: Space does not permit including the middle eight graphs, L.M.P., And, as you requested, I won't let the guys at work know about it. But, you're my man!

ONE OF MY FAVORITE players and a guy who I stand up and cheer about every time he comes to bat is Rich Reichardt of the Angels. You guys who write and the stupid in the audience don't seem to like him. May I ask why?" Vernon Markson, Garden Grove.

Comment: It's simply a matter of economics, Vern. Rick has more money in the bank than any writer and 99 per cent of the patrons. Therefore, is it wrong to knock a big money man who can't produce? Would you mind too much if you were driven to the bank in a Brinks truck while the natives were a bit restless? I doubt it.

"As a man of sports, that letter to the editor, which didn't appear on your pages, about the horrifying effect sports has on the rest of the country, what is your opinion? And for once be honest." Ralph Vignas, Torrance.

Comment: Really, I am not aware of such a letter and neither is our editorial writing dept. which handles the page upon the "letter" to which you seem to be referring. I know of no horrifying effect in sports. I'd suggest you sleep it off, Ralph.

"HOW COME YOU DIDN'T give us any caustic comments about the Rams after that dud against the Browns?" Wilbur Stewart, Lakewood.

Comment: Wilbur, you must have had a bad time Monday night. Our circulation dept. will provide the answer if you wish to secure a Tuesday edition. The cost, naturally, will be 10 cents.

"My favorite ballplayer is Don Drysdale. How would I start getting a testimonial erected to him in Long Beach? Can you think of what a really big 'Big D' would do over the Queen Mary?" Al Vincent, Long Beach.

Comment: Yeh. Go back to sleep, Al.

"I've talked to some people and they laugh at me. What do you think? I would like to see the Dodgers give up six lesser players to get Richie Allen. Doesn't that sound good?" Ed McCarthy, Lakewood.

Comment: Ed, sorry about this, but why don't you go and join Al?

FOLLOW THAT RAM

Ram kick returner Ron Smith (41) follows teammate Alvin Haymond, eluding sprawled Kansas City defender Ralph Jenkins during first quarter of Saturday night's Coliseum contest. Haymond returned kickoff 34 yards.

Then following an illegal punting the punt penalty, the Chiefs rushed 41 yards in 3 plays with Dawson throwing a perfect strike of 33 yards to Richardson.

The slick receiver from Jackson State beat Clancy Williams easily to make the grab in the end zone.

During the drive the Chiefs proved some razzle-dazzle never hurt anyone as Pitts raced 13 yards on an end-around which led to Dawson's second to bomb of the night.

K.C. extended its lead to 28-14 when Dawson guided the 5-point underdogs from Missouri 71-yards in four plays, all in the air, finally winding it up with an 8-yard flip to Mike Garrett.

For the half, Dawson completed 15 of 23 passes for 313 yards and three TDs. He had two passes intercepted.

THIRD QUARTER

Chiefs 28, Rams 14. The Rams had an apparent touchdown rubbed out when officials ruled that Ron Smith stepped out of bounds to nullify a 74-yard punt return. It marked the third week in a row the frustrated Smith has had a long runback called back.

The Chiefs also aborted a 69-yard Ram drive when middle linebacker Willie Lanier broke through to dump Gabriel on the one-yard line as he attempted a rollout.

FOURTH QUARTER

Chiefs 42, Rams 14. After halting the Rams' Jeff Jordan on a fourth-and-one situation on their own 48, the Chiefs took over and navigated 52 yards with Dawson flipping a nine-yard pass to Holmes for the score.

K.C. came right back when Marsalis picked off Gabriel's pass and returned 25 yards to the Rams' 26. Six plays later Holmes punched over from the one.

Okker Wins; Ralston Defeated at Newport

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Tom Okker of the Netherlands whipped Ray Moore of South Africa, 6-3, 6-4, in the Newport Casino pro tennis tournament Saturday to win a berth in today's finals.

Roger Taylor of England downed Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., 2-6, 5-5, 5-5, winning on tiebreaks in the last two sets in the VASS (Van Alan simplified scoring) system for the other finalist slot in the battle for the $2,500 first prize.

Vikings Crumble St. Louis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings, finding an aerial game to complement their grinding ground attack, scored nearly every way possible Saturday night as they handed the St. Louis Cardinals a 41-13 shellacking in a National Football League exhibition.

Quarterback Gary Cuozzo passed for two touchdowns, Fred Cox kicked two field goals, Gary Larsen recovered a fumble in the end zone, and Bill Brown and Clinton Jones scored on the ground.

Cox also made good on five conversions.

It was a bad night for the Cardinals, who at times seemed to be their own worst enemies. Several times penalties nullified long gains and quarterback Charley Johnson, who played the entire game, had three passes intercepted, one of which set up a Viking touchdown.

Johnson also was responsible for the fumble which set up the initial Minnesota touchdown.

King Hill, who replaced Cuozzo midway of the fourth quarter, kept the Vikings moving and was calling the signals when the Vikings made their final score, a 14-yard field goal by Cox.

Steelers Strike Swiftly, Romp Past New Orleans

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Veteran quarterback Dick Shiner threw two touchdown passes and his backup, Kent Nix, set up two scoring runs Saturday night to boost the toss for a 33-yard first quarter score. Safety Charles Beatty added another touchdown a minute later when he romped 42 yards with a Bill Kilmer interception.

Nix, who assumed command in the second quarter, tossed to Roy Elkins for 14 yards. Former Louisiana State University star Earl Gros followed three plays later for a 41-yard scoring romp with three minutes gone in the third quarter.

Pittsburgh Steelers to a 34-24 preseason victory over the New Orleans Saints.

More than 40,000 sweltering fans watched in stunned silence as the Steelers scored three touchdowns in less than six minutes in the first and second quarters.

Chargers Tie Browns, 19-19

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rookie defensive back Walt Summer blocked a 10-yard field goal attempt with 17 seconds to play Saturday night, enabling the Cleveland Browns to deadlock the San Diego Chargers, 19-19, in a pre-season football game.

Summer, from Florida State, broke through the defunct Dennis Partee's placement after the Cleveland defense stopped a Charger drive on the one-yard line.

A screen pass from San Diego quarterback John Hadl to light and Jacques MacKinnon had carried 39 yards to the Cleveland 6 before the Browns stiffened.

Cleveland, of the National Football League, had won its first two exhibition games while the American Football League Chargers brought a 2-1 record into the game.

The Browns' Don Cockroft tied the score at 6:48 of the fourth quarter with a 15-yard field goal, a few minutes after his attempt from the 35 was partially blocked by San Diego's Leslie Duncan.

The Chargers erased a 16-10 Cleveland lead in the third quarter when Hadl threw a 40-yard strike to Lance Alworth. The score remained tied, 16-16, after defensive tackle Jim Kanicki blocked Partee's extra-point attempt.

Then the Chargers took a 19-16 lead late in the third quarter on Partee's 10-yard field goal. Hadl set it up with a pass to MacKinnon for 15 yards and runs by Dick Post and rookie Jeff Queen for good yardage.

Cleveland scored first in the game on quarterback Bill Nelsen's 23-yard toss to Gary Collins, but Cockroft missed the extra point when Nelsen fumbled the snap from center.

San Diego bounced back on Hadl's seven-yard pass to Willie Frazier to take a 7-6 lead.

Two Thefts Difference for Cincy

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Bengals, sparked by two key interceptions and the strong arm of rookie quarterback Greg Cook, downed the Miami Dolphins, 28-21, in an exhibition contest Saturday night.

Veteran linebacker Al Beauchamp hauled in a Bob Griese pass in the first quarter and returned it 65 yards to set up a six-yard scoring run by halfback Paul Robinson.

Beauchamp, lurching in the defensive backfield all night, speared another Griese pass in the fourth quarter to set up another TD run, this time of five yards by halfback Jess Phillips.

Cook, the Bengals' No. 1 draft choice, played the entire first half before a hometown crowd of 25,122 and threw 10 touchdowns passes of seven and 27 yards to lead the Bengals to a 21-7 halftime lead.

The Bengals' veteran quarterback, Sam Wyche, called the signals in the second half but was unable to launch a sustained drive.

Beauchamp's second interception proved to be the turning point for the floundering Bengals.

San Francisco's John Brodie, who played all but four minutes, gave up three interceptions. Two of them led to scores, including Haffner's catch.

Ken Criter picked off an errant Brodie pass on the 49er 35 and fumbled, but it was recovered for Denver by Grady Cavnish on the San Francisco 28. Liske was dropped for a 13-yard loss and then passed to Haffner for the score.

Avco Turning Out to Be Shaw's Private Tourney

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Jocular Tom Shaw continued his one-man assault on the PGA record book Saturday as he boosted his already record tying lead as high as a spectacular seven strokes in the opening minutes of his third round in the Avco golf classic.

The 26-year-old Shaw, a resident of Golf, Ill., fired an eagle three on Pleasant Valley's 530-yard par five second hole to pull even farther away from the field that he already had outdistanced on Friday.

Canadian George Knudson cut Shaw's margin back to five as the leader bogeyed the fifth hole and Knudson picked up a stroke with two birdies on the first five holes.

Shaw, followed by a huge gallery already nicknamed "Tom's Troops," was gunning for the $30,000 top prize and his first big payday since winning the Doral Open last March. His best finish since Doral was a 19th in the Tournament of Champions.

Bobby Stanton, a slim Australian, and burly Bob Lunn made mild runs at Shaw, but never really came close and fell further back with Shaw's finishing kick. He closed birdie, eagle.

His lead was the largest 54-hole margin of the year on the PGA tour. The previous record margin was

Heggeness Fires 65 to Win at Virginia

Clark Heggeness fired a 77-65 to win the Class A Low Net sweepstakes at Virginia Country Club Saturday afternoon. Ed P. Leis won the Class B Low Net sweeps with an 87-18-68.

Class A Low Net—Clark Heggeness 77-65; Hal Walker 73-66; George Pulin 78-60; Dr. Vernon Bricker 72-66; Class A Blind Entry 717; Del Walker, Dr. Jack Tykka, Tom H. Green Jr., North Zink, Gordon Shinn, Mel Collins.

five by Ray Floyd in last week's PGA championship, and Lee Trevino in the Tucson Open.

Stanton, who had a 66, was second at 210, while the 210-pound Lunn had a 67 for 211 and third place.

Shaw, who has claimed right along that he was only breaking out of a five-month slump, said the biggest difference has been in his putting.

Shaw, who came into the press room with his putter, which he calls a mini-mallet, bogeyed the fifth, three-putting, but got it back with a chip which left him a two-foot birdie putt on the next hole.

He also birdied the ninth, putting an eight iron two feet from the pin, but bogeyed the next when he missed the green and failed to get it up and down.

The event was scheduled for national television, but the NBC baseball game of the week between the Houston Astros and Chicago Cubs ran late, the golfers played quickly and only two holes of action were televised.

Walker Cup Remains in U.S. Once Again

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Great Britain's gallant attempt fell short Saturday when the United States, fighting back in singles, won the 22nd staging of the Walker Cup golf matches.

The final score was 10-8. The British team, for a while thought it might win the prestigious international competition ran into trouble on the 18th hole, a 414-yard, heavily trapped par 4.

Twice American golfers won the final hole to halve their single matches. The U.S. squad won two singles Saturday, while Great Britain won three.

At the end of two-ball

foursome play Saturday morning, the Americans led 8-5.

The Brits won two of the morning matches and halved a third. The only point scored by the United States came on Dick Siderow's and Lanny Wadkins' 6 and 5 victory over Rodney Foster and Michael King.

Charles Green and Andrew Brook, both of Scotland, birdied the final hole to pull even with America's Vinny Giles of Charlottesville, Va., and Steve Melnyk of Brunswick, Ga., for the match.

No points are awarded either side for ties.

It appeared that Great Britain might win three of the four morning matches on the 6,721-yard, par 70 Milwaukee Country Club course. Green and Brook at one point were three up, but Giles and Melnyk, playing par golf, won 10, 11, 14 and 17 to go one up. That set the stage for the final hole, where Green's second shot put the visitors on the green and Brook sank an eight-foot birdie putt and a tie.

Great Britain has won only once in 1938, in the prestigious international event that began in 1922 and is played every two years. The U.S. has won 19 matches, while one match, in 1965, ended in a tie.

The Americans won two morning matches and halved a third on Friday, then swept five of the eight singles in the afternoon.

Opening Victory for Hawks

By CHUCK MEDICK

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — A pair of four-run innings gave the Long Beach Nitehawks a 9-3 win over Hammond, Ind., here Saturday in the International Softball Congress Tournament at Douglas Park.

Ralph Smith celebrated his return to the Hawks with a first-inning, first-pitch triple that started the downfall of loser Fred Hammond.

Before the side was retired, five hits had produced the four runs.

Long Beach starter Sherm McKinniss ran into trouble in the third when the Chiefs collected all of their five hits. Don Sarno took over and didn't allow a ball to be hit out of the infield from then on.

The next game for Red Meairs' crew will be Tuesday night at 6 (PDT) against upset-minded Green Bay, Wis. The Badgers haven't participated before in ISC championship play, but have won their first two games.

Hawthorne sees action tonight at 7 against Inglewood, Colo. while SoCal state champion San Bernardino gets a tough test at 6 against Phoenix, Ariz.

Bill McCormick, former Long Beach Masters champion, made the 54-hole cut of 228 with rounds of 73-76-75-224.

The field has now been cut to 91 pros and 21 amateurs for Sunday's final round.

Avco Turning Out to Be Shaw's Private Tourney

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Jocular Tom Shaw continued his one-man assault on the PGA record book Saturday as he boosted his already record tying lead as high as a spectacular seven strokes in the opening minutes of his third round in the Avco golf classic.

The 26-year-old Shaw, a resident of Golf, Ill., fired an eagle three on Pleasant Valley's 530-yard par five second hole to pull even farther away from the field that he already had outdistanced on Friday.

Canadian George Knudson cut Shaw's margin back to five as the leader bogeyed the fifth hole and Knudson picked up a stroke with two birdies on the first five holes.

Shaw, followed by a huge gallery already knicknamed "Tom's Troops," was gunning for the $30,000 top prize and his first big payday since winning the Doral Open last March. His best finish since Doral was a 19th in the Tournament of Champions.

Bobby Stanton, a slim Australian, and burly Bob Lunn made mild runs at Shaw, but never really came close and fell further back with Shaw's finishing kick. He closed birdie, eagle.

His lead was the largest 54-hole margin of the year on the PGA tour. The previous record margin was

Heggeness Fires 65 to Win at Virginia

Clark Heggeness fired a 77-12-65 to win the Class A Low Net sweepstakes at Virginia Country Club Saturday afternoon. Ed P. Leis won the Class B Low Net sweeps with an 87-18-69.

five by Ray Floyd in last week's PGA championship, and Lee Trevino in the Tucson Open.

Stanton, who had a 66, was second at 210, while the 210-pound Lunn had a 67 for 211 and third place.

Shaw, who has claimed right along that he was only breaking out of a five-month slump, said the biggest difference has been in his putting.

Shaw, who came into the press room with his putter, which he calls a mini-mallet, bogeyed the fifth, three-putting, but got it back with a chip which left him a two-foot birdie putt on the next hole.

He also birdied the ninth, putting an eight iron two feet from the pin, but bogeyed the next when he missed the green and failed to get it up and down.

The event was scheduled for national television, but the NBC baseball game of the week between the Houston Astros and Chicago Cubs ran late, the golfers played quickly and only two holes of action were televised.

Walker Cup Remains in U.S. Once Again

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Great Britain's gallant attempt fell short Saturday when the United States, fighting back in singles, won the 22nd staging of the Walker Cup golf matches.

The final score was 10-8.

The British team, for a while thought it might win the prestigious international competition ran into trouble on the 18th hole, a 414-yard, heavily trapped par 4.

Twice American golfers won the final hole to halve their single matches. The U.S. squad won two singles Saturday, while Great Britain won three.

At the end of two-ball

foursome play Saturday morning, the Americans led, 8-5.

The Britishers won two of the morning matches and halved a third. The only point scored by the United States came on Dick Siderow's and Lanny Wadkins' 6 and 5 victory over Rodney Foster and Michael King.

Charles Green and Andrew Brook, both of Scotland, birdied the final hole to pull even with America's Vinny Giles of Charlottesville, Va., and Steve Melnyk of Brunswick, Ga., for the match.

No points are awarded either side for ties.

It appeared that Great Britain might win three of the four morning matches on the 6,721-yard, par 70 Milwaukee Country Club course. Green and Brook at one point were three up, but Giles and Melnyk, playing par golf, won 10, 11, 14 and 17 to go one up. That set the stage for the final hole, where Green's second shot put the visitors on the green and Brook sank an eight-foot birdie putt and a tie.

Great Britain has won only once in 1938, in the prestigious international event that began in 1922 and is played every two years. The U.S. has won 19 matches, while one match, in 1965, ended in a tie.

The Americans won two morning matches and halved a third on Friday, then swept five of the eight singles in the afternoon.

Opening Victory for Hawks

By CHUCK MEDICK

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — A pair of four-run innings gave the Long Beach Nitehawks a 9-3 win over Hammond, Ind., here Saturday in the International Softball Congress Tournament at Douglas Park.

Ralph Smith celebrated his return to the Hawks with a first-inning, first-pitch triple that started the downfall of loser Fred Hammond.

Before the side was retired, five hits had produced the four runs.

Long Beach starter Sherm McKinnis ran into trouble in the third when the Chiefs collected all of their five hits. Don Sarno took over and didn't allow a ball to be hit out of the infield from then on.

The next game for Red Meairs' crew will be Tuesday night at 6 (PDT) against a upset-minded Green Bay, Wis. The Badgers haven't participated before in ISC championship play, but have won their first two games.

Hawthorne sees action tonight at 7 against Inglewood, Colo. while SoCal state champion San Bernardino gets a tough test at 6 against Phoenix, Ariz.

Discrimination Highest in Golf

The civil rights demonstration during the PGA Championship in Dayton last week, in our opinion, was ill-advised and, from our understanding, accomplished little.

We don't understand the logic behind protests and demonstrations directed at sports events. Professional sports in particular have done more for integration and civil rights than any other medium.

Owners of sports teams broke the color barriers for their athletes in many areas, including hotels, restaurants, night clubs and theaters. Black and white roommates in professional sports are not uncommon today.

Golf has lagged behind the others, however.

The No. 1 case of discrimination this year was the failure of sponsors and directors of the Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga., to invite Negro Charlie Sifford to play in the event.

Tournament officials at the National Golf Club in Augusta have been condemned by many for slighting Sifford, who became the first Negro golfer to win a PGA event when he captured the 1957 Long Beach Open at the Lakewood Country Club.

Sifford has since won the Hartford and L.A. Opens. Charlie opened the 1969 PGA season by defeating South Africa's Harold Henning in a playoff for the L.A. Open, a victory which would have normally meant an invitation to Augusta.

The Masters is to Sifford what all country clubs were to professional golfers 40 and 50 years ago. Then, a pro golfer was not allowed in the clubhouse of a country club. A pro golfer's status was equal to that of a caddy.

It was Walter Hagen, a brash youngster from Detroit, who came along to revolutionize the game.

Walter would walk in the front door — usually with his cleats on to deliberately mark up the hardwood floor — dump his clubs in the locker room and if there were any objections, make it plain he either used the clubhouse or we wouldn't be in any blanket-blanket tournament.

Hagen was the golfer who shocked British royalty by calling the Duke of Windsor "Charlie." That was the start of the climb to prominence of the pro golfers, who now are playing partners and personal friends of presidents and the heads of state.

The late Teddy Rhodes, who died in May, was the Negro who paved the way for the black golfer like Sifford, Curtis Sifford, Lee Elder and Pete Brown.

Following World War II, Rhodes and two other black golfers who had developed fine games on public courses, tried to enter several Southern California PGA tournaments.

At the time, PGA events were listed as "opens." Any one eligible to play could, if they could make the field through qualifying rounds.

When Teddy and his friends managed to get into a few tournaments, the PGA, concerned about losing many of the lucrative Southern stops on the tour, came up with an idea.

The PGA contracts suddenly with sponsors suddenly began using the title "Invitational Opens." In this manner, the PGA was able to control the entry list.

The decisive battle by black golfers against the PGA started prior to the 1949 Long Beach Open. Joe Louis, then heavyweight boxing champion, took up the cudgel for Rhodes, his playing partner in private matches, and others.

Through a mutual friend, Joe's booking agent Harry Rubin, Joe contacted me about the problem. We spent an afternoon discussing the advisability of making an issue of Rhodes' entry not being accepted by the PGA for the local event.

Joe was determined and an advisor finally drafted an official statement for Joe because whenever Joe got excited, he would begin to stutter.

When the statement appeared in my column, the wire services picked it up and it became a nationwide issue.

Months later, after concluding the Southern part of the tour, the PGA opened its membership to blacks.

Why did Louis take up the battle? For two reasons. First, Joe has always been a vigorous champion of civil rights. Joe has always advocated equal rights for his race.

Secondly, Rhodes had saved Joe hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Many of Joe's financial problems stemmed from golf. The Brown Bomber, one of the most graceful, deadly fighters we have ever seen, was a good golfer, able to shoot in the high 70s on a good day.

But he was a repeated target for virtually every notorious hustler in the country. At one stretch, Joe was losing $75,000 a day to hustlers.

Louis' losses on the golf course grew to such an alarming proportion his manager, at the suggestion of fight promoter Mike Jacobs, hired Rhodes to be his partner in best-ball matches in order to help Joe.

Rhodes, who was the leading black golfer at that time, quickly put a stop to the hustling of Louis' funds and Joe was forever grateful.

Lutz Banishes Tired Ashe, Faces Smith In Final Today

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Bob Lutz of Los Angeles upset defending champion Arthur Ashe in a shocker and joined doubles partner Stan Smith, Pasadena, Calif., in advancing to the finals of the 89th U.S. National Tennis Tournament Saturday at Longwood.

Lutz, the nation's fifth ranked player who will be 22 next week, defeated Ashe 6-4, 4-6, 10-8, 6-3, 6-4, while Smith, seeded second, rallied for a 4-6, 2-6, 6-2, 8-6, 15-13 victory over fifth seed Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico in the all-American semifinals.

Margaret Smith Court of Australia won the U.S. Women's singles title for the fourth time by defeating Virginia Wade, England's No. 1 player, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Lutz and Smith, who won the U.S. National doubles here last year, will meet for the title today.

Lutz, beaten by Ashe in the U.S. National finals a year ago and then again in the Wimbledon quarter-finals in June, gained vengeance in spoiling the defending champion's bid for $5,000 first prize money as an independent pro.

Lutz blew several fine chances to nail down a victory in the fourth set as he ran into service trouble. He lost his service in the eighth game after breaking his racket on an overhead slam.

Ashe, who will launch defense of his U.S. Open Championship at Forest Hills, N.Y., next Wednesday, also may have been weary from playing six straight hours in singles and doubles action Friday.

Smith, a 22-year-old student at Southern California, had a bitter struggle against Pasarell, an Army enlisted man who dropped from top-ranking to seventh in the nation after a poor season.

The 25-year-old Pasarell jumped off to a quick lead in winning the first two sets. Smith fought back to take the third set before the players took a rest.

Smith evoked the match by breaking Pasarell in the 14th game of the fourth set.

In the deciding set Smith was broken in the 17th game as he netter a forehand but he came right back to break Pasarell in the 18th game.

Small Trails by Stroke in California State Open

SANTA MARIA (Special) — Jack Laxson of Monterey fired a one-under-par 71 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the hotly contested California Open Golf Tournament.

Laxson's third-round score added to his earlier 70 and 69, gave him a six-under 210, one ahead of Jim Gilbert of San Diego, Terry Small of Long Beach and Charles Leiter of Burlingame.

Laxson had a chance to go into Sunday's final round with a two-stroke edge. But his 20-foot putt for a birdie on 18 rimmed the cup. The winner of the $20,000 tournament will pocket top prize of $1,800.

Small and Leiter, who shared the lead with Laxson after Friday's second round, were in difficulty throughout the day but managed to stay close to Laxson.

Small, former NCAA champion competing in his first pro tournament, fashioned an even par 72 which included birdies on holes No. 1 and No. 14.

Leiter, in particular, had to scramble to stay in contention. He began the day with a birdie but hooked into the trees on 10 and wound up with a double bogey for the hole.

One of the two amateurs near the top, Vic Regalado of San Ysidro shot the day's best round at the 6,900-yard Santa Maria County Club course, a six-

Whitworth Has Tourney Lead

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) — Rangy Kathy Whitworth, her putting woes apparently behind her, fired a two-under-par 71 Saturday and grabbed a one-shot lead over Carol Mann after the second round of the $20,000 Tournament of Champions.

under par 66. He is in a six-way tie at 215.

Bob Boldt, a young pro from San Pablo, slammed the day's most exciting shot, a hole-in-one on the 110-yard, par three 13th. But the excitement was apparently too much for him.

He went into the 13th one under par for the day and left it three under and with the second ace in his life. But he bogeyed three of the remaining five holes to finish with an even-par 72 and a three-day total of 215.

Bill McCormick, former Long Beach Masters champion, made the 54-hole cut of 228 with rounds of 73-76-75-224.

The field has now been cut to 91 pros and 21 amateurs for Sunday's final round.

the maneuver probably cost him the race. "They don't call Don the Old Fox for nothing," he said. Rothchild's time was just five seconds behind that of Aronow and the average speed therefore was the same.

The race, however, was a great victory for Rothchild, who started his ocean racing career just four years ago. It was the first race for him in the 32-foot Cary hull, with twin Mercurys. "Don just outfoxed me on that last turn," he said. "Otherwise, we would have finished in a dead heat."

American Moppie, a 31-foot Bertram, with Peter Rittmaster, one of Don's old rivals, and also a resi-

Hennessey Boat Sinks During Race

Hennessey race boat number 40, called the Whoof Harted, split open and sank about 10:45 a.m. today a half-mile southeast of Balboa Pier, Newport Beach.

The Newport harbor master said it apparently hit something submerged but did not know what.

When the bow split the boat sank in less than a minute into 60 feet of water.

Wayne Fowler, 30, of 5232 Marcella Ave., Cypress, the owner and pilot of the boat, said he was driving at about 35 knots at the time of the accident. He said the 22-foot craft was valued at $3,500.

Fowler suffered a minor cut on his nose, but did not require medical treatment. Jerry Rhue, 25, 2050 Harding St., Long Beach, who was riding with Fowler, was unhurt.

dent of Mimal, was third in 4:21:21 for an average of 48.9 mph. His boat also was equipped with twin Mercurys units similar to those on the two leading boats.

Fourth was Dr. Robert Magoon, in the 28-foot Andrea, equipped with three Mercury outboards. His time was 4:25:31 for an average of 46.4 mph.

Bill Martin's Hustler II, a 27-foot Magnum, equipped with a single Mercury unit, had prop trouble at the start of the race just inside the Long Beach Breakwater Gap (Queen's Gate) and all boats passed him — even the press boat — but he and his crew managed to repair the prop and finish in fifth place. There was no time given for his race.

Bill Cooper, west coast favorite of many racing fans and a widely known figure at Marina del Rey, was disqualified because he ran his Spooky III directly into Long Beach Harbor from the east instead of coming through Queen's Gate.

Louis Gantz, Long Beach, and his friend Diane Blackford, drove Hot Line, a 27-foot Magnum, equipped with two 208-cubic-inch Ford engines, to first place in the Development Class, a race from Long Beach to Oceanside and return, in 3:25:28 for an average of 34.2 mph. Diane was the only woman in the race. She drove part of the way.

Travler, a 17-foot Glasstron, with Bob Spratte, Anaheim, driving, was second in 3:51:01, an average of 30.4 mph. Earl Palmer, in Crapshooter, was third in 4:14:31, an average of 27.6 mph. Bruce Russell, Long Beach, was fourth in Mr. Muggsy.

Bill Schroeder, Newport Beach, drove his Magnum 35 to victory in the Cruiser Class, also a race from Long Beach to Oceanside and return, in 3:56:31, an average of 29.6 mph.

Kaweah Bar Captures Fifth Win at Alamitos

By DAVE DANIEL

Kaweah Bar did it again. This time he made it look easy by carrying another notch on his girth handle by shooting down the best quarter horses in the country in a rousing win before 12,685 fans at Los Alamitos race course Saturday night.

Owned by George Chittick of Long Beach, Kaweah Bar, ridden by Robert Adair, breezed to a 17.8 clocking for the biggest part of $8,000 Hard Twist Purse over Top Rockette.

The Palomino gelding paid $3.40 for his fifth win in six starts this year and it kept him on the inside track for horse-of-the-year honors for the second year in a row.

Running 350 yards instead of his favored longer distances, he broke well from the gate and was never challenged.

Adair had his share of controversy for the night.

The defending jockey champion and current leader had a falling out with trainer Knight and the dispute grew during the course of the day.

Prior to the fifth race, the stewards announced to the press box that Adair would not ride Kaweah Bar and that Gilbert Apodaca would mount instead.

Eyebrows raised and foreheads furled as the stewards attempted to patch up the quarrel so that the fans wouldn't be disappointed.

Prior to the sixth race, the report was that Adair was back on Kaweah Bar and everything seemed fine. But then Adair was scheduled to ride Certain Sompin' in the sixth and he was bet down to the 9-5 favorite in the field of eight.

However, as the horses were concluding their pre-race warmups and with only three minutes to post, the horse was ordered scratched and all money refunded.

Having the favorite scratched is unpopular both for the public and for the track and it probably didn't set well with Adair.

He had already reached the winner's circle, however, by bringing home Soda-sambar in the second for a $19 payoff, and when combined with Money Bell, the first race winner, a $180 daily double.

Sartorius won the third race under eleven-time riding champion Charley Smith for an $8.80 return while longshot Senators Bella took the fourth for a $20 payoff.

Mi Pie captured the 519 yard fifth race at even money to return $4 under Ronald Banks while Hanel-el, installed as the new favorite when Certain Sompin' was declared, paid $4.60 in his first outing at the track.

going to win the pennant we got to catch those kids.

"But in the end, I'd rather see the ball fall and lose the game than have two players run into each other and be out for the rest of the season."

Sizemore said he thought he heard Davis yell for the ball, so he cleared out of the way. But hearing wasn't easy for anyone, especially with 48,079 (49,974 paid) Met fans screaming.

"I know no one could hear," Davis explained. "I ran in for the ball and saw them running out with the gloves outstretched."

"I could have caught it if they were not there. But I'm not going to run into them and I'm not sure they could hear me calling."

Brewer was the tough-luck loser but he refused to blame anyone either.

"If anyone is to blame, it's me," said Brewer. "If Clendenon's not on first with a walk, we're still playing. I can't blame anyone for not catching that ball. They're trying to catch it, I know that."

The Dodgers were blanked for seven rounds by Cardwell, at 33 the veteran of the Mets' young mound staff. And he had a

BOB CHANDLER
Refreshing Receiver

Trojan Plans Built Around Top Receivers

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

John McKay's grease pencil skipped quickly across the paper pad.

"Here's something we're going to try," said the USC football coach, diagramming a play in which three wide receivers are employed.

"We have the greatest bunch of receivers I've ever seen in college football," continued McKay, "and we're trying to take advantage of this material."

The receivers of which McKay spoke are Bob Chandler, Sam Dickerson, Terry DeKraai and Gary Orcutt.

"I thought we had great receivers in 1962 with Willie Brown and Hal Bedsole," said the Trojan coach, "but with this group you don't fall off much when you substitute. It's unusual for them to drop the ball."

McKay is not worried about the players who will have to get the ball to receivers.

"We won't be a losing team because of our quarterbacks," he said.

As of the moment, sophomore Jimmy Jones is the top man in McKay's quarterback plans.

"Jones was the guy who did the best over-all job for us this past spring," he said. "And Jim Fassel (transfer from Fullerton JC) had an exceptional spring."

Senior Mike Holmgren isn't being counted out at quarterback, but McKay said "we'll have to wait to see how his knee is." Holmgren had knee surgery and sat out spring drills.

As the Trojans prepare for press and picture day Thursday at Bovard and their opening game Sept. 29 at Nebraska, McKay has these observations about his 1967 team and the possibility of an unprecedented fourth consecutive Rose Bowl invitation:

"Our strength is with our receivers and our offensive and defensive lines. I'd say our offensive and defensive backfields are our question marks."

"We'll definitely be better defensively, but I was hoping we'd be a lot better than we showed in the spring."

"I don't think you can have a real good defense without good linebackers. We looked at eight in the spring. Bob Jensen and Mike Haluchak were the best, but I'm betting on Greg Slough (6-3, 235-pound transfer from San Diego JC) to be a real good one. He runs the 40 in 4.8."

"We'll have more running plays and running passes by our quarterbacks. Both Jones and Fassel can be real good runners. And we don't believe in simplicity. We put an offense in our play book that includes everything done in football."

"Jones is not void of talent, although some people say he can't do the job for us. I disagree."

"We'll go to more full-back plays. Charlie Evans (6-1, 218-pound transfer from Utah) did the best job for us this spring. He can play almost any position with the exception of quarterback."

"I don't know who will be at tailback. We have five guys at that position. Lou Harris (transfer from Sacramento JC) has qualities a lot like Mike Garrett. He has run a 9.6 100 once and is about a 9.8 man regularly."

"As for the Pacific-8, you have to look at the start of the year and see who has the best quarterback. That would be Stanford with Jim Plunkett. He has proven he's an outstanding quarterback."

"If UCLA gets past its first game (Oregon State), it should have a fantastic season."

Stangeland to Greet 80 49er Gridders

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Eight of the 11 teams on Cal State Long Beach's football schedule this fall have veteran quarterbacks, a statistic that means defense will be emphasized when the 49ers report to fall practice Thursday.

"That is one of the two biggest problems we have," reports Jim Stangeland, CSLB's new football boss.

"We inherited some experience on offense, but none on defense and this is going to be a problem. Regardless of how good we are on defense, we won't be experienced."

It is a handicap Stangeland and his staff of Chuck Boyle, Ernie Johnson and Bill Miller have only three weeks to overcome.

Stangeland expects 80 athletes at Thursday's roll call. The 49er prospects will receive equipment and physicals and work out on campus through Saturday.

Sunday, Stangeland will move his football team to the Terminal Island Naval Base for two weeks of twice daily drills.

On Sept. 15, the club returns to campus for another week of practice before opening the season Saturday, Sept. 20 at UC Santa Barbara.

"We really have our work cut out for us," Stangeland admits. "Santa Barbara is a very, very fine football team. It could be the most experienced team we face. In fact, our first two games are as tough as any on our schedule."

After Santa Barbara, the 49ers travel the next weekend to Kingsville, Tex. for a battle with Texas A&I.

Last season, UC Santa Barbara, led by junior quarterback Jim Curtice, bombed the 49ers, 42-21. Curtice threw four TD passes as the Gauchos touched the 49er defense for 442 yards total offense.

Texas A&I, directed by sophomore quarterback Karl Douglas, handed the 49ers a 35-7 shellacking in 1966 as Douglas threw three TD aerials and set a school record by throwing for 297 of A&I's 599 yards total offense.

"We do have one advantage," Stangeland smiles. "Since we are a new program, we know more about our opponents than they know about us. I hope that's enough."

Among the 80 athletes Thursday will be two who missed spring ball with injuries and a third who has been in the service for two years.

Pacers Sign McKee

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Assn. announced Saturday the signing of Gerald McKee, a 6-3 guard from Ohio University.

One of the absentees in the spring is Billy Parks, the 49ers' all America end who had to miss the drills because of a broken ankle.

Parks is fine now, having worked out most of the summer with 49er quarterback Shawn McKinney and USC end Bob Chandler.

The other absentee is Buster Davis, a highly regarded junior college transfer from Ventura College who was sidelined by a knee operation in May. Buster is a defensive end.

The service veteran is Dennis Anderson, a big fullback from Pasadena City College who was drafted the day fall practices began at Cal State for the 1967 season.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Doves Plentiful But Land Scarce

The Hennessy Cup Race, the 18-Footer Regatta and all the other events of a very successful California International Sea Festival at Long Beach are now a part of history, but don't think for one moment that yachting and general boating are finished for the year. You'll see more regattas and more speedboats dashing through the Outer Harbor every weekend.

Yet, September is only days away and it's time to turn our attention to the dove season which begins Monday, Labor Day, Sept. 1. Don't try to beat that deadline because the Department of Fish and Game has many wardens in the fields to see that no shooting is done before the legal time of one-half hour before sunrise on Labor Day.

Provided weather conditions hold to the present highs without sudden thunderstorms and flash rains in the desert areas, it looks like one of the best dove seasons in history, but, once again, it is necessary to remind hunters that more and more areas are being posted by private landowners. This is especially true in Riverside and Orange Counties. If Orange County keeps up its tremendous growth, there may not be any places to shoot five years from now.

Remember that mourning, ringed turtle and Chinese spotted doves may be taken statewide, but shooting of white-winged doves is limited to Imperial, Riverside and San Bernardino Counties.

AS ALWAYS, THE COLORADO RIVER and Imperial Valley areas are the best bets for the unattached hunter on opening day. For instance, Antelope Valley of Los Angeles County is about the only place one can go and expect any kind of good shooting, but doves are peculiar little critters. If the nights turn chilly, the doves will move out and hurry to warmer climes.

Already, whitewings along the Colorado River have thinned to some extent because of thunderstorms earlier this month. Owens Valley has a tremendous population of doves, but the same situation could apply there. There's another thing to consider: Those little bird brains are bigger than you think and once the shooting starts, they'll scatter in a hurry.

Cuyama Valley and Lackwood Valley are the best spots in Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties. Great portions of the counties are posted and it requires permission from the landowner to hunt on his property.

If you are choosing San Bernardino County for your opening-day shoot, Lanfair Valley, Wild Horse Canyon, Von Trigger Hills and the Hackberry Mountains of the eastern portion of the county should provide the best hunting. All of that territory is in the high desert country. Western San Bernardino County is usually poor inasmuch as the birds move out before the opening. Just remember that they stay around springs and stock watering places.

THE SEASON BEGINNING ON LABOR DAY lasts through Sept. 30, with a limit of 10 doves in the aggregate on any one day. The state allows 20 doves in possession after the second day. Sunset is the closing time for shooting. If you are not certain about shooting hours, particularly the one-half hour before sunrise, carry a booklet with you. Almost all sporting goods stores have the tide and sunrise and sunset tables.

There will be another short season for doves. It will begin Nov. 20 and last through Dec. 14.

A rundown on Riverside and San Diego Counties shows many doves south of Perris, north of Lakeview and south of Moreno in Riverside County. Also, Coachella Valley might provide many limits as the birds are plentiful along the canals and areas south of Thermal and from Valerie Jean to Mecca. The Boulevard and Jacumba areas are the best in San Diego County.

Hunters are cautioned to stay out of Imperial Valley fields where there are growing crops, but harvested fields from Westmoreland and Niland south to Mexico should be excellent.

If you are going to hunt along the Colorado River, watch the river edge and all the brush patches and open fields from Lost Lake above Pithy south through Bard Valley. There are lots of whitewings in Bard.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Anybody who has fished Lake Havasu probably has lost a lure or two among those trees in Big Basin, opposite Lake Havasu City. I'm not saying that you won't lose more, but the McCulloch Corporation, which promotes Lake Havasu City, has let an $84,000 contract to a company for removal of the tops of 6,300 trees.

Naturally, the trees are going to be topped with chain saws, which the McCullochs manufacture. The trees will be cut with submerged saws 13 feet below the surface and the old wood towed to shore for disposal. That will leave many stumps where the bass may find havens.

Operations at two popular Southland Lakes will come to a close for this year next month. Wohford, near Escondido, and Irvine, near Orange, both will close at dusk on Sunday, Sept. 14.

Latest word from Irvine was that bass and catfish were still active, but anglers were finding the cooler hours of the day best for fishing, particularly for the largemouths.

The Los Angeles County Fire Department and nine members of its Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team recently used the department's 11-place helicopter and stocked 12,000 fingerling brown trout in Little Santa Anita Creek in the heart of the Sierra Madre Wilderness. The men and fish were airlifted to a ridge, where they descended on foot to back-pack the trout and plant them along the stream near Orchard Camp.

Power Boats at Stadium

Labor Day will be the last chance this year speedboat racing fans in Southern California will have to see the fast and furious speedboats in action at Long Beach Marine Stadium when the Southern California Speedboat Club presents its annual Pilot Club of Long Beach Labor Day Regatta.

Elimination will begin at 9:30 on Labor Day Monday with the thrill-minute racing getting underway at 12 noon.

One of the highlights of the big charity afternoon of racing will be the National Championship race for K-Inboard unlimited runabouts, which will see boats from all over the country competing for the national title.

Johncock Goes 158 in Practice Run
DOVER, Del. (UPI) — Gordon Johncock, driving a turbo-charged Offenhauser, sped around the Dover Downs Raceway at 158.898 mph Saturday in a practice run for today's Dover 200 auto race.

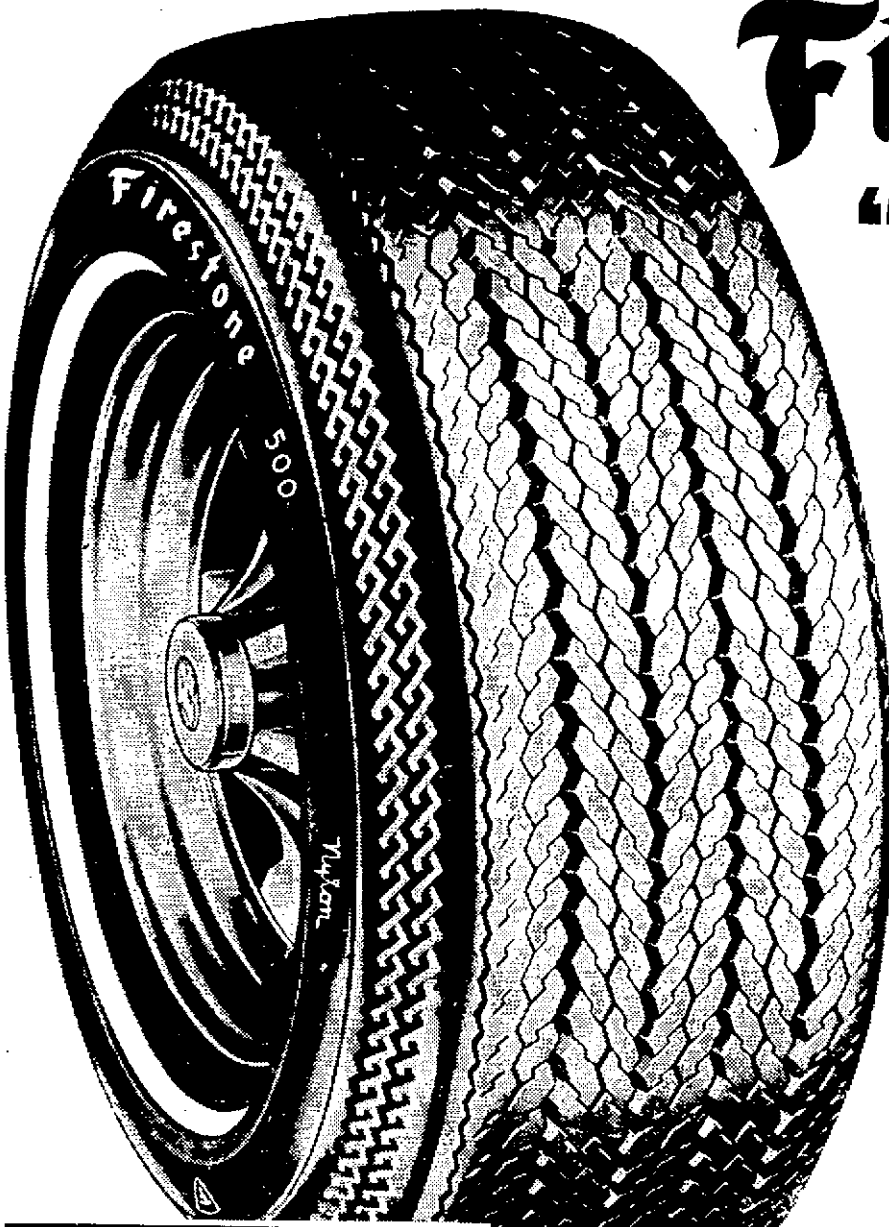

Johncock's time was achieved under simulated racing conditions with 20 cars on the track at one time. Ideal weather conditions made the track conducive to high speeds.

Who Says Fans Don't Support Losers?
MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos lost a double header to the San Francisco Giants Friday night but scored a victory at the box office. A crowd of 28,561 took in the two games to push the Expos home attendance over the one million mark. The expansion club now has a total home attendance of 1,013,678. The Expos average is 17,473 fans per date.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Doves Plentiful But Land Scarce

The Hennessy Cup Race, the 18-Footer Regatta and all the other events of a very successful California International Sea Festival at Long Beach are now a part of history, but don't think for one moment that yachting and general boating are finished for the year. You'll see more regattas and more speedboats dashing through the Outer Harbor every weekend.

Yet, September is only days away and it's time to turn our attention to the dove season which begins Monday, Labor Day, Sept. 1. Don't try to beat that deadline because the Department of Fish and Game has many wardens in the fields to see that no shooting is done before the legal time of one-half hour before sunrise on Labor Day.

Provided weather conditions hold to the present highs without sudden thunderstorms and flash rains in the desert areas, it looks like one of the best dove seasons in history, but, once again, it is necessary to remind hunters that more and more areas are being posted by private landowners. This is especially true in Riverside and Orange Counties. If Orange County keeps up its tremendous growth, there may not be any places to shoot five years from now.

Remember that mourning, ringed turtle and Chinese spotted doves may be taken statewide, but shooting of white-winged doves is limited to Imperial, Riverside and San Bernardino Counties.

AS ALWAYS, THE COLORADO RIVER and Imperial Valley areas are the best bets for the unattached hunter on opening day. For instance, Antelope Valley of Los Angeles County is about the only place one can go and expect any kind of good shooting, but doves are peculiar little critters. If the nights turn chilly, the doves will move out and hurry to warmer climes.

Already, whiteheads along the Colorado River have thinned to some extent because of thunderstorms earlier this month. Owens Valley has a tremendous population of doves, but the same situation could apply there. There's another thing to consider: These little bird brains are bigger than you think and once the shooting starts, they'll scatter in a hurry.

Cuyama Valley and Luckwood Valley are the best spots in Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties. Great portions of the counties are posted and it requires permission from the landowner to hunt on his property.

If you are choosing San Bernardino County for your opening-day shoot, Lanfair Valley, Wild Horse Canyon, Von Trigger Hills and the Hackberry Mountains of the eastern portion of the county should provide the best hunting. # Cycle Title to U.S. Woman

BRNO, Czechoslovakia (U) — Audrey McElmury of La Jolla, Calif., a 26-year-old mother, became the first United States citizen ever to win a world cycling championship Saturday when she triumphed in the 43-mile road race.

She was timed in 2 hours, 4 minutes and 27 seconds. Bernadette Swinnerton of England, was second. She trailed by 70 seconds. Nina Trofimova of the Soviet Union was third.

It was the fourth time Mrs. McElmury had competed in the world championships. Her best previous finish was fifth at Rome a year ago. Forty-four girls from 11 countries started with 33 completing the grind.

The race was held in a blinding rain. The contestants made five laps of the Masarykov Okruh track which winds over hills and through dense woods. Experts said it was the most difficult course ever assigned the women cyclists.

The men's 101-mile road race concludes the world championship today. More than 130 riders are entered.

Nationalist China Wins LL Crown

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., (U) — Nationalist China, behind the pitching of China-Yuan Chen, shut out Santa Clara, Calif., 5-0, Saturday to win the Little League World Series.

Chen, who had 11 strikeouts, allowed three hits. Only one California batter reached base in the last three innings. China bunched all of its runs into the second and fourth innings.

The Asians scored three times in the second on a double by Hung-Kai Uyu, an infield single by Hung-Chin Chen, a wild pitch that let in the first run, a passed ball that allowed the second run, a walk, and then a single by Kai-Ping Chuang that knocked in the third tally.

The Chinese added two more runs in the last of the fourth, on a single by Uyu, two errors, sacrifice fly by Shung-Hui Tsai, and a ground out.

Texas Boy Wins Soap Box Derby

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Steve Souter, 12, of Midland, Texas, defeated Richard Behan of Dover, and David Quinn of Oxnard, Calif., in the final heat Saturday to become the 1969 all-American Soap Box Derby champion.

Souter, a 4-foot-11, 81-pound seventh grader, won the Midland Derby in his first try and whipped all contestants in the 32nd running of the Soap Box Derby Saturday afternoon.

The champion, who described his racer as a "red torpedo," turned in the fastest time of the day when he raced down the derby track in 27.22 seconds in the first heat and was clocked at 27.34 in the final lap.

Babe Ruth Title to El Segundo

MATCOON, Ill. (UPI) — El Segundo, Calif., won the 18 annual Babe Ruth World Series Saturday by defeating Levittown, Pa., 2-0.

Nine teams started play Monday in the double elimination tournament. El Segundo emerged as the only undefeated team, winning all four of its games, while Levittown finished four and two.

Bullfights Today

TIJUANA — A bullfight on horseback will be the added attraction today at 4 p.m. at seaside Plaza Monumental.

At the Paris peace talks, negotiators still were unable to make any noticeable headway and the chief U.S. negotiator, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, flew to the United States to confer with President Nixon.

The worst storm of any kind that ever hit the mainland of the United States slammed into the Gulf Coast the first of the week. At week's end, the ravages of a hurricane were still being totaled. The death toll was near 300, property damage ran into the hundreds of thousands of dollars and the misery of the people in the path of rampaging Camille was more than could be imagined.

Hardest hit was Pass Christian, Miss., near Gulfport. Camille stormed ashore there from the gulf. When she had passed, there was water-logged desolation. As the waters whipped up by the hurricane subsided, rescue teams moved in. On Friday, gas-masked Sealbees found bodies "up in the trees, under the roofs and out in the open." The Louisiana and Alabama coasts, which had battered down for the "blow" fared better. Casualties were light in those states.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, toured the stricken area Wednesday to determine how the federal government could help. Agnew said, after viewing the scene, it "almost defies the imagination."

Farther north, Virginia and West Virginia also were assaulted by Camille. Torrential rains washed out bridges, flooded cities and claimed another 100 lives.

Robert H. Simpson, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, said, "By any yardstick you want to use, Camille was the greatest storm of any kind that has ever affected this nation. . . ."

DEFENSE CUTS WHICH AMOUNT TO $3 billion, the deactivation of 100 Navy ships, a 100,000-man reduction in the size of the Army and the layoff of 50,000 civilian employees were announced Thursday by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. The secretary cited congressional austerity pressures and the "economic needs in our country" for the reductions. Among the ships to be deactivated are the USS New Jersey, the only battleship in service in the world today, and 11 other Long Beach-based vessels.

A SOUTHERN DEMOCRAT and a fifth generation attorney was nominated a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. He is Federal Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., of Greenville, S.C., who considers himself a middle-of-the-road jurist.

In nominating Haynsworth, President Nixon described him as "an eminently qualified jurist, scholar and intellect. Opposition to the nomination was expressed by civil rights and labor leaders.

WELFARE PROCEDURES throughout the United States may be affected by a Federal Court ruling in New York. The judges ruled that recipients may not be denied benefits for refusing to admit caseworkers to their homes without warrants.

AMERICA'S POPULATION HAS INCREASED to 203.2 million, a gain of 23.2 million since 1960, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday. More than 46 per cent of all Americans are under 25, according to the bureau.

TESTIMONY AT A HEARING on an appeal by Teamsters Union boss James R. Hoffa and three others to have their jury-tampering convictions overturned revealed that the Justice Department keeps a special file on wiretap and electronic eavesdropping evidence at FBI headquarters in Washington. Charles Belz, FBI chief of accounting and records, testified in U.S. District Court in Chattanooga, Tenn., that a record is kept of all conversations which the agency bugs illegally.

Hoffa, Teamsters officials Ewing King and Larry Campbell, and Thomas E. Parks of Nashville, Tenn., are seeking to have their convictions overturned on grounds they were tainted with illegal bugging evidence.

TWO ENGINEERS AND A TRAINMAN were killed and 32 passengers were injured Wednesday night when two commuter trains collided on a shuttle line between New Canaan and Stamford, Conn.

Tanks, bullets and tear gas were used by Prague authorities this week to disperse up to an estimated 100,000 discontented Czechs chanting, "Russia Go Home!" The demonstrations came on the anniversary of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia last August to suppress the liberal regime of party leader Alexander Dubcek.

PROTESTANTS AND CATHOLICS buried their martyrs as bloody religious rioting ceased in Northern Ireland. The uneasy peace was being kept by British troops who took over command of Irish security forces. Premier James Chichester-Clark's leadership was challenged by the far right in his Unionist Party, but party representatives gave him a unanimous vote of confidence after a three-hour debate.

Israeli authorities Friday filed charges against an Australian Christian accusing him of setting fire to El Aqsa Mosque in occupied Jerusalem. The Arab world had blamed Israel for the fire in the Moslem shrine. An announcement in Tel Aviv identified the suspect as Michael Dennis William Rohen, a 46-year-old Australian working in Israel as a farm apprentice. The fire caused part of the roof of the 1,400-year-old shrine to collapse and charred the Saladin altar, a hallowed part of the mosque made of ivory and rare woods.

A 75-YEAR-OLD TRADE UNIONIST was elected president of India Wednesday. Varahagiri Venkata Giri, denied the ruling Congress Party's nomination because of his age, campaigned as an independent, but with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's personal blessing. She had refused to endorse her party's nominee, Sanjiva Reddy.

EIGHTEEN PERSONS PERISHED when an excursion vessel pitched violently in a squall on Lake Geneva and hurled 30 French vacationers into the water. Most of the dead were children.

SOVIET NAVAL STRENGTH in the Mediterranean was at an all-time high last week and U.S. Navy officials were puzzled over the reason for the buildup. Russian vessels totaled 63 to 65, outnumbering the U.S. 6th Fleet's 50 ships, bulwark of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization force in the Mediterranean.

NORTH KOREANS SHOT DOWN a U.S. helicopter with three men aboard when the craft apparently strayed north of the armistice line while on a training flight. At a special meeting of the Military Armistice Commission, the U.S. demanded return of the helicopter and its crew, but the Communists declined to even state whether the crewmen were alive.

American battle deaths in the first week of the intensified enemy offensive soared to 244, more than double that of the previous week. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, meanwhile, reportedly suffered 3,798 deaths. The high casualty rates reflected the intensity of fighting as Communist forces ended a seven-week lull by launching major attacks throughout South Vietnam.

In the Capital of Saigon, meanwhile, 100 persons were arrested in a month-old crackdown on an alleged enemy

we're largest because we're best!

MR. ROBERT C. WESTMYER, President of Rex L. Hodges, Former Educational Director of the California Real Estate Association (C.R.E.A.), responsible for many innovations and laws that have benefited both the public and the industry. Civic leader, financier, sportsman, he has developed a "family" of companies whose expertise and resources offer true "one-stop" service to buyers and sellers of any type real property.

MR. EARL CHRISTENSEN, Executive Vice President and attorney of Rex L. Hodges. Just being an attorney is not enough to counsel the Hodges family of companies. "Chris" has a background of ten years as trust officer and banking, plus his nearly ten years of practical, active real estate negotiating.

MR. JACK SAXON, Vice President of Marketing. Our executives just don't inherit a job—they earn it! Jack qualified to become a member of our "Million Dollar Sales Club" his first year with us. In addition to marketing he was appointed regional sales manager of our Orange County offices where sales are now 63% ahead of last year!

MR. BERNIE JONES, Hodges' General Sales Manager was "Associate of the Year" an honor bestowed upon him by the Long Beach Board of Realtors in competition with more than 1,000 members. He also was winner of a state-wide speech contest sponsored by C.R.E.A. "Bernie" has an enviable record of sales achievements in real estate.

MISS MARGARET STAFFORD, manager of Rex L. Hodges Property Management Co. For years home owners as well as income property owners have relied upon our management company to guard their investments. A full staff of handymen, plus a continual program of advertising puts the "no vacancy" sign on your property at a profit!

MRS. MABEL ERSKINE, Chief Escrow Officer and manager of Queen City Bonded Escrow Corp. Realtors will tell you she is one of the top technicians in Southern Calif. To doubly insure that all transactions are accomplished with safe precision, she has a staff attorney to check and guide those most difficult deals.

MR. STEVE HOLDEN heads up South Shores Insurance Agency Co. and has an outstanding background in most all forms of insurance, in particular insurance of real estate. And he has the exclusive advantage of our 40 years experience, for we know which companies pay all most satisfactorily—and those who sometimes do not.

MR. FELIX SMITH, President of AAA Mortgage Co., recently made this statement: "We'll GUARANTEE to obtain a government insured mortgage for you for 1/2 point less than competition on any transaction Hodges is involved with! If you get a loan for lesser points, we'll pay you the 1/2 point!" See, how Hodges family of companies can save you money!

Advent of Steam Car Starts to Look Like More Than Just Rumor

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

Steam engines are revving up again in research laboratories across the nation and the big question is: Will they sizzle or fizzle. On the answer may hang the shape of tomorrow's cars, and perhaps the purity of the nation's air.

Steam engines, sidetracked from the main line years ago because of their bulk and cost, have been

NEAR WATTS PROJECT Bulk Postal Plant Site Purchased

The Post Office Department has purchased a 52-acre site in South Central Los Angeles from Boise Cascade Building Co. for a bulk-mail handling facility that will serve 16 postal sectional centers in Southern California, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount has announced.

The multi-million dollar building will be located on the north side of El Segundo Boulevard, east of Avalon Boulevard. The undeveloped site is just south of the Watts District of the city of Los Angeles.

U.S. Representative Augustus Hawkins (21st District) and Charles H. Wilson (31st District), who were instrumental in arranging the site purchase, hailed the move as "a giant step towards solving the employment problem in South Central Los Angeles."

Employment for Thousands

"This huge facility will employ thousands of workers," Hawkins, in whose district the plant will be located, said. "It will form the principal employment base for a comprehensive new community to be built by and for the residents of the area."

Called Ujima Village, the community will be built on undeveloped land owned by Boise Cascade Building Co. and situated adjacent to the postal facility site. When fully completed, Ujima Village will contain approximately 700 new apartments and townhouses, a 10-acre shopping center, a 10-acre community center and a new elementary school.

The word "Ujima" is Swahili for "collective community effort," according to Charles Knox, special assistant to Hawkins and the man who spearheaded efforts to create the community.

"Ujima Village is sponsored by more than 50 citizens' groups in the black communities of South Central Los Angeles," Knox said.

A Cooperative Community

Knox said the Ujima idea was conceived in early 1963 and the community groups, ranging from black militants to the most conservative elements, were organized for action. "We went to the landowner, Boise Cascade, and obtained their cooperation in a long-range plan of development," Knox said. "We also obtained from the Post Office Department a statement of intent that they would build a major facility adjacent to the community to insure a solid employment base. Their purchase of the land now fulfills that pledge and assures the future of Ujima Village."

The Federal Housing Administration has approved initial financing of the project, covering the first unit of 300 apartments and two acres of commercial development, and construction is scheduled to begin late this year, Knox said.

The Post Office Department did not announce when construction would begin on the bulk-mail facility but did say that detailed studies are now underway to determine size and design requirements.

San Pedro Office to Close

Rep. Wilson, a member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, said the facility will handle non-preferential mail — periodicals, advertising circulars and parcel post — for some 13 million residents living in the area from Fresno south to the Mexican border.

"This facility will give Los Angeles three major postal plants," Wilson said. "First class mail will continue to be handled at the downtown Terminal Annex building. Air mail and airtel mail is dispatched from the Worldway Postal Center at the Los Angeles International Airport."

The new plant will include high-speed sack sorters and parcel sorting machines with computerized control mechanisms, the Post Office Department reported. Upon completion of the building, the temporary truck terminal at Cheli and the International Exchange office at San Pedro would be abandoned.

of automotive research revolutionized by space-age techniques.

Today, steam buffs say, the steam power plant is smaller, cheaper, quieter and, above all, far less air-polluting than the best comparable internal combustion engine.

While there are other uses for the steam engine, the biggest market is, of course, the passenger car but the major automakers have adopted a wait-and-see attitude, concentrating in the meantime on trying to control the emissions from conventional engines.

Despite this, federal, state and municipal agencies have ordered road tests of steam-powered vehicles, apparently hoping that Detroit will show more interest if the engines prove out.

Industrialist William P. Lear, onetime executive jet maker who has invested $10 million in a steam engine research plant at Reno, Nev., says both the oil and the auto industries have become "fully cooperative" in recent months.

"Apparently they are beginning to realize that the new federal smog restrictions, getting tighter each year, eventually will make the internal combustion engine extinct," Lear said in an interview. "The big cars Detroit loves to make — because there is more profit in a big expensive car than in a cheap little one — will be nothing short of antisocial. They will have to convert to steam if they want to go on making big cars."

LEAR WAS referring to a change in federal regulations beginning with 1970 models. Through 1969, controls were based on the concentration of pollutants in the exhaust, measured in parts per million parts of air. From 1970 on, controls will measure the volume of pollutants in the exhaust, expressed in grams per mile of travel.

"The concentration of pollutants is about the same for a big car as a small one," Lear said. "But the volume of exhaust from a big car is much greater because it has a bigger engine. This means that the man who can afford a big car contributes more smog than the man who drives a small car. That's antisocial."

Lear's firm is one of two chosen to install steam engines in California Highway Patrol cars for year-long road tests which began this month. The other is Thermodynamic Systems, Inc., Newport Beach.

Home Shoppers Still Prefer Quality, S&S Studies Show

The sales pattern and buyer surveys of S&S Construction Co. prove that the

"buy cheap, wear it out and buy another" philosophy hasn't been adopted by home shoppers as many experts have claimed. "They" say that "today's home shopper does not care about the items which marked a quality home of yesterday."

S&S has refused to depart from certain marks of quality construction. Included in this list would be construction with genuine lath and plaster throughout every home, use of standard conventional framing with top lumber grades, and insistence upon the use of high quality cabinetry, bath and toilet fixtures and hardware for the home.

Buyers have responded by the purchase of more than 11,000 S&S homes, giving S&S one of the highest consistent sales levels of any California homebuilder.

Recently S&S completed a large survey of recent buyers in six developments ranging from $30,000 to $30,000 in price. Of these new homeowners, 71 per cent reported that construction quality had been the most important factor in their selection of an S&S home.

"Many of our buyers," reported S&S Advertising Director Jack Coale, "took the time to write telling how important items such as genuine lath and plaster had been to their selection. More than 35 per cent reported that they had checked S&S quality with friends, relatives, or other S&S homeowners."

Jerry Degen, director of marketing for S&S commented further that, "our experience has convinced us that we must never depart from the best available quality for mass construction. Rising prices will force all builders to experiment with greater density in land usage, but we are determined to hold our line on home quality."

"Another indication of our buyers' demand for quality," added Coale, "is the importance of price in their selection. While many builders maintain that home price is the most important factor for sales, only 17 per cent of our buyers reported price as a major selection factor. The S&S buyer is definitely looking for quality, and is willing to pay for it."

We curse them, cajole them, kick them, run them and run into them.

But do we really know what makes the city's estimated 10,000 traffic signals click?

Not really, says Terence D. Searls, whose job it is to see that the city's 402 traffic signal equipped intersections flow smoothly.

Searls, the city's assistant traffic engineer, says the public has been indoctrinated with the philosophy that traffic signals are safety devices.

"They're not. People often say to me 'How many people have to be killed?' But the truth is traffic signals sometimes create worse situations."

SOUND LIKE HERESY coming from a traffic expert?

Searls adds a hasty explanation: "Traffic signals," he says, are traffic controlling devices. If the signals are properly applied and operated, there is an orderly flow of traffic and traffic safety is a by-product."

The city of Long Beach uses almost a quarter of a million dollars annually of taxpayers' monies to keep its traffic controls lit and operating. That does not even take into account "building" costs which can range from $8,000 to $15,000 depending on the complexity of the signal. These costs would swell almost twice the size if the city had to pay someone to install the signals. It doesn't though.

Signals Function--- to Move Traffic; Safety Secondary

Workers in the electrical division of the Public Service Department do the job.

The building costs come from the city Traffic Safety Fund. (That's the $14.50 you pay when you run a red light or are caught in other driving violations.) Right now the fund stands at $1,021,000. The city's traffic signals fall into three categories, according to Dallas Cooper, superintendent of the city's electrical division.

THE FIRST IS THE pre-timed or fixed-timed signal that is set to allocate so many seconds of red, amber and green without regard to the current flow of traffic.

Cooper says most of this type operate on a 60-second cycle with an average of 27 seconds of green, three seconds of amber and 30 seconds of red.

The second type of signal is the one that operates on one of the city's four systems. Cooper says as the cars enter the various systems, detectors in the street count the cars, feed the information to a computer that determines which lights should be which color, how long it will be that color and its time relationship with the lights at the following intersections.

He breaks the systems down thus: The first is the downtown system, bounded on the east by Alamitos Avenue, on the west by the flood control channel, on the north by Anaheim Street and on the south by First Street. It controls 89 traffic signals from a master control located in the Public Works Shop at 16th St. and San Francisco Avenue.

The second system is located on Ocean Boulevard and controls 12 traffic intersections from Golden Avenue on the west to Alamitos Avenue on the east.

THE THIRD SYSTEM IS ON Pacific Coast Highway and takes in the 17 intersections from the flood control on the west to the traffic circle on the east.

The fourth system is on Artesia Boulevard and controls the eight intersections from Atlantic Avenue on the west to Paramount Boulevard on the east.

Finally there are 103 traffic actuated intersections. These, says Cooper, are intersections where devices are built into the street surface to detect the approach of cars, and adjust the signals to varying traffic conditions.

Cooper says there are three types of detectors in use. The most common is the black rubber pad imbedded in the street. The second is the induclive loop. "The loop goes back to the box in the controller and when a car runs over it, it changes the electrical characteristics of the loop and tells the box controlling the signals," he says.

The newest type of detector is called the transducer. It is about the size of a beer can. Two of them are imbedded side by side, with wires coming out and going back to the controller. They are tuned to the magnetic field of the earth. If a car runs over it, it disturbs the normal field and is detected.

Maintenance-wise, Cooper says, the fixed-time signals require less care than the rest. He says the city makes about 1.44 calls per intersection per year while the systemized corners get five times the amount of care and the actuated gets roughly 12 times the amount.

"THERE ARE SIMPLY more goodies to go bad in the latter two," says Cooper.

The maintenance costs, he says, vary from a

Long Upturn in Corporate Profits Apparently Ended

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

The long uptrend in corporate profits has ended, according to the Research Institute of America, New York, despite the fact that U.S. corporations, as a whole, appear to have eked out another new high in total profits for the second quarter of the year.

The Institute's economic staff, in its current quarterly economic report, states that the long-awaited profit squeeze is now a reality; the "moment of truth" for profits has arrived. For many businesses, in fact, the squeeze has already been real, with increases in sales volume not enough to offset shrinking profit margins on sales.

Basic reason for the developing downturn in profits, as well as for the high profits until now, can be found in the relationship between unit costs and selling prices, the Institute reports. In manufacturing, for example, profit margins held up well during 1968, as long as makers were able to raise selling prices as fast as the costs of labor and material per unit were climbing. Now, however, this relationship is deteriorating, so that the price-to-cost ratio, profit margins, and total profits will be slipping.

On the basis of its regular survey of the business community, the Research Institute has concluded that this profit drop will not be severe — total after-tax profits for the second half should be about 5 per cent below the first half — and is in line with the Institute's general view of the business outlook. Its quarterly economic report finds that the fiscal and monetary restraints imposed by Washington are finally affecting the American consumer. Higher taxes and the limited availability of credit will increasingly cut into spending on big-ticket items, especially automobiles, over the next six to twelve months.

Business spending will also level off, partly for the same reasons as the consumer slowdown, and partly because of it. Federal outlays will remain on a plateau as well, so that the Gross National Product, the measure of all spending on goods and services, will grow very slowly from now through mid-1970. A first tentative look at the second half of the economy will once more be expanding by that time.

WILLIAM V. LUNEBURG, president of American Motors Corporation, said that U.S. car sales in the 1970 model year could reach 9.8 million cars, including imports.

Speaking to newsmen attending the national preview of 1970 American Motors cars at the company's proving ground at Burlington, Wis., Luneburg said, "It's still too early to put a precise gauge on the 1970 market, but I believe the basic economic indicators will support a high level of new car demand — higher than this year, in fact. We are currently working with a forecast of 9.7 to 9.8 million car market for the 1970 model year."

THE RISING FLOW OF ORDERS for steel could stretch out deliveries and squeeze steel users who have thinned down their inventories of the material, Steel magazine warns.

The steel business is unusually good for August, the publication pointed out. September is shaping up to be better than August, and it looks like October will be better than September. About 90 per cent of the normal September production is already spoken for, due largely to the start-up of new auto building.

Steel inventories are low at consumers' plants. Latest figures from the U.S. Bureau of the Census show that by July 1 steel inventories at manufacturing plants had slipped to 9.8 million net tons, lowest level since the 9.6 million tons at the beginning of February 1968. Consumers have trended toward low inventories because they believed mills could give them a steady supply and because of increased costs of carrying inventories, Steel explained.

Steel production is high for this time of year. Steel estimated that output of raw steel in the week ended Aug. 16 was 2,580,000 net tons, a rise of .6 per cent over the 2,555,000 tons made in the preceding week. The current rate of production is equivalent to 134 million net tons a year.

The investor and the tax reform bill — is discussed briefly in a newsletter from Goodbody & Co., New York. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away" says the Goodbody. In this rather material society of ours, we can perhaps take the liberty of restating this well-known phrase by saying "Washington giveth and Washington taketh away." This is seemingly what the tax reform bill, just passed by the House, and due for Senate consideration after Labor Day, will ultimately accomplish. Still more to the point, the reforms now proposed seem to take something from one group and give it to another. It has been estimated that on balance the changes may involve tax reductions in the neighborhood of $9 billion, only partly offset by tax increases of perhaps $7 billion. Yet, from the investor's point of view, the credits hardly appear to cancel out the debits.

First, a look at the credit side of the proposed tax changes. Reductions are planned in income tax rates for 1971 and 1972 which would ultimately save taxpayers about $4.4 billion. However, the average saving would be only about 5 per cent, and the changes are so structured as to provide a larger percentage savings at the lower income levels and somewhat less in the higher brackets. In addition, there would be an increase in the standard deduction, resulting in a $1.3-billion loss to the Treasury.

A provision of low income allowances would remove over five million tax payers with incomes below the so-called poverty level from the tax roll, and would cost the Treasury $2 billion more. It is also proposed to ease the tax burden for single persons over 35 and for such special situations as income-averaging and moving expenses. Upper-bracket taxpayers are given a minor break by limiting the tax liability to a 50 per cent maximum on earned income; this is over and above the dropping of the top tax rate from 70 per cent to 65 per cent.

From the point of view of the investor, these proposals may appear to be more like social reform than tax reform. The middle-income and upper-income taxpayers, who encompass the majority of individual investors, are, it seems, gaining very little by these proposed adjustments. Even without considering the impact of inflation, these groups may not be able to save more of their after-tax income when all these reductions have become fully effective than they can do now.

SCANTY NOTES OF entertainment expenses over $25 on a desk calendar do not an expense deduction make, at least not on their own merits, says Commerce Clearing House.

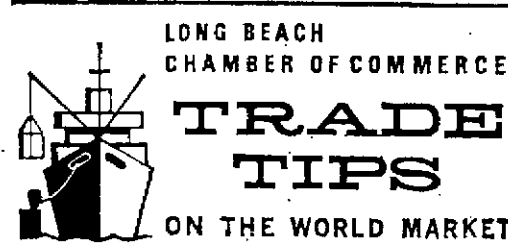

That's the nuts-and-bolts of a new U.S. Appeals Court ruling which holds such notes do not measure up to the substantiation requirements of the federal tax regulations in this area.

Thus, the taxpayer's contention that his "desk calendar" approach to entertainment expense records fully met the "adequate records" requirement of the tax Code was rejected.

NASA BORROWED A PAGE from the housewives laundry book to help guard against "Moon Germs" which might have been brought back to earth by Apollo 11. According to NASA Base Flight Bio-Technology Control, the disinfectant used to scrub down astronauts Armstrong, Collins, and Aldrin after splashdown was a solution of sodium hypochlorite — more familiar to housewives as liquid chlorine bleach, used in the home laundry for cleaning and stain removal as well as disinfecting.

The germicidal properties of liquid chlorine bleach have been well established by scientific research, according to the Products Research Department of the Clorox Company.

Sodium hypochlorite also was used to purify the drinking water which Apollo 11 astronauts took with them on their historic journey.

Exporter's Casebook: What did you Do Wrong? For the exporter with primary responsibility for getting dollars in, a little retrospection can go a long way toward raising his batting average. When you get a purchase order, everybody is so happy, you never stop to ask why you got it. But when you lose one, it's a traumatic experience, but still you seldom know why. The cardinal sin in the Exporter's Casebook is to lose an order and not know the reason.

That is why seasoned exporters place much emphasis on the lost business report. After an order is closed, a customer is usually quite willing to tell you what your faults were. He may not want to do it during negotiations, but afterwards he will. It's in his own interest to get you back into the mainstream with constructive criticism. And it's generally yours for the asking.

Exporters must learn three important things in such a playback: What you did wrong; what the competition did right; what is the customer's attitude. It wraps up you, the customer and the competitor all in a nutshell.

If you can have such a candid exchange during negotiations, so much the better. You may discover that the customer or the competitor is interjecting a fudge factor, and you can alter your strategy accordingly. The customer may tell you something is going to happen in two months, when you know very well that it won't happen for six months. With that type of person, you have to apply a fudge factor of your own.

So whether the exchange takes place in real-time or post-mortem, the need for candor is absolute. Honesty helps. Frequently you can show the customer why a given price or delivery is not realistic, and prove it by pure, simple logic. In our early days of exporting, we wanted to tell a customer honestly that we couldn't deliver in eight weeks. He probably would have said that he'd like eight but would settle for 16. But we didn't know enough to ask him.

Price is least likely to be the cause of losing the order. More common hang-ups may be delivery, the trader's attitude during negotiations, the past history of your supplier, or lack of candid, fully-explained handling of customer inquiries. In some post-mortems, customers indicated they didn't like the nature of correspondence wherein the overseas buyer was told to accept the American way or else; others felt a lot of American exporters were fat, dumb and happy. Still others indicated the U.S. exporter did not manifest sufficient interest in the detailed requirements of the overseas buyer.

In the lost-business report, the exporter should summarize in writing: What business was lost, and to whom; what was quoted, to whom; and how many times; what the competition quoted; and the trader's estimate as to why the order was lost. By finding where the deal was derailed, the results can be critiqued in writing for future guidance. If the post-mortem is used to keep you updated on the competition, bear in mind that the competition is doing the same thing to you.

That's the name of the game. In the final analysis of what tips the scale toward a given exporter, it is well to remember that when one guy gets the job and the others don't, the guy who did stayed in the mainstream, and gave a superior brand of service. A final word: the true and tried advertising slogan that "The More You Tell — The More You Sell" is a truth that cannot be denied. Please understand the foregoing is not offered as a preachment but mainly to tip Exporters to some of the hazards and pitfalls which they can avoid by listening to more experienced advice from time to time.

THIS WEEK THE mail bag unfurls a potpourri: mixed birdseed, wheat flour, fish food, cotton textiles, leather apparel, veneer plywood, stationery and office supplies, natural, synthetic perfumes, fertilizer for tobacco, insulated containers and cups, strong suitcases, bathroom fixtures, vitamins, and anti-corrosive paints. For the active exporter, it's all in the days work. What would you have, Mes-sieurs? The U.S. Exporter can supply anything from shoe polish to automobiles. Read these Trade Tips regularly and let the sound of the cash register bring forth music.

Steel Anticipates Autumn Upturn

This week's Index held steady at its week-ago level. Auto output retained last week's production level. While several plants have begun 1970 production, G. M. continues to put out '69 models, to make up for strike losses.

Steel production went down 3.0 per cent, as steel makers anticipate the beginning of an autumn upsurge in orders.

Crude oil refinery runs rose 2.6 per cent, reflecting a production increase in motor gasoline, jet fuel and distillate fuel oil; electric power output was off 1.1 per cent.

The surface transportation components registered gains. All other carloadings increased 2.4 per cent, due to a boost in coal and grain output. Intercity truck tonnage went up 1.0 per cent, reflecting a rise in retail sales; miscellaneous carloadings gained 5.0 per cent, due, in part, to heavy production of metals and metals products, and pulp and paper products.

Paperboard production fell 1.6 per cent.

Harbor View Has Recreation Club

Harbor View Homes, the popular Newport Beach neighborhood which only two weeks ago announced the 300th sale in 300 days, has reached another milestone in its planned development as a total community with the announcement of completion of a private family recreation club.

The club, called the Harbor View Homes Cabana and Swim Club, has been under construction for the past six months. Duffie Fyrling, who is sales manager of Harbor View Homes, and who has spent many years in the marketing and sales of planned communities, calls the club "the finest recreational facility I've ever offered."

The club is within a 10-acre park within walking distance of every home in Harbor View. Family activity will center around an outdoor Olympic-sized swimming pool. A toddlers' wading pool is adjacent to the big pool. An abundance of concrete decking rings both pools to accommodate rows of patio furniture. Overlooking the pool area is the country clubhouse, designed to serve as the center of neighborhood civic and social activities.

Harbor View Homes offers 2, 3, 4 and 5-bedroom homes in one and two-story plans. Prices range from $27,995 to $38,995.

Models are located at Ford Road and MacArthur Blvd. Take the San Diego or Newport Freeway to the MacArthur Blvd. offramp and drive south to the coast. Or take the Coast Highway and turn north on MacArthur Blvd. Models are on display from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day.

COMPTON Northrop Opens Second Facility

Northrop Corporation's Aircraft Division has opened its second Compton facility for manufacturing sub-assemblies for the giant new Boeing 747 jetliner, scheduled to go into service late this year.

The new 150,000-square-foot plant, located near the southwest corner of Alameda and Artesia Boulevards, features a high degree of automation and will be staffed by 400 employees at peak production.

Northrop has been operating a 140,000-square-foot plant at 17600 S. Santa Fe Ave. in Compton for the past two years, producing outer-wing assemblies and aft-fuselage sections for the Boeing 707 as well as passenger and cargo doors for the 747.

The new plant has nearly two miles of a unique overhead monorail system for ease in moving large aluminum skins, some weighing up to 1,000 pounds, throughout the facility for assembly work. Six automatic riveting machines are in operation and new electronic controls, including closed circuit television monitoring, are being installed.

The facility will enable Northrop to produce up to nine ship sets of 747 fuselage skin panel assemblies a month. These panels, measuring eight by 24 feet, are shipped to the Northrop plant in Hawthorne for assembly in sections up to 20 by 40 feet.

The completed sections are then shipped to the Boeing final assembly plant at Everett, Wash., to produce the 153-foot long, 20-foot diameter main fuselage for the 747, the world's largest commercial airliner.

Long Upturn in Corporate Profits Apparently Ended

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

The long uptrend in corporate profits has ended, according to the Research Institute of America, New York, despite the fact that U.S. corporations, as a whole, appear to have eked out another new high in total profits for the second quarter of the year.

The Institute's economic staff, in its current quarterly economic report, states that the long-awaited profit squeeze is now a reality; the "moment of truth" for profits has arrived. For many businesses, in fact, the squeeze has already been real, with increases in sales volume not enough to offset shrinking profit margins on sales.

Basic reason for the developing downturn in profits, as well as for the high profits until now, can be found in the relationship between unit costs and selling prices, the Institute reports. In manufacturing, for example, profit margins held up well during 1968, as long as makers were able to raise selling prices as fast as the costs of labor and material per unit were climbing. Now, however, this relationship is deteriorating, so that the price-to-cost ratio, profit margins, and total profits will be slipping.

On the basis of its regular survey of the business community, the Research Institute has concluded that this profit drop will not be severe — total after-tax profits for the second half should be about 5 per cent below the first half — and is in line with the Institute's general view of the business outlook. Its quarterly economic report finds that the fiscal and monetary restraints imposed by Washington are finally affecting the American consumer. Higher taxes and the limited availability of credit will increasingly cut into spending on big-ticket items, especially automobiles, over the next six to twelve months.

Business spending will also level off, partly for the same reasons as the consumer slowdown, and partly because of it. Federal outlays will remain on a plateau as well, so that the Gross National Product, the measure of all spending on goods and services, will grow very slowly from now through mid-1970. A first tentative look at the second half of the economy will once more be expanding by that time.

WILLIAM V. LUNEBURG, president of American Motors Corporation, said that U.S. car sales in the 1970 model year could reach 9.8 million cars, including imports.

Speaking to newsmen attending the national preview of 1970 American Motors cars at the company's proving ground at Burlington, Wis., Lunenburg said, "It's still too early to put a precise gauge on the 1970 market, but I believe the basic economic indicators will support a high level of new car demand — higher than this year, in fact. We are currently working with a forecast of 9.7 to 9.8 million car market for the 1970 model year."

THE RISING FLOW OF ORDERS for steel could stretch out deliveries and squeeze steel users who have thinned down their inventories of the material, Steel magazine warns.

The steel business is unusually good for August, the publication pointed out. September is shaping up to be better than August, and it looks like October will be better than September. About 90 per cent of the normal September production is already spoken for, due largely to the start-up of new auto building.

Steel inventories are low at consumers' plants. Latest figures from the U.S. Bureau of the Census show that by July 1 steel inventories at manufacturing plants had slipped to 9.8 million net tons, lowest level since the 9.6 million tons at the beginning of February 1968. Consumers have trended toward low inventories because they believed mills could give them a steady supply and because of the increased costs of carrying inventories, Steel explained.

Steel production is high for this time of year. Steel estimated that output of raw steel in the week ended Aug. 16 was 2,500,000 net tons, a rise of 6 per cent over the 2,365,000 tons made in the preceding week. The current rate of production is equivalent to 134 million net tons a year.

The investor and the tax reform bill — is discussed briefly in a newsletter from Goodbody & Co., New York.

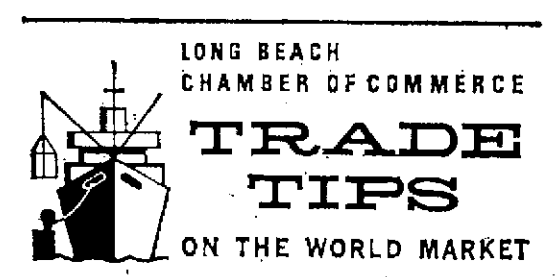

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away" says the Good Book. In this rather material society of ours, we can perhaps take the liberty of restating this well-known phrase by saying "Washington giveth and Washington taketh away." This is seemingly what the tax reform bill, just passed by the House, and due for Senate consideration after Labor Day, will ultimately accomplish. Still more to the point, the reforms now proposed seem to take something from one group and give it to another. It has been estimated that on balance the changes may involve tax reductions in the neighborhood of $9 billion, only partly offset by tax increases of perhaps $7 billion. Yet, from the investor's point of view, the credits hardly appear to cancel out the debits.

First, a look at the credit side of the proposed tax changes. Reductions are planned in income tax rates for 1971 and 1972 which would ultimately save taxpayers about $4.4 billion. However, the average saving would be only about 5 per cent, and the changes are so structured as to provide a larger percentage savings at the lower income levels and somewhat less in the higher brackets. In addition, there would be an increase in the standard deduction, resulting in a $1.3-billion loss to the Treasury.

A provision of low income allowances would remove over five million tax payers with incomes below the so-called poverty level from the tax roll, and would cost the Treasury $2 billion more. It is also proposed to ease the tax burden for single persons over 35 and for such special situations as income-averaging and moving expenses. Upper-bracket taxpayers are given a minor break by limiting the tax liability to a 50 per cent maximum on earned income; this is over and above the dropping of the top tax rate from 70 per cent to 65 per cent.

From the point of view of the investor, these proposals may appear to be more like social reform than tax reform. The middle-income and upper-income taxpayers, who encompass the majority of individual investors, are,

Thus, the taxpayer's contention that his "desk calendar" approach to entertainment expense records fully met the "adequate records" requirement of the tax Code was rejected.

COMPTON Northrop Opens Second Facility

Northrop Corporation's Aircraft Division has opened its second Compton facility for manufacturing sub-assemblies for the giant new Boeing 747 jetliner, scheduled to go into service late this year.

The new 150,000-square-foot plant, located near the southwest corner of Alameda and Artesia Boulevards, features a high degree of automation and will be staffed by 400 employees at peak production.

Northrop has been operating a 140,000-square-foot plant at 17600 S. Santa Fe Ave. in Compton for the past two years, producing outer-wing assemblies and aft-fuselage sections for the Boeing 707 as well as passenger and cargo doors for the 747.

The new plant has nearly two miles of a unique overhead monorail system for ease in moving large aluminum skins, some weighing up to 1,000 pounds, throughout the facility for assembly work. Six automatic riveting machines are in operation and new electronic controls, including closed circuit television monitoring, are being installed.

The facility will enable Northrop to produce up to nine ship sets of 747 fuselage skin panel assemblies a month. These panels, measuring eight by 24 feet, are shipped to the Northrop plant in Hawthorne for assembly in sections up to 20 by 40 feet.

The completed sections are then shipped to the Boeing final assembly plant at Everett, Wash., to produce the 153-foot long, 20-foot diameter main fuselage for the 747, the world's largest commercial airliner.

'Homes With Income' Project Nearly Done

Construction is nearing completion at Huntington Villas 10 new "homes with an income" properties, reports Marshal Wylie, development sales manager.

Wylie explains the "homes with an income" concept by which the property owner and his family enjoy the luxuries of a full-size, private home while receiving income from adjoining apartment units.

He points out that even the streets and ground sites are scenically engineered to impart the feeling of a single-home neighborhood. These aesthetic values add to the appeal of the rental units too and account for their high rate of occupancy, now at capacity, he says.

Huntington Villas centers just east of Beach Boulevard on Stark Street in Huntington Beach. It is reached from the San Diego Freeway by exiting at Beach Boulevard and driving south one block beyond Edinger Avenue.

Wylie reports a sellout of all but one of the home and apartment properties in the initial group, the one remaining structure being priced at $101,500. Properties in the new group under construction will be bracketed from $102,500 to $113,500.

Investment advantages at Huntington Villas include "first owner depreciation," the sales manager states. Loans at 7 1/2 per cent are available.

Developer of Huntington Villas and pioneer in "Homes with an Income" projects is George Zahler, Southern California builder.

Serious Work Is Being Done on Steam Driven Automobile

Thermodynamic's vice president for research and development, Don Johnson, also says he has no quarrel with major automakers.

"DETROIT IS cooperating far more fully than the public realizes," he said in an interview. "Historically, most inventions come from the small research companies and then are perfected and adopted by Detroit. Detroit has made a wise decision to let companies like ours do the development work because of the tremendous cost of change-over in a large corporation."

But, he says, "The technology for a steam-powered family car is already here. If Detroit doesn't start producing them in eight to 12 months, somebody else will."

Johnson estimated that even if a major manufacturer were to begin development of steam cars immediately, it would be at least three years before they could be perfected and placed in dealer showrooms.

Both Lear and Thermodynamic Systems are building racing cars for entry in the 1970 Indianapolis 500-mile race.

"If they won't let us race there we'll race somewhere else," says Johnson. "But I think they will because smog regulations are getting so strict that racers with internal combustion engines eventually will be outlawed."

A third steam racing car is likely but not definitely promised from a team composed of Planning Research Corp. and STP Corp., the latter headed by Andy Granatelli, builder of the controversial turbine-powered racers.

THE PRC-STP team is one of five firms which have submitted proposals in the national Pollution Control Administration's competition for a contract to design a practical passenger-car steam engine. The others are Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio; Continental Motors Corp., Detroit; Vaughn Aeronautical Division of Ling-Temco-Vought, Dallas, and Thermo Electron Corp., Waltham, Mass.

Frank Hoffman, who describes himself as "one of the steam buffs at PRC," said in an interview that the firm became interested in steam cars "because PRC is a problem-solving outfit and the government has a problem in smog control. After a great deal of analysis of the various means of controlling smog, we decided that steam-powered vehicles were the best available answer."

Engineer Hoffman explained why the development of steam cars fizzled early in the century and why he believes they are destined to become a sizzling success in the 1970s.

"The internal combustion engine beat out steam at the start of the automotive era because it was smaller, cheaper and safer," he said. "The tin lizzie sold for $900, as against $3,000 to $4,000 for a steamer."

"AND STEAM engines were dangerous in those days. They were built on the tea-kettle concept, in which a large volume of water is heated to generate a small amount of steam. Boilers were weak and there were frequent explosions."

"Today we generate large amounts of steam from small amounts of water, perhaps a couple of pints, in small coiled tubes. If a tube bursts it's only a leak, not an explosion.

Steam systems are external combustion engines. The combustion takes place outside the motor, or moving parts of the engine, in a chamber much like the burner of a home water heater. This burner heats coiled tubes, turning the water inside them into steam. The steam is vented into cylinders, driving pistons which turn drive shafts which turn wheels. Since there is no explosion the mixture can be less rich. Virtually all the fuel is burned and little if any pollution escapes into the air.

ONE OF THE biggest objections to the old steamers was the amount of space necessary for the power plant. Boilers, burners and cylinders left little room for occupants.

Even the best of the old steamers were noisy. They hissed like locomotives with every stroke of the pistons, and they roared when sudden stops forced them to dump steam rapidly to prevent explosive buildup of pressure. Tighter tolerances possible with modern metals have eliminated the hiss of escaping steam, and variable-heat burners, generating steam only as needed, mean there is no excess steam to dump in emergencies.

Steam designers say the advantages of their modernized engines are so great that steam is here to stay, regardless of whether Detroit ever accepts it. Some predict a $500-million-a-year business — in trucks, buses, earth movers, boats, light planes, helicopters, sand buggies, etc. — within five years, exclusive of any engines produced for family cars.

'Instant' Carpeting Is Shown

A small portion of the center divider strip of Laguna Niguel was "carpeted" last week as part of a unique demonstration by Cal Polymers, Inc. of Long Beach, developers of the "instant carpeting" process.

Laguna Niguel officials said the entire strip of Crown Valley Parkway, in addition to other landscaping projects throughout the community, may utilize the new instant seamless carpeting. Artificial turf, they said, is becoming increasingly more popular for a variety of outdoor uses, from gardens to stadiums.

The carpeting developed by Cal Polymers, Inc. combines the best properties of two well-known plastics, nylon and urethane, through an electrostatic process, according to company principals Morey Center and John Milton.

Once the carpeting is installed, Center explained, maintenance is practically

Unique Container Crane Soon Will Be Started in the Harbor

Erection of one of the shipping world's most unique container cranes will soon be under way at the Port of Los Angeles.

The new crane, which is the fourth container gantry crane in Los Angeles, is being built for Overseas Shipping Company and is a part of the firm's terminal modernization program at the West Coast port.

Overseas' program is the first to adapt a conventional cargo terminal to a container and conventional cargo-handling facility, says Bernard J. Coughlin, harbor general manager.

The port's chief harbor engineer, Lawrence I. Whitenek, said more and more equipment is being called for to cope with this onslaught of containers. Many major terminals have sprung into existence during the past decade. Already there are two complete container terminals at the Port of Los Angeles. A third total container fanegligible, as it can be easily washed down with a water hose, or occasionally vacuumed with an air pressure hose to restore its original appearance.

cility is under construction and two other facilities are being adapted for container handling.

The standard gantry cranes capable of handling all sizes of containers were developed for these purposes and have been erected in almost every major port in the world, says Whitenek.

"As long as these terminals are built on new sites, no major difficulties arise, and the size and space requirements of these mechanized operations are provided for in the terminal layout," Whitenek said.

He pointed out, however, that it is often overlooked that containers also have to be handled in fairly narrow port areas where special restrictions due to existing warehouses, narrow wharves and-or railway layouts make it impossible to erect any one of the standard container cranes.

Such restrictions existed at Overseas Shipping's Los Angeles facilities. Rather than completely remodel their terminal, they called in Houben Industries, Inc., to design a crane that would meet the company's needs without necessitating major reconstruction of their facilities.

Wolf Niepelt, vice president of engineering for Houben, said his company designed the crane to cope with the restricted space. "The crane will ride with the rear legs on top of an existing transit building, and to minimize the point loads on the wharf structure, the front leg gantry trucks ride on existing railway tracks, resulting in a wider load distribution."

"When our client told us that the crane must also handle bulk cargoes, we equipped it with a grab bucket attachment," he said.

One design economically provides for a rapid and efficient change-over from one operation to the other, a unique reeving system was devised which accommodates all attachments for the container hoisting, as well as a four-line reeve through bucket head.

The lift frame is equipped with a turning device which allows the operator to pick up the container regardless of its position. This avoids the ne-

$119 Billion in Insurance

California families ended 1968 with a record $119,964,000,000 of life insurance in force, after increasing their protection by $11,826,000,000 during the year, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

California's overall life insurance protection rose 11.0 per cent last year, compared with 9.6 per cent for the nation as a whole.

California's overall life insurance protection rose 11.0 per cent last year, compared with 9.6 per cent for the nation as a whole.

For container operations, the crane has a lifting capacity of 33 tons and its hoisting speed is 60 fpm (feet per minute). For bucket operations, the hoisting speed is 130 fpm and the lifting capacity is 15 tons total.

According to George Ecom, manager of Overseas Shipping Company's Harbor operations, construction and modernization work, including installation of the new crane, will be completed by the end of summer.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM

Real Estate Market Faces Some Sweeping Changes

By DON G. CAMPBELL

Tight money, soaring interest rates and all of the other crosses that we have to bear these days are bringing about some pretty sweeping changes in the real estate market and, in particular, in commercial real estate.

One of the relatively new gimmicks to make its appearance in this area is touched on by the following correspondent:

MR. CAMPBELL:

In spite of the way interest rates, and the cost of practically everything else, too, keeps going up, I have been thinking very seriously about building a new 40 or 50-unit apartment building on some land that I have owned for years.

"This probably isn't the best time to do this, but there's a large plant going in near my property and the housing shortage here is already pretty bad."

My lawyer has put me in touch with an insurance company that has indicated it might be interested in financing the deal for me, but the first thing their real estate man started talking about was his company's "participation" in the apartments.

I just want financing on this -- not a partner. Am I being naive, or isn't this something that's pretty new?

ANSWER: Well it's about as new as the hangnail -- money-lenders have always wanted "a piece of the action" whenever they could get it, but it has only been comparatively recently that they have moved into the commercial real estate field in a big way. The villain? Not the lenders, who are simply trying to keep ahead of the game, but -- once again -- inflation.

The fact of the matter is that a lot of the institutional investors, primarily insurance companies, who used to invest in one-family residences are now terrified at the idea of getting tied up in 20 and 25 year mortgages yielding them 7½ or 8 per cent interest. By this time next year they may have to pay 10 per cent to get the money, themselves.

As a result of this, many of the institutional investors are turning entirely to commercial real estate where, in the first place, they can make a higher return on their money than they can on residential property (usually 1½ to 2 per cent more than the statutory limit on residential mortgages) and, in addition, can demand an "equity kicker" to boot.

This simply means that the lender can demand, and get, an active participation in the property once it is built -- usually 2 or 3 per cent of the gross rents for the life of the building.

You can't really blame them for taking this position but, at the same time, the big investors -- by moving out of the residential field altogether -- are leaving an inordinate burden of the home financing on the savings and loan associations which, by law, are charged with putting most of their funds in one-family housing units.

MR. CAMPBELL:

You wrote in a recent column to Mr. H. E. H. that money spent on remodeling or rebuilding a home is not deductible in determining any capital gains tax from subsequent sale.

I beg to disagree. It has always been an IRS rule that any major repair or improvement to an older home (or any other dwelling) which increases its physical and economic life can be added to the acquisition cost to form a new cost basis. This new cost basis is then used for depreciation purposes in the case of income producing property (two-or-more-family dwelling) and capital gains tax determination purposes in case of future sale.

I have had considerable experience as a tax accountant and this question has occurred many times. I would appreciate your correction.

ANSWER: I would be happy to make such a correction except for one thing: who said anything about "income producing property?" The subject under discussion was that of a private residence being sold in order to buy another private residence -- normal repairs to which the IRS considers to be "personal improvements" and not deductible except as they relate to last-minute

Campbell welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately, he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many as possible through his column.

'Instant' Carpeting Is Shown

A small portion of the center divider strip of Crown Valley Parkway in Laguna Niguel was "carpeted" last week as part of a unique demonstration by Cal Polymers, Inc. of Long Beach, developers of the "instant carpeting" process.

Laguna Niguel officials said the entire strip of Crown Valley Parkway, in addition to other landscaping projects throughout the community, may utilize the new instant seamless carpeting. Artificial turf, they said, is becoming increasingly more popular for a variety of outdoor uses, from gardens to stadiums.

The carpeting developed by Cal Polymers, Inc. combines the best properties of two well-known plastics, nylon and urethane, through an electrostatic process, according to company principals Morey Center and John Milon.

Once the carpeting is installed, Center explained, maintenance is practically

Unique Container Crane Soon Will Be Started in the Harbor

Erection of one of the shipping world's most unique container cranes will soon be under way at the Port of Los Angeles.

The new crane, which is the fourth container gantry crane in Los Angeles, is being built for Overseas Shipping Company and is a part of the firm's terminal modernization program at the West Coast port.

Overseas' program is the first to adapt a conventional cargo terminal to a container and conventional cargo-handling facility, says Bernard J. Coughlin, harbor general manager.

The port's chief harbor engineer, Lawrence I. Whiteneck, said more and more equipment is being called for to cope with this onslaught of containers. Many major terminals have sprung into existence during the past decade. Already there are two complete container terminals at the Port of Los Angeles. A third total container fanegligible, as it can be easily washed down with a water hose, or occasionally vacuumed with an air pressure hose to restore its original appearance.

cility is under construction and two other facilities are being adapted for container handling.

The standard gantry cranes capable of handling all sizes of containers were developed for these purposes and have been erected in almost every major port in the world, says Whiteneck.

"As long as these terminals are built on new sites, no major difficulties arise, and the size and space requirements of these mechanized operations are provided for in the terminal layout," Whiteneck said.

He pointed out, however, that it is often overlooked that containers also have to be handled in fairly narrow port areas where special restrictions due to existing warehouses, narrow wharves and/or railway layouts make it impossible to erect any one of the standard container cranes.

Such restrictions existed at Overseas Shipping's Los Angeles facilities. Rather than completely remodel their terminal, they called in Houben Industries, Inc., to design a crane that would meet the company's needs without necessitating major reconstruction of their facilities.

Wolf Niepelt, vice president of engineering for Houben, said his company designed the crane to cope with the restricted space. "The crane will ride with the rear legs on top of an existing transit building, and to minimize the point loads on the wharf structure, the front leg gantry trucks ride on existing railway tracks, resulting in a wider load distribution."

"When our client told us that the crane must also handle bulk cargoes, we equipped it with a grab bucket attachment," he said.

One design economically provides for a rapid and efficient change-over from one operation to the other, a unique reeving system was devised which accommodates all attachments for the container hoisting, as well as a four-line reeve through bucket head.

The lift frame is equipped with a turning device which allows the operator to pick up the container regardless of its position. This avoids the ne-

$119 Billion in Insurance

California families ended 1968 with a record $119,964,000,000 of life insurance in force, after increasing their protection by $11,826,000,000 during the year, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

California's overall life insurance protection rose 11.0 per cent last year, compared with 9.6 per cent for the nation as a whole.

In spite of the way interest rates, and the cost of practically everything else, too, keeps going up, I have been thinking very seriously about building a new 40 or 50-unit apartment building on some land that I have owned for years.

This probably isn't the best time to do this, but there's a large plant going in near my property and the housing shortage here is already pretty bad. My lawyer has put me in touch with an insurance company that has indicated it might be interested in financing the deal for me, but the first thing their real estate man started talking about was his company's "participation" in the apartments.

I just want financing on this — not a partner. Am I being naive, or isn't this something that's pretty new? ANSWER: Well it's about as new as the hangnail — money-lenders have always wanted "a piece of the action" whenever they could get it, but it has only been comparatively recently that they have moved into the commercial real estate field in a big way. ### WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM

Real Estate Market Faces Some Sweeping Changes

By DON G. CAMPBELL
Tight money, soaring interest rates and all of the other crosses that we have to bear these days are bringing about some pretty sweeping changes in the real estate market and, in particular, in commercial real estate.

One of the relatively new gimmicks to make its appearance in this area is touched on by the following correspondent:

MR. CAMPBELL:

In spite of the way interest rates, and the cost of practically everything else, too, keeps going up, I have been thinking very seriously about building a new 40 or 50-unit apartment building on some land that I have owned for years.

This probably isn't the best time to do this, but there's a large plant going in near my property and the housing shortage here is already pretty bad.

My lawyer has put me in touch with an insurance company that has indicated it might be interested in financing the deal for me, but the first thing their real estate man started talking about was his company's "participation" in the apartments.

I just want financing on this — not a partner. Am I being naive, or isn't this something that's pretty new?

ANSWER: Well it's about as new as the hangnail — money-lenders have always wanted "a piece of the action" whenever they could get it, but it has only been comparatively recently that they have moved into the commercial real estate field in a big way. The villain? Not the lenders, who are simply trying to keep ahead of the game, but — once again — inflation.

The fact of the matter is that a lot of the institutional investors, primarily insurance companies, who used to invest in one-family residences are now terrified at the idea of getting tied up in 20 and 25 year mortgages yielding them 7½ or 8 per cent interest. By this time next year they may have to pay 10 per cent to get the money, themselves.

As a result of this, many of the institutional investors are turning entirely to commercial real estate where, in the first place, they can make a higher return on their money than they can on residential property (usually 1½ to 2 per cent more than the statutory limit on residential mortgages) and, in addition, can demand an "equity kicker" to boot.

This simply means that the lender can demand, and get, an active participation in the property once it is built — usually 2 or 3 per cent of the gross rents for the life of the building.

You can't really blame them for taking this position but, at the same time, the big investors — by moving out of the residential field altogether — are leaving an inordinate burden on the savings and loan associations which, by law, are charged with putting most of their funds in one-family housing units.

MR. CAMPBELL:

You wrote in a recent column to Mr. H. E. H. that money spent on remodeling or rebuilding a home is not deductible in determining any capital gains tax from subsequent sale.

I beg to disagree. It has always been an IRS rule that any major repair or improvement to an older home (or any other dwelling) which increases its physical and economic life can be added to the acquisition cost to form a new cost basis. This new cost basis is then used for depreciation purposes in the case of income producing property (two-or-more-family dwelling) and capital gains tax determination purposes in case of future sale.

I have had considerable experience as a tax accountant and this question has occurred many times. I would appreciate your correction.

ANSWER: I would be happy to make such a correction except for one thing: who said anything about "income producing property?" The subject under discussion was that of a private residence being sold in order to buy another private residence — normal repairs to which the IRS considers to be "personal improvements" and not deductible except as they relate to last-minute Campbell welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately, he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many as possible through his column.

Chamber Group Plans Business Need Study

The Long Beach Chamber's new Research Committee, under the chairmanship of Llewellyn Bixby IV, vice president, Bixby Land Co., is considering a number of projects designed to complement the Chamber's program and fill the need for information in the community. Ray di Piazza, director of Research for the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, was named vice chairman of the group.

The committee originally was established by the Board of Directors to bring together experts in the Long Beach area in the field of research and its application to economics, business analysis, industrial development, and socio-economic development; to gather and analyze information and to recommend action for business and community growth. It also will sponsor educational programs such as business development conferences and seminars.

Other members of the Research Committee's Executive Planning Committee are Seymour Abt, manager of the Broadway Department Store in Los Altos; Gene Ashwill of Ashwill-Burke; Ernest Mayer, Director of Planning for the City of Long Beach; Robert P. Milton, Director of Long Range Planning at McDonnell Douglas; and Dr. Arthur Prell, Dean of the School of Business Administration, California State College at Long Beach. Richard Anderson, Director of Research for the Long Beach Chamber, will act as coordinator for the group. The general membership of the committee will be expanded to include a wide cross section of the business community.

Suggestions for committee projects include development of an industrial property inventory file updated on a scheduled basis; a labor supply study indicating origin and destination of workers; a scientific input-output study to determine types of industries most suited for development in the local economy; statistical publications; and the development of a data center, or library.

The Research Committee will begin a survey of the business community to determine the need of these projects. Anyone who may have other suggestions is asked to contact the Chamber.

Magnavox Eliminates Adjustment

A new color television set has been announced by Magnavox. Called TAC, for Total Automatic Color, this "new generation" of color television eliminates constant picture adjustments by concentrating on holding flesh tones at a natural level, according to the company. Sets with TAC included will be available to the public nationwide on August 17.

Total Automatic Color is an automated color television reception system that continuously monitors color and picture — automatically — regardless of program or channel changes and compensates for inconsistencies which originate at the broadcasting station.

Green Valley Townhouses Put on Sale

The final two story, Mediterranean styled townhouses in Orange County's Green Valley community will go on sale today with the agents offering models, and model home furniture in the closeout action.

Half a hundred of the homes have been sold during the past six weeks and the final sale will conclude the liquidation of the property near the new Orange County, "Mile Square" public golf course in Fountain Valley. The site is about six miles from Huntington Beach State Beach.

Along with the features of the homes that highlight large double garages, built in kitchens, large private patios, and wall to wall carpet. The community includes two pools, a large private park, play area, putting green, and close schools, churches and shopping.

Three and four bedroom plans are included in the final close out with purchasers promised quick occupancy. Savings as much as $3,000 are stressed by the selling agents with both FHA and Veteran terms available. Veterans may move in for no down payment.

The liquidation sales headquarters is just South of Warner Ave. between Brookhurst and Euclid in Fountain Valley.

Birthday Festival Turning Neat Profit for San Diego

By DAN TEDRICK
SAN DIEGO (S) — The birthday party cost $1 million but San Diego, riding high with record tourism and wealth, is more than happy.
The road through the 200th anniversary year has been rocky:
— Cloudy weather in early summer is blamed for fewer visitors than hoped.
— A major highway bottleneck halfway from Los Angeles turned back plans of others to come.
— The Pope, invited to take part because San Diego was Christianity's first foothold in California, couldn't come.
— The money-making attractions in the Mexican "Old Town" Fiesta produced less than expected. Some concessionaires grumbled.
"All in all, it's been wonderful," says John F. Borchers, manager of the Chamber of Commerce. "If only for the publicity, it's been worth every penny."
City spokesmen and officials of the nonprofit 200th Anniversary Inc. agree. Robert W. Arubym, executive vice president of the Anniversary, said "there was a time" when lagging finances and higher expenses than expected made officials consider closing the fiesta early.
A month ago, when it appeared a $150,000 debt might result, the city imposed tighter control on spending.
Hotels are full. The Convention and Visitors Bureau figures $184 million was left in San Diego through June 30 compared with $157 million in the first half of 1968.
Now, Arubym says, it appears Fiesta 200 will close Nov. 2 in the black.

The special merchandising has produced $400,000, and the city recently added $300,000 to bring to $620,000 the contributions in city and county funds. The sales tax and room tax, earmarked for such tourist promotion, both show healthy increases in 1969.

MINI-TV FITS IN POCKET

A hint of the future in television viewing is seen in an experimental shirt-pocket TV receiver developed by engineers of Motorola, Inc., Chicago.
Pointing out that it has no present plans to produce or sell such a set, Motorola has demonstrated at engineering meetings a tiny black and white television receiver with a 1 1/2 inch picture which may be carried in a shirt pocket.
The late DeLass Tanner, of the Motorola consumer products engineering department, directed the advanced engineering project.
Sound is picked up through a lightweight earphone which also houses the antenna for the receiver. Total volume of the package is about 13 cubic inches, most of which is occupied by the picture tube, power supply and batteries. Total weight of the package is less than one pound.
Power for the receiver is provided by four mercury-penlight cells and power consumption is 1-1/2 watts of which half is required for the picture tube heater.
The experimental receiver, which presently operates on only one television channel, has a sensitivity comparable to conventional portable TV sets. The set has a total of 29 Motorola transistors and 14 diodes.

INSURANCE

Joseph Ron Bjorn Dahl has been named vice president and general manager of the Walker & Lee Insurance Inc. He will supervise a staff from the firm's office, 1377 S. Manchester Blvd., Anaheim.

Tri-Cor Expands

The upswing in the popularity of metal buildings has created a boom for Tri-Cor, Inc., construction firm and largest franchised dealer in the United States for the Pascoe Steel Corp.

Mushrooming construction figures have resulted in Tri-Cor adding 3,000 square feet of working space to the local plant, double 1968 sales of $3 million, and creating positions for six new executives who will supervise a new high of 20 employees.

Tri-Cor, based in Long Beach at 1301 E. Burnett, can assemble over 2,000 different varieties of pre-engineered metal buildings as well as other types of structures.

Added recently to the Tri-Cor staff, according to President Bob Slatton were: Robert Baca, controller and office manager; Sherwood V. Bailey, special projects manager; Jim Bergren, district sales manager; Bill Bond, district sales manager; Robert Young, district sales manager, and Dave Hilsley, estimator.

WELCOME

Councilman Thomas J. Clark, left, presents a key to the city to Aaron Shaw, vice president of Disco Fair, and welcomes him to the Long Beach business community. Clark made the presentation Thursday at the Grand Opening of the Disco Fair store at 2270 Bellflower Blvd. The new Disco Fair, located in Councilman Clark's fourth district, is one of the largest and most complete department stores in the nation. It is the fourth store opened in the Southland in the last month by Disco Fair, a subsidiary of Beck Industries.

Two Reappointed to County Panel

Two Long Beach members of the Los Angeles County Citizens Economy and Efficiency Committee were reappointed to one-year terms by Supervisor Burton W. Chace.

Reappointed were Gus A. Walker, president of Farmers and Merchants Bank of Long Beach and L. E. McKee, a Long Beach resident and immediate past chairman of the Los Angeles County Grand Jury.

Lucky Stores Earnings Are Up 34 Per Cent

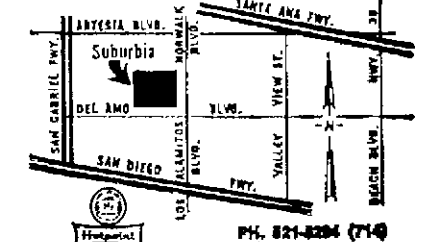

Lucky Stores earnings for the second quarter, ended August 3, were 34 per cent above earnings for the second quarter 1968, on a 19 per cent increase in sales. It was announced by Gerald A. Awe, chairman of the board.
Earnings amounted to $4,367,000 compared to $3,259,000 in 1968. Sales for the quarter were $301,177,000 compared to $252,757,000 in the second quarter last year — an increase of 19 per cent.
During the quarter, Lucky opened one store and closed three, bringing the total of 402 in operation at the end of the quarter.
For the 26 weeks to date, sales were $502,240,000, as compared to $453,595,000 in the first half of 1968 — an increase of 30 per cent. Earnings from operations were $8,049,000 in 1968 — compared to $5,535,000 in 1968 — an increase of 45 per cent.

Board Foresees Less Spending on Expansion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board says many of the nation's 200 largest corporations are planning to spend slightly less the rest of this year on expanding plants and new equipment.
An informal survey showed most firms will spend about the same amount in 1970 as in 1969 on plants and equipment. An exception was utilities, which have increased their capital outlays for both the remainder of 1969 and 1970.

Consider the alternatives...

There are lots of houses in Cerritos. Some are landscaped; some offer carpets; others have low interest rates. Then there's Suburbia-Cerritos — with landscaping, including sprinklers and a tree; with carpeting and draperies and built-ins and cathedral ceilings and fireplaces and concrete drives all included in the purchase price, which starts at $26,950. And our interest rate is still only 7 1/2%. There really IS only one choice.

MINI-TV FITS IN POCKET

A hint of the future in television viewing is seen in an experimental shirt-pocket TV receiver developed by engineers of Motorola, Inc., Chicago.

Pointing out that it has no present plans to produce or sell such a set, Motorola has demonstrated at engineering meetings a tiny black and white television receiver with a 1½ inch picture which may be viewed while the unit is carried in a shirt pocket. The late DeLoss Tanner, of the Motorola consumer products engineering department, directed the advanced engineering project.

Sound is picked up through a lightweight earphone which also houses the antenna for the receiver. Total volume of the package is about 13 cubic inches, most of which is occupied by the picture tube, power supply and batteries. Total weight of the package is less than one pound.

Birthday Festival Turning Neat Profit for San Diego

By DAN TEDRICK

SAN DIEGO — The birthday party cost $1 million but San Diego, riding high with record tourism and wealth, is more than happy.

The road through the 200th anniversary year has been rocky.

— Cloudy weather in early summer is blamed for fewer visitors than hoped.

— A major highway bottleneck halfway from Los Angeles turned back plans of others to come.

— The Pope, invited to take part because San Diego was Christianity's first foothold in California, couldn't come.

— The money-making attractions in the Mexican "Old Town" Fiesta produced less than expected. Some concessionaires grumbled.

"All in all, it's been wonderful," says John F. Borchers, manager of the Chamber of Commerce. "If only for the publicity, it's been worth every penny."

City spokesmen and officials of the nonprofit 200th Anniversary Inc., agree. Robert W. Arnheim, executive vice president of the Anniversary, said "there was a time" when lagging finances and higher expenses than expected made officials consider closing the fiesta early.

A month ago, when it appeared a $150,000 debt might result, the city imposed tighter control on spending.

Hotels are full. The Convention and Visitors Bureau figures $184 million was left in San Diego through June 30 compared with $157 million in the first half of 1968.

Now, Arnheim says, it appears Fiesta 200 will close Nov. 2 in the black.

7.5 Per Cent Interest Loan Rate Offered

For a limited time builder Don Ayres, Jr. is offering 7.5 per cent interest loans at his Rancho La Cuesta in Cerritos.

The homes sell for $23,540 to $31,050 on free-simple land, meaning buyers get title to their land as well as the homes.

A complex of four furnished and decorated model homes is open daily at 13001 Artesia Blvd. to illustrate the four basic floor plans, each with a choice of three exterior stylings.

The homes are characterized by tasteful use of masonry blended with rough-hewn stained beams and siding with color coat stucco.

Cerritos, one of the fastest growing cities in California, is located close to the Artesia, Santa Ana and San Gabriel Freeways and Highway 39.

An influx of industrial and business firms complements the orderly residential growth of Cerritos to support the population boom and tax structure.

Indoor, Outdoor Carpet Popular

By HAI HAMMERMAN

Prior to 1964, no one had ever heard of an "indoor-outdoor" carpet. They popped up everywhere, on patios, hotel entrances, airport concourses and on sun decks. In four years, they have proved themselves without question.

New, the amazing fiber used to make this carpet is being extended even further for household use. Several carpet manufacturers use this fiber for a wide line of indoor carpets, and the fiber is to be used beginning this year as an upholstery material.

What makes this fiber so popular? It will not rot or mildew. It is guaranteed against moths. It resists virtually all food, beverage and household chemical stains. It is non-static and non-allergenic. And it will not fade except under the most severe of conditions.

WHAT IS IT? It is a polypropylene olefin fiber, the latest in the many families of chemical fibers that include rayon and nylon.

About one-quarter of all U.S. polypropylene is produced by Enjay Fibers and Laminates Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), under the trade name Vectra.

The fiber doesn't fade because the color is added in the raw solution. It is easy to clean because the fiber is non-absorbent.

In carpets, some manufacturers are now making the backing of polypropylene because the backing won't absorb a stain and later spread it back to the fibers. In fact, a concentrated bleach solution doesn't harm either the fiber or the color.

PERHAPS most important to homeowners is a new freedom in using carpet as a creative design element in the home.

Carpeting can extend the indoor area right outside.

And now one manufacturer is producing a die-cut sections of carpet that are fitted together like a jigsaw puzzle in sixteen colors.

Other design combinations of color and shape are equally feasible on the job.

Knowing that you can do this in combination with your remodeling plans is a strong stimulus toward an imaginative approach. The taste level of the American public is at an all-time high, and this new flexibility in carpeting lets homeowners exercise their taste with a flair.

QUESTION: We have bought a home which has concrete steps that were painted. We did not mind the color of the steps, but the paint wears off so quickly it looks terrible and we do not look forward to painting the steps regularly. How can we either get the paint off or make it fairly permanent?

ANSWER: A synthetic polymer type of plastic finish will outlast the usual concrete paints by three or four times.

Home Sales Caught in 2-Way Squeeze

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)

If you plan to buy a home, you're walking into the toughest market since the end of World War II.

Prices have spiraled and homes in many cities are in short supply. In its semiannual survey of housing markets, Advance Mortgage Corp. of Detroit calls the shortage the most severe in 20 years.

A home loan is hard to get and will cost you substantially more than it would have a year ago.

The outlook is further blackened by a warning from some officials that things are going to get worse before they get better.

THE CONSUMER is being pinched on two fronts:

—A critical shortage of logs, coupled with a heavy build up of housing demand, put lumber and plywood prices on a runaway course. Prices recently dipped in an unsettled market, but they're still far higher than a year ago. Rising labor, tax and insurance costs have added further to the cost of a house.

—Tight money, a government-created factor to cool the economy and curb inflation, has catapulted certain loan costs to record levels.

The National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) estimates increases in lumber and plywood prices have added about $1,200 to the cost of a $25,000 home in the past year.

Many middle-income home buyers are unable to get loans, according to a survey of bankers, economists and real estate salesmen. Many banks have made it tough to get loans by hiking interest rates and down payment requirements and reducing the length of commitments.

THE FEDERAL Home Loan Bank reports the national average effective interest rate on conventional new-home loans at 7.39 per cent, the highest ever and up from 5.62 per cent a year ago.

Digging deeper into his pocket, the buyer of a new home will have monthly payments 25 per cent higher than he would have paid a year ago for the same home, according to Advance Mortgage Corp.

A pent-up demand for housing sent lumber and plywood prices skyrocketing late last year. The price of quarter-inch interior-grade plywood soared to $144 a thousand square feet in late February from $76 a year earlier.

As buyers began backing off, a major Oregon producer made several price cuts. Banks boosted lending rates. In short order, the bottom fell out of the plywood market in late February.

A SCORE of Oregon and Washington plywood mills, many unable to make money by processing high-cost logs, are shut down to wait out uncertain market conditions.

Industry sources are uncertain where lumber and plywood prices are headed. But the National Forest Products Association (NFPA), an industry trade association, described the current market psychology as "favorable to further price increases."

At the height of the price spirals, hearings were held by two congressional subcommittees, President Nixon stepped in, and an investigation was demanded by Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney and the Association of General Contractors of America.

NIXON directed the federal government to make an additional 1.1 billion board feet of public timber available to private industry. He also ordered the Pentagon to keep its lumber purchases to a minimum and told the Interstate Commerce Commission to take action to relieve the shortage of boxcars used to ship lumber from the Pacific Northwest.

Homebuilders and wood products executives welcomed Nixon's actions but cautioned the effects would be limited.

Michael Sumichrast, NAHB chief economist, said Nixon's moves will have little impact immediately. "We can't see much of a decline in lumber prices before fall," he said.

However, Sumichrast said the White House action helped halt the price rise chiefly through its psychological effect, a dampening factor he believes will be only temporary.

THE FOREST products industry, already hit by loss of markets to competing materials, has deplored the situation and blamed the federal government for the chronic shortage of logs. (About 70 per cent of the nation's soft-wood timber is on federal lands.)

"At the root of the over-all problem," says the NFPA, "is an unnecessarily restricted supply of softwood timber available for manufacture into finished products."

"This condition has developed over a period of years as the result of policies of the federal government in the administration of its commercial forest lands which have resulted in the withholding of mature timber from harvest."

THE TRADE association

contends the amount of timber the Forest Service annually allows to be cut could be hiked in many areas "without drawing from the nation's future timber supply." Some conservation groups, including the 70,000-member Sierra Club, disagree bitterly.

Any increase in the allowable cut would be in addition to the 1.1 billion board feet freed for public sale by President Nixon.

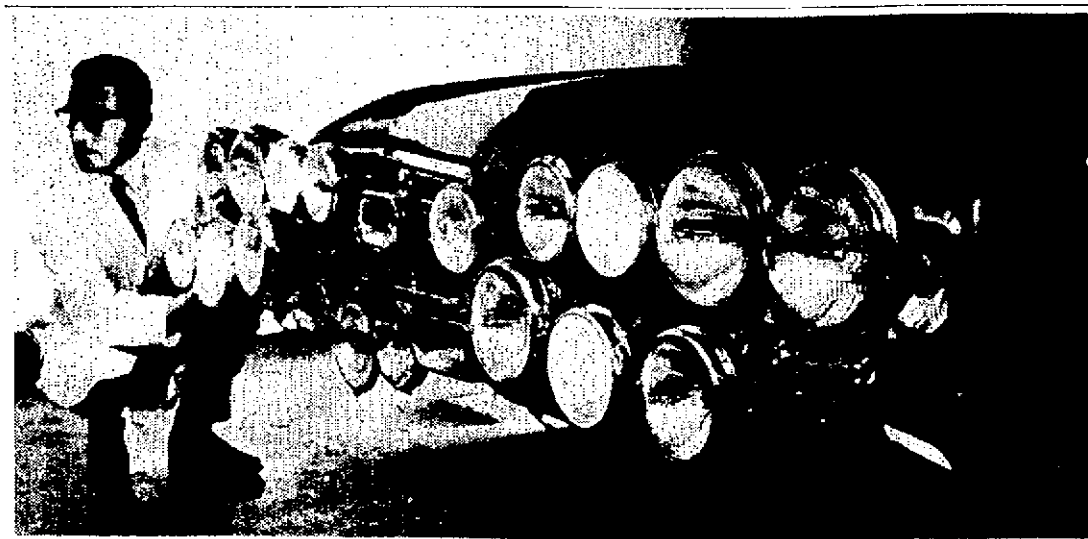

Gordon Robinson, forestry consultant to the Sierra Club, said any such increase poses a threat to conservation.

"We must not sacrifice the forest environment by reducing the standards of their management only to build more suburban sprawl," he said.

Robinson said that, instead of cutting more trees, the nation should turn to wood substitutes to make up for lumber and plywood shortages.

And that's just what worries the forest products industry.

MANY-EYED TEST CAR

Existing and experimental headlighting systems are tested and evaluated on this specially equipped car at General Motors' Guide Lamp Division at Anderson, Ind. Individual beam selection, voltage adjustment and other controls make it possible to compare various lighting systems under identical conditions. Car can also be used for testing other light arrangements, including stop, turn signal and tail lamps. All lights can be controlled from driver's seat for road tests and demonstrations.

Bank of America Promotes Mrs. King

Mrs. Katherine King has been promoted to operations officer at Bank of America's Cherry-Anaheim branch in Long Beach, announced manager Anthony L. Ediger.

Mrs. King, a 16-year bank employee, assumes the post after nearly two years as operations assistant at the First and Pine branch.

low of $3 per intersection per month to a high of $62 per month or to a total of about $140,000 annually.

As far as the city electricity bill for the signals, Edison Company meters each intersection separately with costs varying from a low of $11 per intersection per month to a high of $18 per intersection per month or to a total of about $68,000 annually.

Cooper says the traffic signals come in two sizes — the eight-inch diameter which has 69-watt bulb weighing about 40 pounds and the 12-inch diameter which has 150-watt bulb and weighs about 62 pounds. Both have about 6,000 hours of burning time.

He says he has an authorized crew of one foreman, six technicians (the city is short two right now) and two assistants to tend to the signals.

A technician and assistant spend the full work day in the shop while the other three technicians and assistant are in the field.

Aside from their regular work schedule, the men are subject to call 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"Traffic signals don't wait until morning before going haywire," Cooper says.

The city keeps its traffic signals working 24 hours a day.

"Anybody can call us any time at our number 432-8904," he says.

ALTHOUGH JAMES HOGE invented the first electric traffic signal to be in actual use, it wasn't until 1927 that Long Beach installed its first at the corner of Broadway and Pine.

For eight years it stood a lonely vigil. Then in 1935 the second signal came. Slowly the others followed, but it wasn't until 1945 that the city began an earnest program. Eighty-five per cent of the lights appeared after that time.

Today the city is pretty well saturated, Searls says.

Still, if someone wants a traffic signal at a certain corner, he can make the request. Usually the request ends up on Searls' desk, and the traffic investigation begins.

"People think it is a pretty simple thing. It isn't. If we hurry it takes a year. It seems like such a long, long deal and we don't get too many 'thank you letters,'" he says.

Searls says he thinks traffic signals are "the ultimate," and the next step will be grade separations.

"Three or four years ago they had the most sophisticated system you can imagine at the Los Angeles International Airport but it just got down to the old problem of increasing traffic and you can only widen a street so much. Grading was the only way out."

Besides investigating signal requests, Searls spends at least a quarter of his work hours on the road.

Home Sales Caught in 2-Way Squeeze

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If you plan to buy a home, you're walking into the toughest market since the end of World War II.

Prices have spiraled and homes in many cities are in short supply. In its semiannual survey of housing markets, Advance Mortgage Corp. of Detroit calls the shortage the most severe in 20 years.

A home loan is hard to get and will cost you substantially more than it would have a year ago.

The outlook is further blackened by a warning from some officials that things are going to get worse before they get better.

THE CONSUMER is being pinched on two fronts:

—A critical shortage of logs, coupled with a heavy build up of housing demand, put lumber and plywood prices on a runaway course. Prices recently dipped in an unsettled market, but they're still far higher than a year ago. Rising labor, tax and insurance costs have added further to the cost of a house.

—Tight money, a government-created factor to cool the economy and curb inflation, has catapulted certain loan costs to record levels.

The National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) estimates increases in lumber and plywood prices have added about $1,200 to the cost of a $25,000 home in the past year.

Many middle-income home buyers are unable to get loans, according to a survey of bankers, economists and real estate salesmen. Many banks have made it tough to get loans by hiking interest rates and down payment requirements and reducing the length of commitments.

THE FEDERAL Home Loan Bank reports the national average effective interest rate on conventional new-home loans at 7.39 per cent, the highest ever and up from 5.62 per cent a year ago.

Digging deeper into his pocket, the buyer of a new home will have monthly payments 25 per cent higher than he would have paid a year ago for the same home, according to Advance Mortgage Corp.

A pent-up demand for housing sent lumber and plywood prices skyrocketing late last year. The price of quarter-inch interior-grade plywood soared to $144 a thousand square feet in late February from $76 a year earlier.

As buyers began backing off, a major Oregon producer made several price cuts. Banks boosted lending rates. In short order, the bottom fell out of the plywood market in late February.

A SCORE of Oregon and Washington plywood mills, many unable to make money by processing high-cost logs, are shut down to wait out uncertain market conditions.

Industry sources are uncertain where lumber and plywood prices are headed. But the National Forest Products Association (NFPA), an industry trade association, described the current market psychology as "favorable to further price increases."

At the height of the price spirals, hearings

were held by two congressional subcommittees, President Nixon stepped in, and an investigation was demanded by Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney and the Association of General Contractors of America.

NIXON directed the federal government to make an additional 1.1 billion board feet of public timber available to private industry. He also ordered the Pentagon to keep its lumber purchases to a minimum and told the Interstate Commerce Commission to take action to relieve the shortage of boxcars used to ship lumber from the Pacific Northwest.

Homebuilders and wood products executives welcomed Nixon's actions but cautioned the effects would be limited.

Michael Sumichrast, NAHB chief economist, said Nixon's moves will have little impact immediately. "We can't see much of a decline in lumber prices before fall," he said.

However, Sumichrast said the White House action helped halt the price rise chiefly through its psychological effect, a dampening factor he believes will be only temporary.

THE FOREST products industry, already hit by loss of markets to competing materials, has deplored the situation and blamed the federal government for the chronic shortage of logs. (About 70 per cent of the nation's soft-wood timber is on federal lands.)

"At the root of the over-all problem," says the NFPA, "is an unnecessarily restricted supply of softwood timber available for manufacture into finished products."

"This condition has developed over a period of years as the result of policies of the federal government in the administration of its commercial forest lands which have resulted in the withholding of mature timber from harvest."

THE TRADE association

contends the amount of timber the Forest Service annually allows to be cut could be hiked in many areas "without drawing from the nation's future timber supply." Some conservation groups, including the 70,000-member Sierra Club, disagree bitterly.

Any increase in the allowable cut would be in addition to the 1.1 billion board feet freed for public sale by President Nixon.

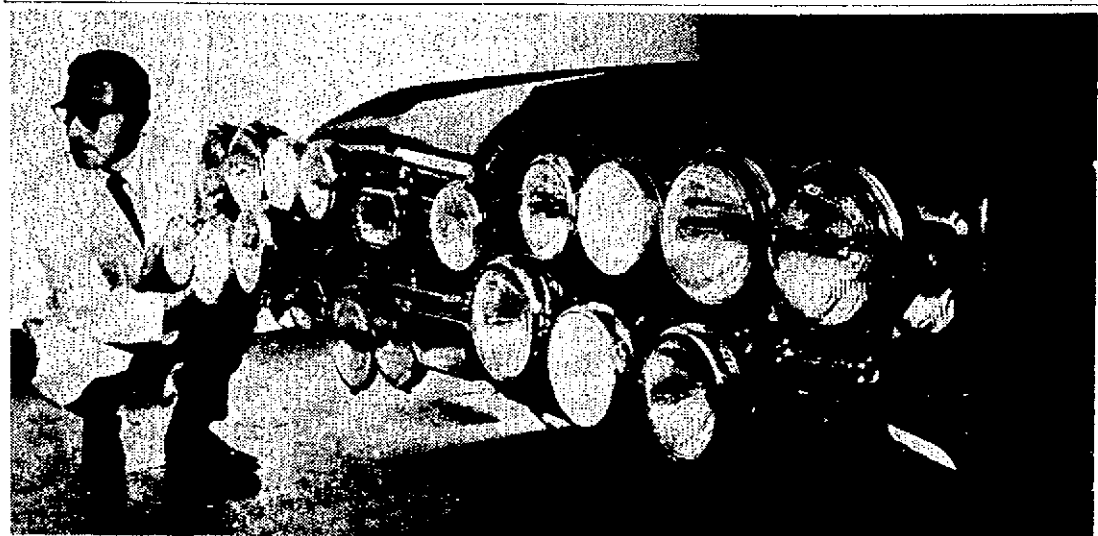

Gordon Robinson, forestry consultant to the Sierra Club, said any such increase poses a threat to conservation.

"We must not sacrifice the forest environment by reducing the standards of their management only to build more suburban sprawl," he said.

Robinson said that, instead of cutting more trees, the nation "should turn to wood substitutes to make up for lumber and plywood shortages."

And that's just what worries the forest products industry.

20 MILLION POPULATION MARK LATE

SACRAMENTO — California's population apparently won't hit the magic 20 million mark this year after all.

The State Finance Department's mid-1969 projection, estimated last year, was that the state's population would be 20,115,000 this July 1, an increase of 333,000 over 1968.

"I sort of doubt it," Walter R. Hollmann, the Finance Department's population expert, said this week.

"I don't think migration came up to it, the projection and I don't think natural increase came up to it," Hollmann said.

Hollmann says he now figures California will pass 20 million by next April 1.

The department is just completing revisions on current estimated population. They will not be released for a while, but Hollmann said, "I think you can assume from them that we did not have 20 million on July 1, 1969."

Hollmann said the 1969 projection published last year was based on certain assumptions which didn't pan out.

California's annual rate of population increase has dropped off from 4.6 per cent in 1950 and 1951 and 4.4 per cent in 1956 and 1957 to 1.8 per cent in 1967 and 1.6 per cent in 1968.

The year of biggest migration into California, numerically, was 1963 with a population gain of 626,000.

In its 1968 report, the State Finance Department said the forecasts for this year and next year "assume a very modest rise in net migration and a slight increase in the number of births."

The state's population has risen from 10.64 million in 1950 and 15.86 million in 1960.

California passed New York as the nation's most populous state in early 1962, by California figures, and in the summer of 1963 as computed by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

Trucker Cuts Container Tariff

The "container revolution" in freight handling offers spectacular growth opportunities for those trucking companies willing to accept its new concepts, Ed Grady, vice president-sales and marketing for Harbor Truck Lines, Wilmington, says.

Early this year, Harbor broke with local industry tradition and established separate — and lower — tariffs for containers.

"The whole point of containerization," Grady emphasizes, "is to increase efficiency and lower costs. So far, ocean freight rates have not been reduced substantially, but it is certain that they will be as competition increases. Truck rates for containers must logically also be reduced to reflect the new efficiencies."

Despite many industry predictions to the contrary, Harbor Truck Lines' go-it-alone pricing policy is paying off. Grady reports the company's list of general commodities and container customers has increased from six at the beginning of the year to 125 at mid-July.

In addition to separate pricing, the company has invested in new facilities and container-specialist personnel. The truck fleet has been almost doubled and is being increased on a regular basis. ### EYE FOR COLOR

The telescoped effect of the young lady's eye comes from sighting down the yoke for an RCA color TV receiver produced at Bloomington, Ind. Such a yoke aims three electron guns at the receiver's faceplate, which is coated with a million-plus phosphor dots aligned in groups of the essential colors red, green and blue. Color pictures thus are painted on TV screens by precisely aimed electrons fired at split-second speeds.

A new plan unfolds
...with big space where it's needed most!

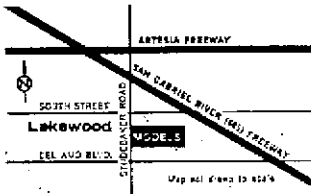

Here's a brand new home model. Right now it's Priced at $29,950 ...and it's in a $32,000 to $40,000 neighborhood!

El Ray Park

The new "Del Amo" is a value breakthrough. It's designed for the three-bedroom family, and it's truly spacious; a full 1500 sq. ft. At this price, there can be only a sprinkling of the "Del Amo" models in El Ray Park. After all, many families have paid far more to own in this prestige community. Best of all, the "Del Amo" retains the quality, the beauty and the deep down strength of its larger, more expensive neighbors. See it this weekend. You'll never find a bargain to match it.

El Ray Park Homes are priced from $29,950 to $37,950. Selection offers striking single story, two story and split level homes, with three and four bedrooms and two and three baths.

A FREEWAY-PERFECT LOCATION • El Ray Park is at the heart of the Lakewood-Cerritos freeway network!
Driving Directions: Take the Santa Ana or San Diego Freeway to the San Gabriel (805) Freeway. Follow 605 to the South Street off-ramp, and go west to Studebaker Road. Turn left at Studebaker Road to reach the models.
EQUITY TRANSFER TRADE PLAN • Equity in your older house can move you into a sparkling new El Ray Park Home.

Calif. Classics, Huntington Shores Homes May Be Seen

Those planning a new homes tour this weekend can conserve time in the Huntington Beach area. Builder Wm. Lyon is offering immediate and near future occupancy at two locations within the area, each designed to appeal to different segments of the new home purchaser market.

California Classics, 5961 Brannen Drive (1 block south of Warner Ave.), is aimed at the young junior executive family.

This is the award winning design series which has become one of California's most popular, best selling brand-name new homes. Over 1,500 are already occupied through the state. Priced from $23,990, the one and two story, two to five bedroom homes come equipped with an all-glass 'terrace' kitchen, family room and two bathrooms. Automatically included in the purchase price is a built-in G.E. range, double oven, dishwasher, disposal, custom fireplace, carpeting, draperies, professional front garden landscaping and rear lot line fencing.

Visitors wishing to inspect the model complex are advised to take the San Diego Freeway to the Springdale exit and drive south to Brannen.

Also available for move-in before school begins is Lyon's Huntington Shores, designed for going families on the grow. They are built in an exclusive area where homes are selling for $40,000 and more. Priced from $23,990, these 3 to 4 bedroom homes with a private bath built into every master suite, come equipped with many extras including a G.E. range, double oven, dishwasher, disposal, custom fireplace, quality carpeting, draperies and fencing.

Those wishing to inspect the Huntington Shores model complex should take the San Diego Freeway to the Golden West exit, then drive south to Slater, west to Edwards and one block south to 17691 Edwards at Huntington Beach.

Chris Humphrey of Lawndale transcribes a recorded message made the night before on The Forum's new answering system as Jack Kent Cooke, president of California Sports Inc., checks the procedure designed by Pacific Telephone that has contributed to ticket sales success at The Forum.

Ticket Orders Handled Better

Two new services for persons seeking tickets to events at The Forum have been born from the combined efforts of Pacific Telephone and Forum officials.

The services are improved methods of handling calls to the ticket office of the Inglewood arena, home of the Los Angeles Lakers and Kings and the site of other entertainment attractions.

Forum president Jack Kent Cooke commented, "We were having trouble with the traditional answering service, and we had to employ a more efficient device. This new system has answered our needs."

"It's the only one of its kind in the L.A. area," said U. S. Brown, PT & T engineer who designed the call waiting system.

Jim Appell, general manager of The Forum, added, "The new telephone system allows us to handle more requests in a more pleasant manner. It is a particular help when you consider that we handle as many as eight events at one time and all ticket information is handled through one phone number."

If the ticket sales girls who assist callers who want to order tickets become swamped, a special call storage system goes into effect.

"If the girl can't handle the call," PT & T's Brown explained, "she just pushes a button and the call is switched to an answering set recording, rather than to 'hold.'"

A drum holding a recording that says "Your call will be connected to our reservation phones when a line becomes available," starts as soon as the button is pushed. The second the girl is through with her previous call, she pushes the button again and assists the customer.

The second system provides ticket information on a 24-hour basis.

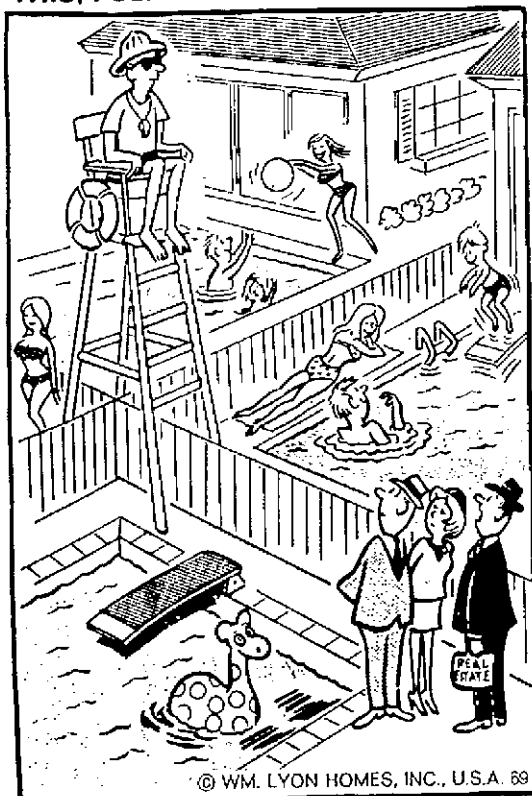

If a customer calls after office hours, a recording gives the week's events, times and prices of available tickets, and then provides time for the caller to record his name and phone number.

If he wants to order tickets, he gives the information and the tickets will be awaiting him at The Forum's "Will Call" window. If he wants more information, he says so and the sales girls will call him back before 11 the next morning on another line.

Lady Mayor of 'Sin City' has tough job

AMELIA GORDON, lady mayor of Olongapo, is always accompanied by armed bodyguards—she is credited with having established some control over the obscenity and racketeering.

By JOHN NANCE

OLONGAPO CITY, Philippines (U)—It was a normal night in the acre of frenzy that presses against the main gate of the huge U.S. Naval Base at Subic Bay.

Laughter and whispered come-ons from goodtime girls mingled in the sultry tropical evening with blasts of soul music, jazz and rock.

The 300 bars and nightclubs, scores of pay-by-the-hour hotels and more than 7,000 "bar girl-hostesses" of Olongapo City were engaged in the business that rakes in better

Six men and a young woman followed Mrs. Gordon. They included two doctors, a city sanitation expert and a man from the fire department.

Mayor Gordon was on her regular night patrol. Between 9 p.m. and 2 a.m. she hit four nightclubs, seven bars and five hotels.

Uncomprehending sailors got worried or irate at the sight of the armed guards. Hostesses gasped and giggled self-consciously and were herded into a lineup on the dance floor.

Into this boozy carnival plunged a handsome 50-year-old Filipino woman—the lady mayor of "sin city," who faces the facts of Olongapo's life while striving to keep it under control.

Flashlight in hand, wearing high heels and a sedate but stylish black dress, Amelia J. Gordon stepped briskly into the dingy dimness of a bar.

Just behind her were two unsmiling young men with carbines.

Another half dozen paces back were two more Filipinos with rapid-firing greaseguns. A pair of S.S. military policemen moved in with them.

The medical officers called the names of the hostesses. They should have had a card for each girl, recording her work permit and medical history. A checkup for venereal disease was required every two weeks.

With the passion, fire, fervor and tenderness of Spanish melody, the Starlight Serenade Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Recreation Park will bring the 1969 series to a close.

It will be a gala "welcome home," too, for Alberto Bolet, permanent conductor of Long Beach Symphony, and will introduce a Latin American mezzo-soprano, Marta Perez.

At a reception after the concert at Golden Sails Inn, the conductor, soloist and members of the orchestra will be honored guests.

"We invite the public to meet the musicians," said John Kocher, orchestra manager. "Reservations are $1.50 each and must be received at the Symphony Association office, 121 Linden Ave., by noon Monday.

"Why not," he added, "make an evening of it and take a picnic supper to the park before the admission-free concert, then come to the reception?"

JUST RETURNED from a presto-tempo tour of Europe, Bolet discussed the program he has chosen for Tuesday's concert.

"First, excerpts from Bizet's opera, 'Carmen.' Marta will sing two arias, 'Habanera' and 'Seguidilla.' Then she will sing a group of songs of Latin America.

"After intermission, the orchestra will play 'Capriccio Espagnol' by Rimsky-Korsakov.

"Though it was written by a Russian, this work is more Spanish than much music written by natives of Spain.

"Spain! She has been the inspiration for composers of all nationalities. And the gypsies that brought their ardor and fury to Spain, influenced other European countries and their musicians, too."

It was in 1887 that Rimsky-Korsakov, in the midst of orchestrating "Prince Igor," took a few weeks off to dash down the "Capriccio" based on Spanish themes.

His own notes about the work are the most pertinent:

"The opinion formed by both critics and the public—that the 'Capriccio' is a magnificently orchestrated piece—is wrong. The 'Capriccio' is a brilliant composition for orchestra.

"The change of timbres, the felicitous choice of melodic designs and figuration patterns, exactly suiting each kind of instrument, brief virtuoso cadenzas for instruments, etc., constitute here the very essence of the composition and not its garb of orchestration.

"The Spanish themes, of dance character, furnished me with

It's a Small world of new design

NEAL SMALL

...eye era grows and glows

It's a Neal Small world... especially in furniture design.

With tremendous foresight Neal Small has lifted furniture from the overstuffed, oversized morass to witty spirited heights.

Working exclusively with acrylic and form, Small has released furniture from the conforming shapes and simplified it to say "today."

The "era of the eye" is with us and the see-through furniture provides visual excitement but with permanent function.

As suggested by Small during an open house at Frank Bros. in Long Beach: "Each of my designs is an entity. I do not design a 'complete' line of acrylic furniture to fill a room. Visual furniture has a definite place in any design scheme."

"For instance," he continues, "Visualize a fine Oriental rug with several blocky pieces of furniture covering portions of it; then visualize a fine clear acrylic chair giving form and line but no distraction. The rug is then allowed to function as a beautiful accessory."

The 37-year-old "father" of the young school of plexiglas and lucite furniture began his career as a painter, then became interested in industrial design where his sculptural forms swing between art and function.

Among Small's relevant designs are two newcomers, a solid straight-sided acrylic sofa with Arpel covered cushions and a prototype sling sofa of chrome and Arpel foam rubber rolls.

Making the open-house scene were avant furniture designers Danny Ho Fong and Gerry McCabe who share Small's enthusiasm for the unfurniture furniture.

Shapes to delight the hand and the eye were clear acrylic cylindrical vases inlaid with opaque swirls or bold red angles.

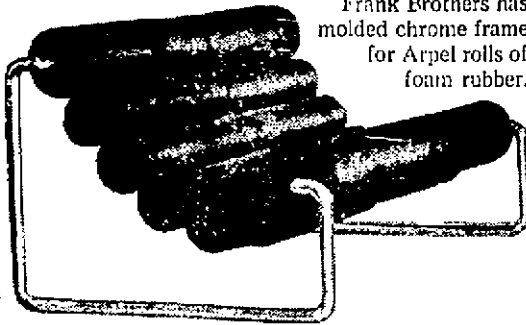

Clear handleless pitchers have openings exploding near the top.

Revolutionary lighting resulted from opaque 12-inch globes.

The space-helmet globes were inserted in plastic forms or grouped as a lighted table base and even piled high to be used as accent lighting.

Slick lines follow neo-traditional shapes in low occasional chairs and cube tables in a strong, solid, but not overly dramatic presentation.

Deceptively simple accessories are the sliced tubular lucite letter openers and cheese spreaders included in the design collection.

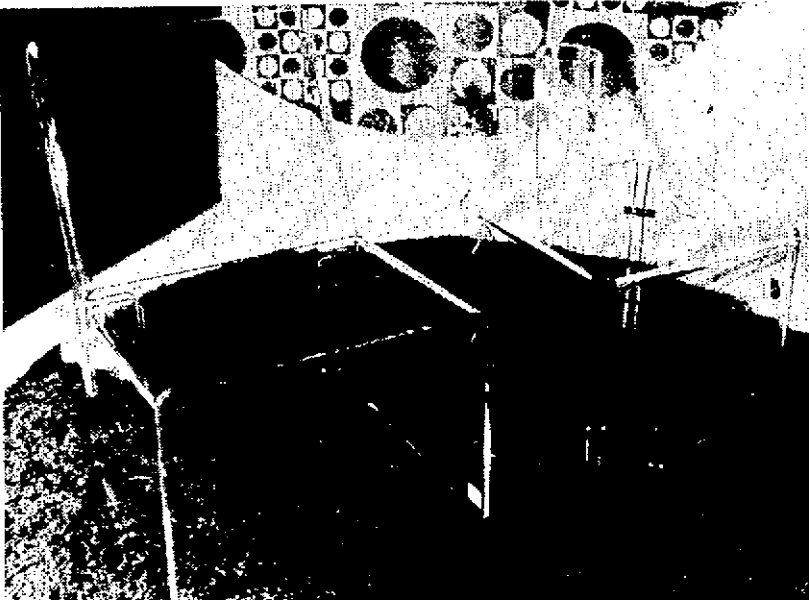

PROTOTYPE sofa by Neal Small at Frank Brothers has molded chrome frame for Arpel rolls of foam rubber.

Honest color is transmitted into shapes, in portion as well as total, eliminating the possibility of a too-sterile room.

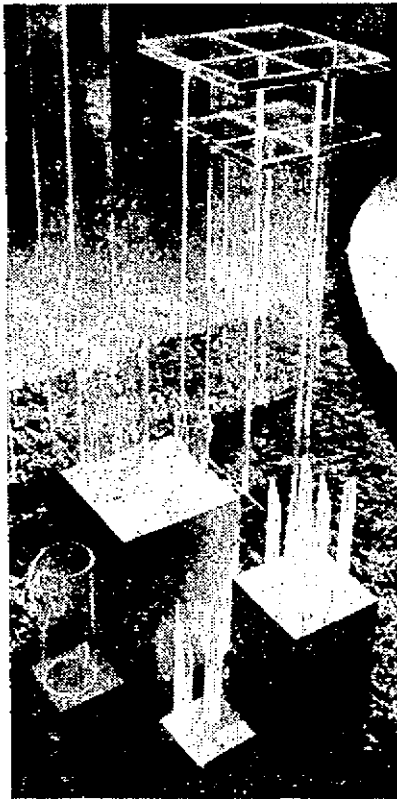

A chip from the old block is a light! The black acrylic cube replaces a corner slice with white, forming a chairside table lamp.

A post-show party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Ron Frank furnished some doll insights into the genius recognized as Small.

Away from the world of furniture his fascination with little noticed happenings leaped from concern for the fly transported from coast to coast by jet, to the problem of children on an airplane when the film is rated M!

LOW MOLDED plastic chair is chrome bolted and complemented by companion cube for non-distracting visual appeal.

SCULPTURAL ACCENTS range from sliced tubular acrylic letter openers and cheese spreaders to custom-size pedestal tables.

Germany to be new home for bridal pair

A trip to San Diego followed the Saturday morning nuptials of Patricia Fraser and John Howard Dumbolton, son of Q. S. Dumbolton of Northern California and the late Mrs. Dumbolton and grandson of Mrs. Frank G. Cannon Sr., 184 Cameron Place, in St. Pancratius Catholic Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory L. Fraser, 4186 Camerino, was attired in an empire gown of Chantilly lace. Kay Brunelle attended as maid of honor; Christine Dozal, Virginia Kimmartin and Patricia Haack were bridesmaids.

Brian C. Dumbolton stood as his brother's best man; Scott Swanson, John Kuzn and Michael Forth ushered.

The bride is a graduate of St. Pius X High School. Her husband is an alumnus of Dominguez High School and attended Long Beach City College. He is serving in the U.S. Army.

A reception followed in the home of the bride's parents. The newlyweds will reside in Germany.

To commemorate their 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marino of Long Beach repeated marriage vows in a golden jubilee mass at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Los Angeles Saturday.

A reception at the Golden Crown honored the couple. Hosting the event were their four children, Mrs. Joseph Accardi, Philip L. Marino, Raymond C. Marino and Mrs. Edwin R. Elvington, all of Long Beach. They have 13 grandchildren.

They were married July 27, 1919, in Wakefield, Mass., where they lived until 1939. In 1946, the Marinos moved to Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Marino were both born in Rieti, Italy, but did not meet until they came to the United States. He immigrated here in 1914 and his wife moved here with her family in 1916.

Marino served in the U.S. Army during World War I, receiving the Purple Heart and Medal of Honor. He is retired from the Naval Ammunition and Net Depot in Seal Beach.

Couple sets autumn date

Margaret Mary Neary of Long Beach is the Oct. 4 bride-elect of Arvin Stuart Erickson.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neary of Canada and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Erickson of Whittier.

The future bride attended Long Beach City College and was graduated from Memorial Hospital of Long Beach School of Radiologic Technology. Her fiancé, an alumnus of California State College at Fullerton, earned his graduate degree from the USC School of Business. He affiliated with Sigma Pi fraternity.

Seam ideas

Sewing with cool, summery fabrics like cotton voile, dotted swiss, or cotton eyelet, calls for a little extra care with seams. They should be as invisible as possible, neat and narrow. The French seam is the best choice. Check sewing books for exact instructions for stitching this seam.

It's a Small world of new design

PROTOTYPE sofa by Neal Small at Frank Brothers has molded chrome frame for Arpel rolls of foam rubber.

NEAL SMALL

... eye era grows and glows

It's a Neal Small world... especially in furniture design.

With tremendous foresight Neal Small has lifted furniture from the overstuffed, overdesigned morass to witty spirited heights.

Working exclusively with acrylic and form, Small has released furniture from the conforming shapes and simplified it to say "today."

The "era of the eye" is with us and the see-through furniture provides visual excitement but with permanent function.

As suggested by Small during an open house at Frank Bros. in Long Beach: "Each of my designs is an entity. I do not design a 'complete' line of acrylic furniture to fill a room. Visual furniture has a definite place in any design scheme."

"For instance," he continues, "Visualize a fine Oriental rug with several blocky pieces of furniture covering portions of it; then visualize a fine clear acrylic chair giving form and line but no distraction. The rug is then allowed to function as a beautiful accessory."

The 37-year-old "father" of the young school of plexiglas and lucite furniture began his career as a painter, then became interested in industrial design where his sculptural forms swing between art and function.

Among Small's relevant designs are two newcomers, a solid straight-sided acrylic sofa with Arpel covered cushions and a prototype sling sofa of chrome and Arpel foam rubber rolls.

Making the open-house scene were avant furniture designers Danny Ho Fong and Gerry McCabe who share Small's enthusiasm for the unfurniture furniture.

Shapes to delight the hand and the eye were clear acrylic cylindrical vases inlaid with opaque swirls or bold red angles.

Clear handleless pitchers have openings exploding near the top.

Revolutionary lighting resulted from opaque 12-inch globes.

The space-helmet globes were inserted in plastic forms or grouped as a lighted table base and even piled high to be used as accent lighting.

Slick lines follow neo-traditional shapes in low occasional chairs and cube tables in a strong, solid, but not overly dramatic presentation.

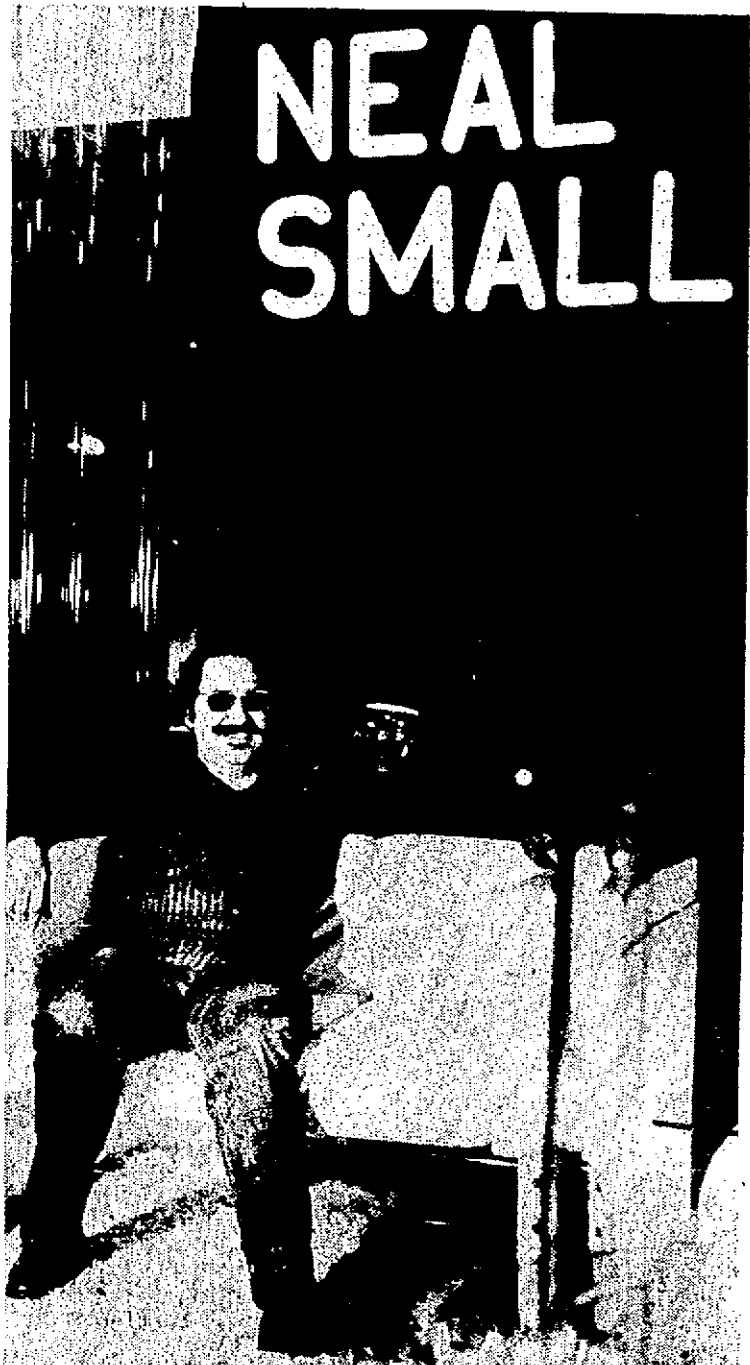

Deceptively simple accessories are the sliced tubular lucite letter openers and cheese spreaders included in the design collection.

Honest color is transmitted into shapes, in portion as well as total, eliminating the possibility of a too-sterile room.

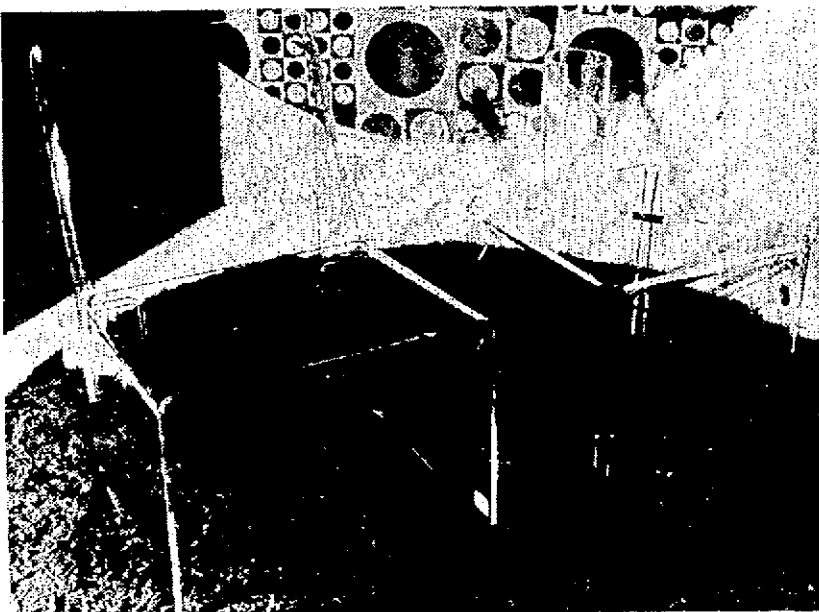

A chip from the old block is a light! The black acrylic cube replaces a corner slice with white, forming a chairside table lamp.

A post-show party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Ron Frank furnished some droll insights into the genius recognized as Small.

Away from the world of furniture his fascination with little noticed happenings leaped from concern for the fly transported from coast to coast by jet, to the problem of children on an airplane when the film is rated M!

Staff photos by TOM SHAW

LOW-MOLDED plastic chair is chrome bolted and complemented by companion cube for non-distracting visual appeal.

SCULPTURAL ACCENTS range from sliced tubular acrylic letter openers and cheese spreaders to custom-size pedestal tables.

Germany to be new home for bridal pair

A trip to San Diego followed the Saturday morning nuptials of Patricia Fraser and John Howard Dumbolton, son of Q. S. Dumbolton of Northern California and the late Mrs. Dumbolton and grandson of Mrs. Frank G. Cannon Sr., 184 Cameron Place, in St. Pancratius Catholic Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory L. Fraser, 4106 Camerino, was attired in an empire gown of Chantilly lace. Kay Brunelle attended as maid of honor; Christine Dozal, Virginia Kinnmartin and Patricia Haack were bridesmaids.

Brian C. Dumbolton stood as his brother's best man; Scott Swanson, John Kuzn and Michael Forth ushered.

The bride is a graduate of St. Pius X High School. Her husband is an alumnus of Dominguez High School and attended Long Beach City College. He is serving in the U.S. Army.

A reception followed in the home of the bride's parents. The newlyweds will reside in Germany.

Aloha time at Alamitos Bay

THEY'RE never too young to learn hula dancing, as Dana Ross, (left) teaches intricate Hawaiian dance movements to Linda Fox, Becky Black and Tina Back in preparation for debut at luau show Saturday night. Ukele accompaniment is provided by Staff Commodore Roy Conn.

IN A SEA OF COLORFUL PAPER FLOWERS

...Yacht Club prepares annual luau festivities

Alamitos Bay Yacht Club will become an island paradise Saturday when the annual luau starts the Labor Day Regatta weekend.

The evening begins at 6:30 p.m. with mai-tais in the Ward Room. A Polynesian buffet is served from 7 to 8:30 p.m., followed by a Hawaiian floor show.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bejan are co-producers of the show, which features entertainment by members.

There will be two bands playing music for dancing. The Bittersweets will provide more sentimental music for the adults upstairs, while The Patriots will offer gyrating tunes for the teen-agers in the patio.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Brown are chairmen of the luau, assisted by Mmes. Paul Merrill Jr., Rick Griggs and Henry Weiss.

Decorations will include paper flowers in all colors and draped fish netting. Dress for the evening will be anything colorful from sarongs and muumus to lava-lavas and aloha shirts. The only thing missing will be basic black.

Valerie Lynn Johnson now Mrs. C. L. Ginther

A home in the Claremont area awaits Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lynn Ginther (nee Valerie Lynn Johnson) who exchanged vows Saturday afternoon in North Long Beach Brethren Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Johnson, 223 E. Mountain View St., wore a full-skirted floor length gown of white silk organza over taffeta. The bodice and cuffs were of Venice lace, the train was chapel length.

Joletta Bergdoll was maid of honor. Justine Harvey, Jan Ginther, sister of bridegroom and Mrs. Bruce Lyons completed the entourage.

Gary Curtis served as best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ginther of La Verne. James Burton, Michael Heinzman and Bruce Lyons seated guests.

The bride is an alumna of Jordan High School and Scripps College. Her husband was graduated with honors from California State Polytechnic, Pomona.

MRS. C. L. GINTHER

A reception was held at the church before the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to Northern California.

Holody-Elmblad vows read in United Nations chapel

Church Center at the United Nations, New York, was the setting for the Saturday wedding of Judith Lynn Elmblad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Elmblad of Anaheim, and Richard Holody, son of Mrs. Joseph Holody and the late Mr. Holody of Napa. Judith Elmblad was her sister's maid of honor. Another sister, Chris Elmblad, and Kathy Baar attended as bridesmaids. John Noworyta served as best man; Tom O'Sullivan and Tim Holody, brother of bridegroom, seated guests. The bride studied at California State College at Fullerton where she was a member of Mu Phi Epsilon. Her husband was graduated magna cum laude from St. John's University where he affiliated with Sigma Tau Alpha. A reception followed the ceremony in Dag Hammarskjold Lounge. After a tour of New England states the couple will reside in New York.

CHEF OF WEEK

Galley raiding captain cooks up tasty 'mess'

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Food Editor

Probably no one thing could best describe today's Chef of the Week than the starch in his uniform.

Noting his sleek, immaculate, well starched attire, we asked him what kind of starch he used. He replied, "the old-fashioned kind—no spray starch for me."

"Chef," Capt. J. Edward Snyder, Jr., USN, commanding officer, the USS New Jersey, follows this "old fashioned" philosophy when "manning" his crew.

To his men, he is fair, human and has wit. What better could attest to this fact than the tribute paid him by two members of his crew, Commissarymen Gerald E. McGee 2.C (baker), and Bruce R. Petlock 3.C (salad man): "He's the greatest and the most human guy on earth, and we're losing him."

CAPT. SNYDER HAS just been given a new assignment as Chief of Staff to the Commander of Atlantic Fleet Cruisers and Destroyers in Newport, R. I.

As a farewell gift, the crew presented him a chest on which his name was engraved on a silver plaque. It contained a carving knife and fork and a spatula.

During his Navy career, dating back to 1944 when he graduated 64th in his class of 914 at the U.S. Naval Academy, Capt. Snyder has manned many ships. Before receiving his first shore billet, he had 52 consecutive months of sea duty.

He has served as gunnery officer and executive officer; spent 2½ years as nuclear supervisor at Los Alamos, and two years as Polaris Missile Re-Entry Systems Officer with Lockheed. He attended the Naval Postgraduate School (1952), obtained a master's degree in Nuclear Physics (at M.I.T.) 1955 and graduated from the Naval College (1961).

The Captain is also a specialist in oceanography and underwater engineering, having received the Legion of Merit for major contributions to the Navy and to the National Oceanographic Program.

AWAKENED IN the early morning hours one night last April, when the ship was homeward bound from Vietnam, he received orders to return the USS New Jersey to Japanese waters. His first thought was "somebody must be kidding." They weren't though — not from April 19 through May 5.

For New Jersey's Vietnam deployment, the ship was awarded the Navy Unit Citation, second only to the Presidential Unit Citation.

Asked if he could choose any place in the world,

L.B. group wins two awards

The Long Beach unit of Women's Overseas Service League won two national awards at the recently concluded convention in New Orleans, La.

The first award, the Harbin Silver Bowl, was presented for the greatest increase in membership by a unit and was shared with the Battle Creek, Mich. unit.

The second award was given for the first time this year. It is the National Public Relations Award trophy, presented to the unit submitting the best scrapbook on public relations efforts. Mrs. A. P. Soderland is publicly chairman for the local group.

Mrs. Soderland attended the convention and was re-elected as Ninth Service Area Director.

CAPT. J. EDWARD SNYDER Jr.

where would he like to live, he replied, without batting an eye, "The USS New Jersey." In fact, it's the only ship in the U.S. Navy that's complete with bathtub. Capt. Snyder purchased it himself for $2.

Born in Grand Forks, N.D., he is the son of a Methodist minister. His family temporarily reside in Fairfax, Va.

He is married to the former Mary Louise Gibson Dize of Christfield, Md. They have a son, Joseph Edward Snyder III, 22, a recent graduate of M.I.T., and a daughter, Anne Gibson Snyder, 18, a student at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Md.

Now, the Captain says farewell to Long Beach and his favorite home, the USS New Jersey, to head East. But wherever he may dock, and whether afloat or ashore, one may be certain Capt. J. Edward Snyder, Jr., will be one of the most popular and capable officers in the U.S. Navy.

Our "Chef's" hobby is galley raiding. The Captain, a midnight snacker, who roams from galley to galley, likes a choice of snacks.

When he cooks, he has two fires going—his pipe and the grill. His favorite menu is steak, potato salad and onion rings, and his recipe for potato salad is unique.

POTATO SALAD BY SNYDER

- 6 large cooked potatoes, diced
- 1 pkg. Lawry's Old Fashioned French Salad Dressing Mix
- 6 small stalks of celery, diced
- 1 small onion, chopped
- Mayonnaise
- Sour Cream
- Salt and Pepper to taste.

Cook and dice potatoes the night before. Add salad mix and let marinate overnight. When ready to serve, add celery, onion, salt and pepper to taste, and enough mayonnaise and sour cream to reach desired consistency. Toss lightly and serve.

CHEF OF WEEK

Galley raiding captain cooks up tasty 'mess'

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Food Editor

Probably no one thing could best describe today's Chef of the Week than the starch in his uniform. Nothing his sleek, immaculate, well starched attire, we asked him what kind of starch he used. He replied, "the old-fashioned kind—no spray starch for me."

"Chef", Capt. J. Edward Snyder, Jr., USN, commanding officer, the USS New Jersey, follows this "old fashioned" philosophy when "manning" his crew.

To his men, he is fair, human and has wit. What better could attest to this fact than the tribute paid him by two members of his crew, Commissarymen Gerald E. McGee 2.C (baker), and Bruce R. Pettlock 3.C (salad man): "He's the greatest and the most human guy on earth, and we're losing him."

CAPT. SNYDER HAS just been given a new assignment as Chief of Staff to the Commander of Atlantic Fleet Cruisers and Destroyers in Newport, R. I.

As a farewell gift, the crew presented him a chest on which his name was engraved on a silver plaque. It contained a carving knife and fork and a spatula.

During his Navy career, dating back to 1944 when he graduated 6th in his class of 914 at the U.S. Naval Academy, Capt. Snyder has manned many ships. Before receiving his first shore billet, he had 52 consecutive months of sea duty.

He has served as gunnery officer and executive officer; spent 2½ years as nuclear supervisor at Los Alamos, and two years as Polaris Missile Re-Entry Systems Officer with Lockheed. He attended the Naval Postgraduate School (at M.I.T.) 1955 and graduated from the Naval College (1961).

The Captain is also a specialist in oceanography and underwater engineering, having received the Legion of Merit for major contributions to the Navy and to the National Oceanographic Program.

AWAKENED IN the early morning hours one night last April, when the ship was homeward bound from Vietnam, he received orders to return the USS New Jersey to Japanese waters. His first thought was "somebody must be kidding." They weren't though — not from April 19 through May 5.

For New Jersey's Vietnam deployment, the ship was awarded the Navy Unit Citation, second only to the Presidential Unit Citation.

Asked if he could choose any place in the world,

L.B. group wins two awards

The Long Beach unit of Women's Overseas Service League won two national awards at the recently concluded convention in New Orleans, La.

The first award, the Harbin Silver Bowl, was presented for the greatest increase in membership by a unit and was shared with the Battle Creek, Mich. unit.

The second award was given for the first time this year. It is the National Public Relations Award trophy, presented to the unit submitting the best scrapbook on public relations efforts. Mrs. A. F. Soderland is publicity chairman for the local group.

Mrs. Soderland attended the convention and was re-elected as Ninth Service Area Director.

CAPT. J. EDWARD SNYDER JR.

where would he like to live, he replied, without batting an eye, "The USS New Jersey." In fact, it's the only ship in the U.S. Navy that's complete with bathtub. Capt. Snyder purchased it himself for $2.

Born in Grand Forks, N.D., he is the son of a Methodist minister. His family temporarily reside in Fairfax, Va.

He is married to the former Mary Louise Gibson Dize of Christfield, Md. They have a son, Joseph Edward Snyder III, 23, a recent graduate of M.I.T., and a daughter, Anne Gibson Snyder, 18, a student at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Md.

Now, the Captain says farewell to Long Beach and his favorite home, the USS New Jersey, to head East. But wherever he may dock, and whether afloat or ashore, one may be certain Capt. J. Edward Snyder, Jr., will be one of the most popular and capable officers in the U.S. Navy.

Our "Chef's" hobby is galley raiding. The Captain, a midnight snacker, who roams from galley to galley, likes a choice of snacks.

When he cooks, he has two fires going—his pipe and the grill. His favorite menu is steak, potato salad and onion rings, and his recipe for potato salad is unique.

POTATO SALAD BY SNYDER

- 6 large cooked potatoes, diced
  - 1 pkg. Lawry's Old Fashioned French Salad Dressing Mix
  - 6 small stalks of celery, diced
  - 1 small onion, chopped
  - Mayonnaise
  - Sour Cream
  - Salt and Pepper to taste.
- Cook and dice potatoes the night before. Add salad mix and let marinate overnight. When ready to serve, add celery, onion, salt and pepper to taste, and enough mayonnaise and sour cream to reach desired consistency. Toss lightly and serve.

Connie Campbell is engaged to John Caton Jr.

The engagement of Connie Raye Campbell and John F. Caton Jr. has been told by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Campbell of Long Beach. The benedict-elect is the son of the senior John Catons also of Long Beach. He was graduated from St.

Anthony's High School and Long Beach City College and attends California State College at Long Beach. The bride-to-be is a graduate of Millikan High School and LBCC. A summer, 1970 wedding is being planned.

SEVENTEEN ORPHANS Mrs. Gordon has adopted are only part of Mayor's family—she also has six grown-up children of her own.

Lady mayor of 'sin city' looks after her people

doesn't get tired, although her associates say she puts in an 18-hour workday every day to try and handle the problems of the town.

Olongapo City is what it is because of the sprawling American base. As the U.S. forces in Vietnam built up, so did Olongapo.

SUBIC NAVAL Base, covering thousands of acres about 60 miles north of Manila on the South China Sea, has a fine natural harbor and is the largest naval facility in the western Pacific. Five years ago about 40 U.S. ships tied up here every month. Now there are 220 every month.

Olongapo City has grown from a population of 40,000 in 1964 to 140,000 now. Bars have increased from 35 to 300.

Base officials say that from 5,000 to 15,000 sailors go into Olongapo every night, spending roughly $1.5 million every month. Most are on a brief liberty plus after months at sea.

But for all its booze, cheap sex and fast money, the well-traveled sailor is likely to find Olongapo more of a honky-tonk than a den of depravity.

Along with the ban on micro miniskirts, there is a new and strictly enforced crackdown on obscene shows; marijuana and drugs are around, but not in large amounts; crimes against servicemen are numerous, but minor.

Mayor Gordon also battles protection racketeers, black marketeers and the inevitable hoodlums, entrepreneurs and politicians who lust after a boomtown.

HER TOUGH methods have made it a fulltime job for her to stay alive.

Her husband, James L. Gordon, son of an American father and Filipino mother, was elected the city's first mayor when the Philippines gained independence in 1906. It had been base property and under the jurisdiction of the base since America took the Philippines from the Spanish in 1898.

Gordon was known as an idealistic and strong civic leader. On Feb. 20, 1967, after two vain attempts to assassinate him with hand grenades, Gordon was shot to death on the steps of City Hall.

Mrs. Gordon went into seclusion and residents petitioned her to come out and run for mayor in her husband's place. She says she didn't want to, but gave in to the call. She easily defeated four male opponents.

Since taking office 18 months ago, she has been threatened in person, by phone and by letter.

The mayor says she doesn't know if she will run for re-election in 1971. The office is very demanding and she has many other responsibilities.

Her large, well-furnished house is home for 17 adopted children. She also continues a close watch over Boys' Town, a farm for homeless youths that she and her husband established several years ago.

Christopherson-Hutchins

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday in Los Allos United Church by Barbara Titus Hutchins and Daniel Dwight Christopherson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Dwight Christopherson, 4235 E. Broadway.

The bride wore a gown of imported organza over taffeta with Alencon lace appliques on the Watteau train. Her attendants were Selma Jones, maid of honor; Mrs. Michael Murray and Mrs. Richard Johnson, bridesmaids.

Gerald Wood was best man; Richard N. Johnson and Delbert Daniels were ushers.

A reception followed in the home of the bridegroom's parents. After a trip to San Francisco and Lake Tahoe, the newlyweds will be at home at 220 Belmont Ave.

Mrs. Christopherson attended Immaculate Heart College. Her husband is a graduate of Wilson High School and attended Long Beach City College. He is a member of the Long Beach Tennis Association.

Lien-Ralston

Married Saturday afternoon in Holy Cross Lutheran Church were Elsie Ralston and Terry Eugene Lien. Among friends and relatives witnessing the ceremony were parents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Ralston, 3638 Arbor Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lien, 5627 Carita.

The bride was attired in a bouffant gown of Chantilly lace with scallops outlining the Sabrina neckline. The detachable Watteau train was chapel length and had an inset of tiers of lace ruffles.

Mrs. James Lien attended as matron of honor; Mrs. Donald Lockwood and Mrs. John Hay were bridesmaids.

James Lien served as his brother's best man. William Calhoun and Michael Hagan ushered.

Mr. and Mrs. Lien are graduates of Lakewood High School and Long Beach City College. The bridegroom recently returned from a tour of Vietnam and completed his four year enlistment.

A reception was held at Rochelle's Restaurant followed by a wedding buffet at the home of bride's parents for family and close friends. After a honeymoon in San Francisco the newlyweds will reside in Lakewood.

Granger-Link

Wearing an empire gown of silk organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace Margaret Ann Link, daughter of Mrs. Jean H. Link, 1980 1/2 Oregon Ave., and George William Granger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Granger, 4525 Whaley Ave., were united Saturday afternoon in All Saints Episcopal Church.

Sandra Price was maid of honor. Mrs. John Hannaman, Donna Lampe and Mrs. Clifford Steele attended as bridesmaids.

Doug Granger served as his brother's best man. Another brother, Don Granger, Jeff Hammond and Steve Colmar ushered.

The bride is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and attended California State College at Long Beach. Her husband also was graduated from Polytechnic High School.

He completed a tour of duty with the U.S. Army and is attending Long Beach City College.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arnold, 4211 Ransom Ave. After a trip to San Diego the Grangers will make their first home in Long Beach.

Johnson, Bates vows repeated

In the presence of 250 friends and relatives Jeanne Paulette Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Bates, 4848 Snowden Ave., and John Robert Johnson recited wedding vows Saturday evening in Lakewood Village Community Church.

The bride was attired in a gown of silk organza with Venice lace daisies at the neckline and daisy appliques on the skirt and train.

Janice Bates, twin sister of bride, was maid of honor. Completing the entourage were Mrs. Roy Range, sister of bride, Nancy Johnson and Mrs. Jeffrey Huffine, sisters of bridegroom. Teri and Toni Rhue were flower girls.

Serving as best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Johnson of Fullerton, was Jerry Burnett. Seating guests were Ron Chidester, Jeffrey Huffine and Bill Shipp.

After a reception in the church social hall the couple departed for a honeymoon at Coronado Island. They will live in Lakewood.

Dinner idea

Pan brown pork chops and place them in a shallow casserole. Add canned baked beans around the chops and pour two tablespoons of maple syrup over the top. Bake in a moderate oven for one hour.

Crisp gloves

You can give white cotton gloves a crisp, like-new appearance with spray starch. After washing gloves, roll them up in a terry towel to remove excess moisture. Then spray evenly with starch and let dry.

Ten new rules on shopping for school

By ERMA BOMBECK

Shopping for school clothes with my son is my second favorite thing. My first favorite thing is trying to change a wet diaper and discovering I have just swallowed one of the pins.

The truth is, we've had some pretty ugly experiences in the fitting room. He accuses me of a generation gap and I charge him with not having room for one. It got so bad we had to set up a few ground rules. I call them the "Ten Commandments For Shopping For School Clothes With A Son."

1. Salesmen shall be che-sen with an eye toward fairness. They must neither have a beard and be anti-establishment; nor must they be little old ladies over 65 who want to take in the fullness of the trouser leg with a bicycle clamp.

2. Mothers shall not cry nor become hysterical lest they be asked to leave the fitting room and sit on a straight-backed chair outside the women's lounge until they regain control.

3. Sons should be able to breathe in and out in a natural fashion in a pair of trousers without straining the zipper, popping the gripper, blowing the face or bugging the eyes.

4. Sons will not say more than 12 times during a 15-minute period, "But all the guys wear 'em."

5. Mothers will not say more than 12 times during a 15-minute period, "Wait till your father gets a load of this."

6. The word "raincoat" is considered profanity and should not be used in front of children.

7. Purchase of frayed shirts, faded jackets and ragged jeans should be delayed for 24 hours until Mother has had a chance to go through the Goodwill bag and perhaps duplicate them.

8. Trousers must be longer than the hair.

9. Mothers should at all cost avoid threats such as, "You buy those buckled shoes and I'll enlist you in the Army" or, "No son of mine is going to live under my roof dressed in an apricot silk scarf."

10. Fathers shall not laugh, snicker or resort to nose snorts when viewing the new purchases. The bill for them is in the bottom of the box just under the gold lamme shorts.

As I was telling my girlfriend, Maxine, "I didn't raise my sons to become daughters!"

Mr., Mrs. Ambrose renew vows on 50th anniversary

To celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Mickle Ambrose of Long Beach renewed marriage vows in a mass at Holy Innocents Church Sunday.

Following the service, the couple was honored at a reception for 400 guests at Nathan Schulman Auditorium.

Hosting the event were their eight children, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Ambrose of Huntington Beach; Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Reese of Belmont Shore; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ambrose of Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ambrose of Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. Dean Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. D.

M. Ambrose, all of Lakewood; and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Py and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ambrose, all of Long Beach.

The honorees were married on Aug. 18, 1919, in Kitchener, Ontario, Canada. They were born in Calabria, Italy, and came to Long Beach in 1922.

DEAR ABBY

Her marriage was not 'ideal'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You are the only person who can help me, so please answer this in a hurry and help me get my sister back to normal.

After an ideal 20-year marriage, my sister's husband lost his head over a beautiful but dumb 19-year-old kid. Right now he and his child bride are honeymooning in Europe and my sister is home crying her eyes out.

What happens to an intelligent man when he hits 50? How can he walk away from the woman who has loved him for 20 years just because a pretty young thing comes along?

This has shaken up the whole family. Now we all look at our husbands and wonder which one of them will be the next to run off with a teen-ager. Please give us your support.

DEAR BELLEVILLE: All intelligent men do not lose their heads when they hit 50. Obviously your sister's "ideal 20-year marriage" was not as ideal as it appeared to be. It's unfair to sit in judgment knowing nothing of the human needs of the people involved.

DEAR ABBY: I am tall, dark and considered handsome. I am in the medical profession which affords me an excellent opportunity to meet attractive young women. (Nurses, patients, doctors' daughters, etc.)

My problem is that I am 30 years old, and some of my friends have told me that if I am thinking about marriage to forget it because 30 is considered "over the hill." Is it?

MEDICO: Don't be silly. At 30, you are young enough to CLIMB the hill.

DEAR ABBY: Our child Rick is 14, and he doesn't know the first thing about how to handle money. It's all his father's fault because his father didn't have anything when he was a boy, and he wants his son to have it better.

Rick gets 10 dollars a week for just breathing. He's supposed to keep his room picked up, and I don't mean make his own bed. I mean just drop his dirty socks and underwear in the clothes hamper. But he doesn't even do that.

He's never saved a quarter in his life, but he sure knows how to get money. His father pays him 10 dollars for every "A" and 5 dollars for every "B." Also, this big lumox had two teeth under his pillow in case the "Good Fairy" wanted to "buy" them. Well, his father slipped a 10 dollar bill under his pillow that night and "bought" the teeth. (Isn't 14 a little old for that?)

Please say something about the importance of teaching children the value of a dollar. RICK'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Before you can teach your small boy how to handle money, you'd better teach your big boy how to handle his son. Every child should be taught to save a part of everything he gets. Your husband, as well intentioned as he may be, is denying his son the very experiences that made a man out of HIM. The way to learn the value of money is to WORK for it.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cooperative nurseries bid moms to enroll in program

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

"Our youngest child was too timid. My mother-in-law said she should be in nursery school. I had no idea what cooperative preschools were, but now that I'm involved... it's like gang busters."

The speaker was one of several young mothers from Long Beach Council of Parent Nursery Schools assembled to plan registration procedures for 19 preschools scheduled to open in September at city parks.

Commented another mother:

"Since attending the child development course required of co-op nursery school mothers, I'm more aware of Johnny's capabilities, the significance of his actions."

A slender brunette summed up conclusions of participating parents by stating:

"I think we get as much good from the program as the children. Most of us have moderate incomes and we're willing to spend time working at the development of our children. Suddenly, we've found a new circle of friends and are learning to operate a functioning organization."

Explained Mrs. Don Warner, council president:

"MOTHERS VOLUNTEER at least two days a month at assisting professional teachers. Mothers handle administration of the schools. The only requirements are to complete a one-semester class in child development at Long Beach City College and donate a minimum two days each month in the classroom."

"I can't think of a more ideal arrangement for providing a child with a good nursery school experience in his own neighborhood park. Fees range from $6 to $12.50 a month."

This fall marks the 21st year of the nationwide cooperative nursery program started in Long Beach by Dr. Katherine Whiteside Taylor. It also will be the first time second generation preschoolers attend sessions.

Co-op nurseries are open to children of all creeds, races and cultural backgrounds aged from 2 years 9 months, to 5 years. Activities include field trips, supervised play, music, art and scientific projects.

THE NON-PROFIT schools are licensed by the California State Department of Social Welfare. Each has access to services of a child psychologist, accountant and attorney.

"It's a rewarding experience to observe the noisy, uncooperative youngsters discover they're not the center of the universe," said Mrs. Charles Greenberg. "And to see the withdrawn children gain self-assurance and overcome their fear of being in groups."

"We also have monthly meetings at which child psychologists and educators give talks and answer our questions. Several schools have social events and fund-raising activities."

Interjected Mrs. Warner: "We're a non-profit organization, but we've sponsored a few rummage sales to pay for scholarships we started last year."

"One school presented diplomas last June. The mothers made mortar boards and gowns for the toddlers. I dare say, it was one graduation in the country with nary a protestor."

Additional information on co-op nurseries and scholarships is available from Mrs. Warner, 3740 E. Fifth St.

The speaker was one of several young mothers from Long Beach Council of Parent Nursery Schools assembled to plan registration procedures for 19 preschools scheduled to open in September at city parks.

Commented another mother:

"Since attending the child development course required of co-op nursery school mothers, I'm more aware of Johnny's capabilities, the significance of his actions."

A slender brunette summed up conclusions of participating parents by stating:

"I think we get as much good from the program as the children. Most of us have moderate incomes and we're willing to spend time working at the development of our children. Suddenly, we've found a new circle of friends and are learning to operate a functioning organization."

Explained Mrs. Don Warner, council president:

"MOTHERS VOLUNTEER at least two days a month at assisting professional teachers. Mothers handle administration of the schools. The only requirements are to complete a one-semester class in child development at Long Beach City College and donate a minimum two days each month in the classroom."

"I can't think of a more ideal arrangement for providing a child with a good nursery school experience in his own neighborhood park. Fees range from $6 to $12.50 a month."

This fall marks the 21st year of the nationwide cooperative nursery program started in Long Beach by Dr. Katherine Whiteside Taylor. It also will be the first time second generation preschoolers attend sessions.

Co-op nurseries are open to children of all creeds, races and cultural backgrounds aged from 2 years 9 months, to 5 years. Activities include field trips, supervised play, music, art and scientific projects.

THE NON-PROFIT schools are licensed by the California State Department of Social Welfare. Each has access to services of a child psychologist, accountant and attorney.

"It's a rewarding experience to observe the noisy, uncooperative youngsters discover they're not the center of the universe," said Mrs. Charles Greenberg. "And to see the withdrawn children gain self-assurance and overcome their fear of being in groups."

"We also have monthly meetings at which child psychologists and educators give talks and answer our questions. Several schools have social events and fund-raising activities."

Interjected Mrs. Warner: "We're a non-profit organization, but we've sponsored a few rummage sales to pay for scholarships we started last year."

"One school presented diplomas last June. The mothers made mortar boards and gowns for the toddlers. I dare say, it was one graduation in the country with nary a protestor."

Additional information on co-op nurseries and scholarships is available from Mrs. Warner, 3740 E. Fifth St.

Catholic rites unite couples in marriage

Jurewitz-Urbe

During a ceremony Saturday afternoon in St. Cyprian Catholic Church, Linda Marie Urbe and John L. Jurewitz recited nuptial vows. Among guests witnessing the ceremony were parents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey M. Urbe, 4743 Adenmoor Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Jurewitz of Lynwood.

The bride was attired in a floor length gown with full organza sleeves and daisies bordering the hem and neckline. Connie Urbe, sister of bride, was maid of honor; Mrs. Michael Grenier, Mrs. James Kelly and Claudia Jurewitz were bridesmaids.

William Jurewitz served as his brother's best man. Ushering were Victor Bonfilio, Timothy Shea and Thomas Jurewitz.

The couple was graduated from Pius X High School and University of San Francisco. The bridegroom was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

A reception followed the wedding in the home of the bride's parents. After a honeymoon in Wisconsin the newlyweds will live in Madison, Wis., where they will attend University of Wisconsin Graduate School.

Vows said in home

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday by Diana Joyce Bersuch and Julius Hegedus during a home ceremony in the 52 La Linda Drive residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bersuch.

The bride was attired in a gown of organza over taffeta accented by Venice lace daisy chains on the A-line skirt and chapel train.

Patricia Anderson was maid of honor. Other bridal attendants were Coni Griffin, Janie Burhenn and Mrs. Deborah Griffin.

Donald Hegedus stood as best man for his brother, son of Mrs. Julius Hegedus, 105 Home St. Ushers were Terry Bersuch and Curtis McMillan.

A dinner and reception followed in the Petroleum Club. The couple will reside in Long Beach.

Chorus call

Vocalists may audition for the new College Community Chorus at California State College, Long Beach, today and Sept. 7 and 14 from 1 to 4 p.m. in Room 127 of the Music Building. The chorus, under direction of Frank Poolar, will perform contemporary music.

a floor length Chantilly lace sheath gown and a full length train of peau de soie.

Carol Bogar was maid of honor. Mary Ann Vandemoortel, sister of bride, Tia Russell and Lynn Cooper, flower girl, were also in attendance.

Serving as best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark of Ocean City, N.J., was Jerry Wilson. James Vandemoortel, brother of bride, Ron Vinca, Larry Smith and Michael McChisney seated guests.

The bride is an alumna of Millikan High School. Her husband was graduated from Long Beach City College.

A reception at Skylinks Golf Course honored the couple following the ceremony. They will make their first home in Long Beach.

Bush-Rines

A trip to Carmel and San Francisco followed Saturday evening nuptials of Linda K. Rines and Leonard J. Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Bush, 3686 Oceana Ave., in St. Cornelius Catholic Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy L. Rines of Otis Orchards, Wash., was attired in a gown of lace embroidered with beads and scalloped neckline. The skirt was full with lace tiers which fell into a chapel train.

Mrs. Winfred Franigan was her sister's matron of honor. Terri Allen, Mrs. Ronald Clark and Kathy Bush were bridesmaids. Kristi Rowan and Kay Lindell were flower girls.

Michael Burke served as best man. Ushering guests were Gary Penny, William Dowman and Donald Goddard. Dennis Rowan was ring bearer.

The bride attended Long Beach City College. Her husband is a graduate of Millikan High School and studied at LBCC. He spent three years in the Army.

A reception was held at Los Alamitos Naval Station. They will make their first home in Long Beach.

THE WILSON FAMILY, an oil, is the work of Lance Richbourg. An exhibit of his paintings and a display of ceramic sculpture by Tom Ferreira open today at Long Beach Museum of Art.

State college artists share exhibit dates at LBMA

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Friends of the Museum will host a public reception today from 2 to 4 p.m. to mark the opening of two exhibits at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Portraits and still life paintings by Lance Richbourg and ceramic sculpture by Tom Ferreira will be on view through Sept. 21.

A young painter (born in Richmond, Va., in 1938), Richbourg is developing a distinctive, evocative style. He has had one-man shows at Ceeje Gallery, Los Angeles, and at La Jolla Museum; since 1964 he has been assistant professor of art at San Fernando Valley State College.

Ferreira's work has many admirers in Southern California. This exhibit of 40 recent pots and thrown objects, as well as large pieces built by hand, includes materials developed for industrial or technical use.

Ferreira studied at Chouinard Art Institute, Long Beach City College, and UCLA where he took his B.A. and M.A. Since 1957, he has been a professor of art at California State College, Long Beach. His major prizes include the Purchase Prize at the XIX Wichita National Decorative Arts and Ceramics Exhibition in 1956.

THE OPENING of the new $8 million Pasadena Art Museum is tentatively scheduled for late November.

Construction of the facility has been delayed and an earlier opening date postponed by the heavy equipment operators strike.

Even the November opening could be delayed by prolonged extension of the strike. The new museum is under construction at Orange Grove and Colorado Boulevards, Pasadena.

ALL AMATEUR and professional artists are eligible to enter the Catalina Art Association Festival in Avalon Sept. 20 and 21. Only restrictions — artists must be 16 years of age or over and all work must be original — no copies of paintings or of professional photographs. There is a $2 entry fee for each work, but no restrictions on the number of entries.

Along with the adult show, will be a children's exhibit section with youngsters competing in various age categories.

In the Casino Building, from Sept. 13 to 21, will be an exhibit of work by past judges and festival winners as well as paintings by well-known artists. During the same period, a craft show will be staged. Entries in this division will be accepted according to availability of space — address inquiries to Craft Show, P.O. Box 611, Avalon, 90704.

For festival information, write to Catalina Festival of Art, Box 233, Avalon, 90704. More than $2,000 in cash prizes will be awarded.

THE SPECIAL EXHIBITIONS Gallery of Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., has been renamed The Frances and Armand Hammer Wing.

Dr. Hammer is chairman of the board of Occidental Petroleum Corporation and is a museum trustee. He and Mrs. Hammer have been substantial contributors to the museum purchase funds and collections.

Their most recent gift is "Portrait of a Man of the Roman Family," painted in 1634 by Rembrandt van Rijn. Earlier this year, the Hammers gave the museum a Renoir and a Modigliani and subsequently donated $1 million to the museum's acquisition fund.

In announcing the designation of the Hammer Wing, museum president Sidney F. Brody reported that the museum recently purchased three outstanding works of art with the Hammer funds: an early Rembrandt, a dramatic oil sketch by Rubens and a striking Sargent double portrait.

City Center Joffrey Ballet

Wednesday in the Ahmanson Theater of The Music Center, the City Center Joffrey Ballet will open a two-week engagement which will include performance of 11 ballets. Opening program will be "Olympics," choreographed by Gerald Arpino, plus "Secret Places," "Fanfarita" and "Clowns." Pictured is scene from "Konservatoriet," one of the earliest and best examples of the great Auguste Bournonville's "ballet d'action." Originally a two-act romantic ballet, the classic now is in one act and may be the only one extant which preserves the high period of French ballet. It will be danced Aug. 30, matinee and evening; Aug. 31, evening; Sept. 6 and 7, matinees. To art-lovers it suggests the pastels, drawings and bronzes of Degas.

Crosby, Stills, etc., at Greek

Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young — new rock musical group — will make its initial Los Angeles appearance at Greek Theater, 2700 N. Vermont Ave. The one-week engagement will begin Monday evening.

On the same bill will be Joni Mitchell who uses both her voice and an unamplified guitar to convey her musical message.

Seats are available at the box office, by mail and at all ticket agencies, including Computicket outlets.

NEVILLE MARRINER

British conductor named

Neville Marriner, distinguished British conductor, has been named music director of the new Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra which will present its premiere season this fall in the Mark Taper Forum of The Music Center.

Founder-conductor of the Academy of St. Martin-in-the Fields in London, Marriner will arrive in Los Angeles early in October. He will conduct three of four concerts which will be given on consecutive Monday evenings beginning Oct. 27. Sir John Barbirolli will be guest conductor Nov. 17.

CONDUCTOR BOLET RETURNS

Gala concert finale for starlight series

rich material for putting in use multiform orchestral effects. All in all, the "Capriccio" is undoubtedly a purely external piece, but vividly brilliant for all that.

Brilliantly vivid, too, will be the vocal selections.

"I am proud to introduce Marta to a Long Beach audience," said Bolet. "I have known her family since she was a baby. She was my pupil and now she thinks I am her favorite conductor. A Cuban refugee — like me — she lives in Miami, Fla., but much of her concert work is in Latin America where she is one of the most popular singers.

"She has appeared several times on the Ed Sullivan and other television shows. In 1959, I introduced her on a concert tour of Europe."

The Long Beach conductor left for his most recent European tour at the end of May. In London, he conducted the New Philharmonic Orchestra in the premiere of a symphony by Graham Whettan and recorded performances for BBC — completing his 57th broadcast for the company since 1954. Two concerts in Cardiff, Wales, were part of the Investiture festivities for Prince Charles. Another, in Birmingham, marked his return to that major English city.

His itinerary included concerts in Switzerland and Spain. In Bilbao, Spain, his concerts — part of a festival — were occasions of sentiment, too. "I conducted my old orchestra—the orchestra I directed before I came to Long Beach a year ago."

After engagements in Barcelona and Madrid, Bolet met six of his Long Beach admirers in Spain. "Then my vacation began," he smiled.

"The travelers were Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Pelton, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Goodrich and Mr. and Mrs. James Worsham.

"For two weeks we toured Southern Spain. It was a wonderful time!

"Now, with this final concert of the summer, the orchestra can bring the rhythms of Spain to Long Beach by starlight."

Bob Click explores new avenues of art

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Of great interest to his many fans and collectors in the Long Beach area is the one-man show of prints, drawings and watercolors by Bob Click. The CSLB art faculty member, whose highly-colored intaglios have been best-sellers in various benefit art fairs, is exploring a number of new avenues of visual expressions and techniques.

The show will continue through Sept. 19 at the Inner City Art Gallery on the fifth floor of the Bradbury Building, 306 S. Broadway, Los Angeles. The building itself, acclaimed by architects and art-lovers, is a tremendous experience with its skylighted courtyard, wrought-iron staircases and open cage elevators.

TO RETURN to the show: among the 41 works are to be found three major themes along with works which are their offshoots. About two years ago, Click was working in fine, controlled drawings which seemed to be cells with their inner workings and connections, as seen through a microscope. The sphere forms have developed into round windows on lovemaking in "Kaleidoscope," in No. 9, a heavy graphite drawing, the cells seem squashed and warped by an infusion of foreign liquid.

A second theme is found in painstaking graphite studies from photographs. Most of these were taken of men in swimming with the distortion and foreshortening of the body under water presenting an astonishing contrast with the photographic rendering of the head and shoulders.

A THIRD theme develops the interplay of the circle and the square with rather gorgeous, complexly constructed designs in loaded colors.

'1491' due to premiere in Pavilion

The world premiere of Meredith Willson's musical "1491" will be the final event of Los Angeles Civic Light Opera's current season. The elaborate production will open Sept. 2 in the Pavilion of The Music Center.

John Cullum, of the Broadway stage, will appear as Columbus, Jean Fenn as Isabella, Chita Rivera as Beatriz, Bruce Gordon as Torquemada, Joseph Mell as Jocabini, and Gino Conforti as King Ferdinand.

THE SPECIAL EXHIBITIONS Gallery of Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., has been renamed The Frances and Armand Hammer Wing.

Dr. Hammer is chairman of the board of Occidental Petroleum Corporation and is a museum trustee. He and Mrs. Hammer have been substantial contributors to the museum purchase funds and collections.

Their most recent gift is "Portrait of a Man of the Roman Family," painted in 1634 by Rembrandt van Rijn. Earlier this year, the Hammers gave the museum a Renoir and a Modigliani and subsequently donated $1 million to the museum's acquisition fund.

In announcing the designation of the Hammer Wing, museum president Sidney F. Brody reported that the museum recently purchased three outstanding works of art with the Hammer funds: an early Rembrandt, a dramatic oil sketch by Rubens and a striking Sargent double portrait.

City Center Joffrey Ballet

Wednesday in the Ahmanson Theater of The Music Center, the City Center Joffrey Ballet will open a two-week engagement which will include performance of 11 ballets. Opening program will be "Olympics," choreographed by Gerald Arpino, plus "Secret Places," "Fanfarita" and "Clowns." Pictured is scene from "Konservatoriet," one of the earliest and best examples of the great Auguste Bournonville's "ballet d'action." Originally a two-act romantic ballet, the classic now is in one act and may be the only one extant which preserves the high period of French ballet. It will be danced Aug. 30, matinee and evening; Aug. 31, evening; Sept. 6 and 7, matinees. To art-lovers it suggests the pastels, drawings and bronzes of Degas.

Crosby, Stills, etc., at Greek

Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young — new rock musical group — will make its initial Los Angeles appearance at Greek Theater, 2700 N. Vermont Ave. The one-week engagement will begin Monday evening.

On the same bill will be Joni Mitchell who uses both her voice and an unamplified guitar to convey her musical message.

Seats are available at the box office, by mail and at all ticket agencies, including Computicket outlets.

NEVILLE MARRINER

British conductor named

Neville Marriner, distinguished British conductor, has been named music director of the new Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra which will present its premiere season this fall in the Mark Taper Forum of The Music Center.

Founder-conductor of the Academy of St. Martin-in-the Fields in London, Marriner will arrive in Los Angeles early in October. He will conduct three of four concerts which will be given on consecutive Monday evenings beginning Oct. 27. Sir John Barbirolli will be guest conductor Nov. 17.

CONDUCTOR BOLET RETURNS

Gala concert finale for starlight series

Brilliantly vivid, too, will be the vocal selections.

"I am proud to introduce Marta to a Long Beach audience," said Bolet. "I have known her family since she was a baby. She was my pupil and now she thinks I am her favorite conductor. A Cuban refugee — like me — she lives in Miami, Fla., but much of her concert work is in Latin America where she is one of the most popular singers.

"She has appeared several times on the Ed Sullivan and other television shows. In 1953, I introduced her on a concert tour of Europe."

The Long Beach conductor left for his most recent European tour at the end of May. In London, he conducted the New Philharmonic Orchestra in the premiere of a symphony by Graham Whettan and recorded performances for BBC — completing his 57th broadcast for the company since 1954. Two concerts in Cardiff, Wales, were part of the Investiture festivities for Prince Charles. Another, in Birmingham, marked his return to that major English city.

His itinerary included concerts in Switzerland and Spain. In Bilbao, Spain, his concerts — part of a festival — were occasions of sentiment, too. "I conducted my old orchestra — the orchestra I directed before I came to Long Beach a year ago."

After engagements in Barcelona and Madrid, Bolet met six of his Long Beach admirers in Spain.

"Then my vacation began," he smiled.

Bob Click explores new avenues of art

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Of great interest to his many fans and collectors in the Long Beach area is the one-man show of prints, drawings and watercolors by Bob Click. The CSLB art faculty member, whose highly-colored intaglios have been best-sellers in various benefit art fairs, is exploring a number of new avenues of visual expressions and techniques.

The show will continue through Sept. 19 at the Inner City Art Gallery on the fifth floor of the Bradbury Building, 306 S. Broadway, Los Angeles. The building itself, acclaimed by architects and art-lovers, is a tremendous experience with its skylighted courtyard, wrought-iron staircases and open cage elevators.

TO RETURN to the show: among the 41 works are to be found three major themes along with works which are their offshoots. About two years ago, Click was working in fine, controlled drawings which seemed to be cells with their inner workings and connections, as seen through a microscope. The sphere forms have developed into round windows on lovelymaking in "Kaleidoscope," in No. 9, a heavy graphite drawing, the cells seem squashed and warped by an infusion of foreign liquid.

A second theme is found in painstaking graphite studies from photographs. Most of these were taken of men in swimming with the distortion and foreshortening of the body under water presenting an astonishing contrast with the photographic rendering of the head and shoulders.

A THIRD theme develops the interplay of the circle and the square with rather gorgeous, complexly constructed designs in loaded colors.

'1491' due to premiere in Pavilion

The world premiere of Meredith Willson's musical "1491" will be the final event of Los Angeles Civic Light Opera's current season. The elaborate production will open Sept. 2 in the Pavilion of The Music Center.

John Cullum, of the Broadway stage, will appear as Columbus, Jean Fenn as Isabella, Chita Rivera as Beatriz, Bruce Gordon as Torquemada, Joseph Mell as Jacobini, and Gino Conforti as King Ferdinand.

"The travelers were Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Pellon, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Goodrich and Mr. and Mrs. James Worsham.

"For two weeks we toured Southern Spain. It was a wonderful time!

"Now, with this final concert of the summer, the orchestra can bring the rhythms of Spain to Long Beach by starlight."

Karpin on bridge

by Fred L. Karpin

The deal diagrammed here was reported to me by a friend who stated, in part: "I was sitting North, and I invited my partner to bid a small slam if he had a maximum opening bid. He evidently didn't understand my bid, or he thought that four aces would produce a grand slam."

"His seven notrump re-bid reminded me of this bridge anecdote. An expert was playing in a club game with a poor player as his partner. After the poor player had bid a hand atrociously, the expert said caustically: 'By the way, when did you learn to bid, partner?'"

"Before the reply could come, the expert continued, 'I know it was today. But what time today?'"

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

North's raise to four notrump showed 6 points, and asked South to bid a small slam if the latter had a maximum three notrump opening (27 points).

Possibly South thought that the four not-trump call was Blackwood, and if North could initiate the convention without an ace, then South figured that his possession of four aces should guarantee the grand slam.

DECLARER'S KING of hearts won the opening lead, after which dummy was entered via the spade queen. The jack of diamonds was then laid down and the finesse taken.

With the jack capturing the trick, the diamond 10 was led next. East covered with his queen, which declarer captured with the ace.

The board was now re-entered by leading a diamond to the nine, and a low club was played, declarer putting up his queen when East followed with a low club. West promptly grabbed this trick, and de-

Just weds take trip to Phoenix

Victoria Jon Hercus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hercus, 684 Grand Ave., exchanged wedding vows with Jerry A. Jones Friday at First Baptist Church.

The bride wore a formal A-line gown of organza and lace with a chapel train of satin for her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jones of Banning.

Nancy Georgia Hercus was maid of honor. Patricia Taylor and Brenda Woodbert were bridesmaids. Jim Swanner served as best man; Gary Corbett and Bob Sutton ushered.

Mrs. Jones is a graduate of Wilson High School. Her husband is an alumnus of Jordan High School and attended Long Beach City College. He is a member of Elk's Club.

After a reception in the Willow Room at the Elk's Club the couple left for a trip to Phoenix, Ariz. They will reside in Long Beach.

Land of Midnight Sun

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of impressions by Travel Editor Fred Kraft of what he saw on a just-ended 7,250-mile swing to and through Alaska with Alaska Airlines.)

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

KOTZEBUE, Alaska — The Alaska Airlines pilot dipped his trim 727 "Golden Nugget" as it crossed the Arctic Circle, the northern equivalent to the equator, and I knew we were nearing the end of our 650-mile flight to the Land of the Midnight Sun.

Thirty-five miles later, and an hour and 20 minutes out of Anchorage, the big bird sailed in like a kite onto the smooth gravel runway and landed a few short miles from this authentic Eskimo village.

"E-NU-PIAK." The tour bus driver smiled the greeting much as the friendly copper-skinned people of Tahiti — 18 degrees below the equator — had welcomed me three weeks earlier with "Iorana."

There the similitude ended. No palm trees here, no famous dancers, no grassy fields. And, to my utter surprise, not even an ice igloo.

"Unlike their cousins on the northern fringes of Canada and Greenland," a tour director explained, "Eskimos in Alaska never lived in ice igloos, except when caught away from home on the tundra in a storm, and then only for temporary shelter. Sod igloos, yes."

BUT EVEN sod igloos have been replaced almost entirely with small wooden buildings. Main street is no more than a gravel beach fronting the village, used only by a few jeeps, tourist buses, a fleet of three taxis, and by pedestrians. There are no sidewalks. It is here that Eskimos come from over a vast area with furs, seal, oil and hides to barter and lay in provisions for the coming months; and later, with their families who often accompany them, depart in their skin walrus boats, or oomiaks, or by dogsled, depending upon the season. But dogsleds are rapidly being replaced by Snow-Gos, a mechanical sled.

It is also on this nameless street that Eskimos gather to repair their boats, tow their catches of white whale, seal and walrus for butchering, and erect fish racks to dry their catches which, in summer, consist chiefly of salmon.

Along the same street

ON THE BEACH OVERLOOKING KOTZEBUE'S MAIN STREET, a tourist plays with a litter of puppies destined to become a part of an Alaskan sled dog team while the Eskimo girl owner looks on.

facing the beach are general stores, a cafe or two (beer and liquor are outlawed), a gift shop or two, and outfitting stores for fishing and hunting parties. Kotzebue is one of the world's largest outfitting points for polar bear hunts in season (Feb. 15-April 30), and for sheep, moose, caribou and the grizzly bear (Aug. 1-Sept. 15).

MORE THAN 90 per cent of Kotzebue's 2,100 people are part or pure Eskimo. Limited sanitary conditions aside, living conditions are much better than one might expect in such a primitive area. There is a grade and junior high school with a staff of 27, a $3 million hospital with an apartment complex for nurses and doctors, and several churches.

Between the airport and village is an Airforce Aircraft Control and Warning Station with a staff of 100, not to count a family of ravens with a home in one of the huge radar antennas.

Because of the cold and solidity of permafrost in the soil, the tallest "trees" in the area are willows which never exceed the height of a yard. Noting this a few years ago, Airforce men decided to start what they jokingly called the "Kotzebue National Forest" by planting a single spruce sapling. The sapling, with tender care, has grown to a height of eight feet and, surrounded by a white picket fence and identification sign, is one of the numerous attractions.

ANOTHER is a museum called Ootukahkuktuviik, meaning "place having old things," which has a surprising large and interesting collection of Eskimo artifacts. Also on the brief tour is the Senior Center where friendly Eskimos do their famous blanket toss, demonstrate how they sew with crude tools, carve ivory, how they fish through ice, how they "saddle" their babies on their backs up through their furry parkies, and how they cook with whale oil.

All of these attractions add up to serendipity for some visitors who come here for no other reasons than to say they have been inside the Circle and to experience for themselves the strange phenomenon by which it has come to be called the Land of the Midnight Sun.

On June 2, the sun rises and does not set until the evening of July 9, a period which seems a little eerie to first-time visitors. The Eskimos, however, long since have learned to take the 36-day-long light period in stride and make only one change in their book of rules: they move the 10 p.m. curfew for children up to midnight.

And winter has its "long night." When the sun goes down Dec. 12, not to rise again until Dec. 21.

THE HISTORIC old gold camp of Nome — present population about 4,000 but which once exceeded 20,000 rough-and-tumble prospectors — is the only stop made by the "Golden Nugget Jet" on its return to Anchorage.

En route, the airliner skirts, but carefully avoids crossing, the International Date Line, the dividing point between two conti-ments, two oceans and two days. On clear days the Siberian coast is easily visible as the fleet jet passes over King Island, which a group of talented Eskimo ivory carvers deserted a few years ago for a settlement now known as the King Island Eskimo Village, at the edge of Nome.

Nome is a potpourri of unpainted board houses protected by a 3,350-foot breakwater from the sometimes angry Bering Sea. Although the streets are unpaved and dusty, the main street boasts boardwalks, Alaska's oldest newspaper, the Nome Nugget; two hotels (I stayed at the comfortable, almost-new Nugget Inn; several good restaurants; a variety of gift shops including the widely known Polet's Eskimo Arts and Crafts; and the city's oldest and most famous saloon — the Board of Trade Bar — which is still a popular gathering place.

WHILE Nome is the center of commerce for most of northwestern Alaska, it is not yet connected by road to other parts of the state.

There is plenty to do and see: performances by the King Island Eskimo Dancers, visit to the Eskimo

IN THE SPRINGTIME

Adventure on high seas

There's something for everyone in the wide and wonderful world of cruising, but seldom has a cruise been so pinpointed to the specific desires of guests pursuing their favorite interests as has Swedish American Line's "Spring Adventure Cruise" leaving New York next April 20 on the new luxury cruise liner Kungsholm.

Passengers from the West can board the ship at Los Angeles on April 5 when the ship calls there on her return from the cruise around the world. They will then visit Guadalupe Island, Puerto Vallarta and Acapulco, transit the Panama Canal with a stop at Cristobal and arrive in New York on April 18. They will have two days in New York, using the ship as their hotel.

In her 37 days the Kungsholm will call at 20 unusual ports in Europe, many of them quite off the routes taken by most cruise ships. It will follow the continuing unfolding of spring blossoms all the way from the Azores to Northern Ireland.

FIRST LANDFALL abroad will be in the Azores at a time when this natural botanical garden is ablaze with azaleas and rhododendron, followed by three ports in Spain's verdant Galicia. From one of these, Villagarcia, a motor trip will be made to the famous shrine city of Santiago de Compostela, with its 11th century Cathedral, considered the world's finest example of Spanish Romanesque architecture.

Kungsholm guests later will visit the Bordeaux country of France, to see the very vineyards and cellars where the great names in French wines and cognacs originate. A sojourn will also be made in Brittany, France's charming maritime province. The liner will then cruise among the Channel Islands, visiting the Isle of Jersey before returning to the Continent for the splendor of Normandy in apple blossom time, and Holland in tulip time.

A MAJOR attraction of the cruise will be the generous portion devoted to the British Isles, starting with the Isle of Wight and continuing with ports on the mainland of England from which the famed manor houses and gardens of Spring-clad Cornwall, Dorset, Hampshire and the Cotswolds will be visited. After calls in northern Wales, the Isle of Man, and Scotland, with shore trip opportunities to see Loch Lomond and the heather-clad Scottish terrain, the vessel will visit Ireland, stopping at Rathmullam in County Donegal.

Featured throughout the cruise will be guest lecturers who will discuss the flowers and gardens, historic castles and mansions, and the wine country to be savored along the way. In addition to the full round of shipboard activities, including professional entertainment, guests will be greeted by native singers and musicians in traditional costume at several ports of call.

nents, two oceans and two days. On clear days the Siberian coast is easily visible as the fleet jet passes over King Island, which a group of talented Eskimo ivory carvers deserted a few years ago for a settlement now known as the King Island Eskimo Village, at the edge of Nome.

Nome is a potpourri of unpainted board houses protected by a 3,350-foot breakwater from the sometimes angry Bering Sea. Although the streets are unpaved and dusty, the main street boasts boardwalks, Alaska's oldest newspaper, the Nome Nugget; two hotels (I stayed at the comfortable, almost-new Nugget Inn; several good restaurants; a variety of gift shops including the widely known Polet's Eskimo Arts and Crafts; and the city's oldest and most famous saloon — the Board of Trade Bar — which is still a popular gathering place.

While Nome is the center of commerce for most of northwestern Alaska, it is not yet connected by road to other parts of the state.

There is plenty to do and see: performances by the King Island Eskimo Dancers, visit to the Eskimo

IN THE SPRINGTIME

Adventure on high seas

There's something for everyone in the wide and wonderful world of cruising, but seldom has a cruise been so pinpointed to the specific desires of guests pursuing their favorite interests as has Swedish American Line's "Spring Adventure Cruise" leaving New York next April 20 on the new luxury cruise liner Kungsholm.

Passengers from the West can board the ship at Los Angeles on April 5 when the ship calls there on her return from the cruise around the world. They will then visit Guadalupe Island, Puerto Vallarta and Acapulco, transit the Panama Canal with a stop at Cristobal and arrive in New York on April 18. They will have two days in New York, using the ship as their hotel.

In her 37 days the Kungsholm will call at 20

unusual ports in Europe, many of them quite off the routes taken by most cruise ships. It will follow the continuing unfolding of spring blossoms all the way from the Azores to Northern Ireland.

FIRST LANDFALL abroad will be in the Azores at a time when this natural botanical garden is ablaze with azaleas and rhododendron, followed by three ports in Spain's verdant Galicia. From one of these, Villagarcia, a motor trip will be made to the famous shrine city of Santiago de Compostela, with its 11th century Cathedral, considered the world's finest example of Spanish Romanesque architecture.

Kungsholm guests later will visit the Bordeaux country of France, to see the very vineyards and cellars where the great names in French wines and cognacs originate. A sojourn will also be made in Brittany, France's charming maritime province. The liner will then cruise among the Channel Islands, visiting the Isle of Jersey before returning to the Continent for the splendor of Normandy in apple blossom time, and Holland in tulip time.

A MAJOR attraction of the cruise will be the generous portion devoted to the British Isles, starting with the Isle of Wight and continuing with ports on the mainland of England from which the famed manor houses and gardens of Spring-clad Cornwall, Dorset, Hampshire and the Cotswolds will be visited. After calls in northern Wales, the Isle of Man, and Scotland, with shore trip opportunities to see Loch Lomond and the heather-clad Scottish terrain, the vessel will visit Ireland, stopping at Rathmullam in County Donegal.

Featured throughout the cruise will be guest lecturers who will discuss the flowers and gardens, historic castles and manors, the wine country to be savored along the way. In addition to the full round of shipboard activities, including professional entertainment, guests will be greeted by native singers and musicians in traditional costume at several ports of call.

THE COLORADO ROCKIES is a many splendored thing all year. Eternal snows, cradled in rock-bound gorges, glisten in the bright Colorado sun and glacier-born lakes provide a trout angler's paradise.

Hotel space no problem in Hawaii

HONOLULU — Unlike the high-season sell-out situation of recent years, hotel space is available in Hawaii this summer.

The Hawaii Hotel Association reports that visitors can obtain rooms in Waikiki and Neighbor Island hotels, and without long-range advance booking.

Budget, moderate and luxury accommodations are all available and at published prices. (Historically, Hawaii hotel rates have remained the same in and out of season. They do not vary with availability or scarcity of room space.)

The increase of new hotel rooms in 1969 has exceeded the current rate of growth of tourism. Hawaii hosted 20 per cent more visitors for the first three months of this year than it did for the same period last year, including military visitors and their dependents on Rest and Recuperation leave. However 22-23 per cent more new hotel rooms were built.

ALSO, as the Neighbor Islands develop as visitor destinations, pressure for hotel space eases in Waikiki. This July, for the first time, hotels on the Big Island of Hawaii had a higher occupancy rate than Waikiki hotels. Big Island tourism growth has surged with the inception of direct flights between the Mainland and Hilo.

WHEN THE new carriers and larger aircraft begin flying into Hawaii, a visitor increase will result. However, the Hawaii Hotel Association does not expect the rate of increase of visitor arrivals to catch up with the hotel room construction rate in the foreseeable future.

There are at present nearly 25,000 hotel rooms in the State. By 1972 that figure is expected to double.

Robert N. Rinker, executive vice president of the Hawaii Hotel Association said: "From here on out, there will be a constantly increasing inventory of rooms in Hawaii. Agents can be generally optimistic about getting desired space for their clients."

I-HC OPENS NEW HOTEL IN CARACAS

Inter-Continental Hotels Corp. announces the opening of a new nine-story, 196-room guest wing at the Hotel Tamana, which will provide ample room space for travelers to Caracas, Venezuela. The Tamana now has 596 rooms and is one of the latest hotels in the Inter-Continental organization.

Inter-Continental currently has 47 hotels in 34 countries.

Each room in the new wing is individually air-conditioned and equipped with a radio, TV, automatic direct dial phone system, private bath and terrace garden.

The expansion at the Tamana highlights Inter-Continental's current growth throughout Latin America and the Caribbean. This fall, Inter-Continental is scheduled to open the new 208-room Hotel Inter-Continental Managua in Nicaragua and 278-room Hotel Inter-Continental Medellin in Colombia. A 134-room addition will be opened at the Hotel Inter-Continental Caracas next spring. The 204-room Hotel Inter-Continental Guayana in Venezuela is scheduled to open in the fall of 1970.

Italia to sail for Mexico

LOS ANGELES — The Princess Italia will return to Los Angeles in late September from San Francisco and sail for Mexico on a 13-day cruise Sept. 28.

The 420-passenger liner used San Francisco as a base this summer for a series of cruises to Alaska and Canada and for several Party Cruises to Mexico.

Ports of call on the 13-day Mexican cruise feature Acapulco, Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta. Rates start at $470.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Japan steams in late summer heat

By STAN DELAPLANE
TOKYO — Japan is steaming in late summer now, and the gorgeous Japanese peaches are in their brief season. They must be eaten in their own juice — add cream or sugar and you destroy them.

You should have them for breakfast in a cool Japanese inn.

The maid takes you to the pine-floored bath with its wooden buckets and sunken steamy tub. You dress in a fresh cotton kimono-like yukata. Your bed has been taken up and put away. The paper shoji screens are pushed back — the room opens on a sunny garden.

On the low table, on a delicately brushed plate, is the golden peach. Just as you see it in thousand-year-old prints.

The Financial Times of London says Tokyo has the highest food prices in the world. However, we've been eating sukiyaki dinners at $4. We also ate at Han Nya-En. (Fortuna calls it one of the world's great restaurants) and caught a tab for $30!

A single room at the plush Okura Hotel is $14. Silk scarves are a good buy at $1.75 to $3. Wako is best of the department stores for tourist shopping. The best of the night clubs in Akasaka — Mama Cherry still runs the Copacabana, the most elegant. And most expensive.

Beautifully dressed hostesses — $2.80 to $3.20 an hour for their dancing-sitting company. They expect a tip, that's unusual in this no-tipping country. You do NOT tip bellboys, waiters, taxi drivers in Japan.

A night club evening can nudge you for $50 easily. But Japan Travel Bureau will give you a sampling on a tour that costs only $12.30.

"For a couple of boys used to camping out, how about England? Or do they have rules against this?"

PROBABLY SOME rules about where you camp. But you'll find out easily because I saw lots of English kids with sleeping packs in some wonderful hiking country. One of the best is a footpath that runs 136 miles along the Thames — it's the old tow path. Runs through pastures, beech forests, small villages. Another is the Lake country, just below the Scottish border. Roman forts. Pine tree hills. Beautiful lakes.

would like to introduce you to azurée

How to build your own bath spa in two minutes

Shut the door. Let the water run.
Add Estée Lauder's new Azurée.
Step into your own bath spa.

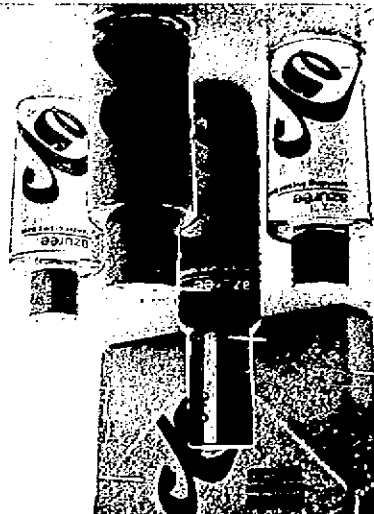

And have it as you like it, for the days of just soap, water and scrub-a-dub-dub-dub are passé. Estée Lauder gives you these Azurée alternatives:

1. Relax and read a detective story in water softened with European Mineral Bath Salts.
2. Refresh in a quick before-dinner Mint Pick-up Bath.
3. Smooth out rough spots before wearing that new see-through fashion with Fresh Milk Bath.
4. Soothe away aches before getting some shut-eye in Tender Creme Bath.
5. Pour in drops of Azurée Perfumed Bath Oil and just enjoy, enjoy!

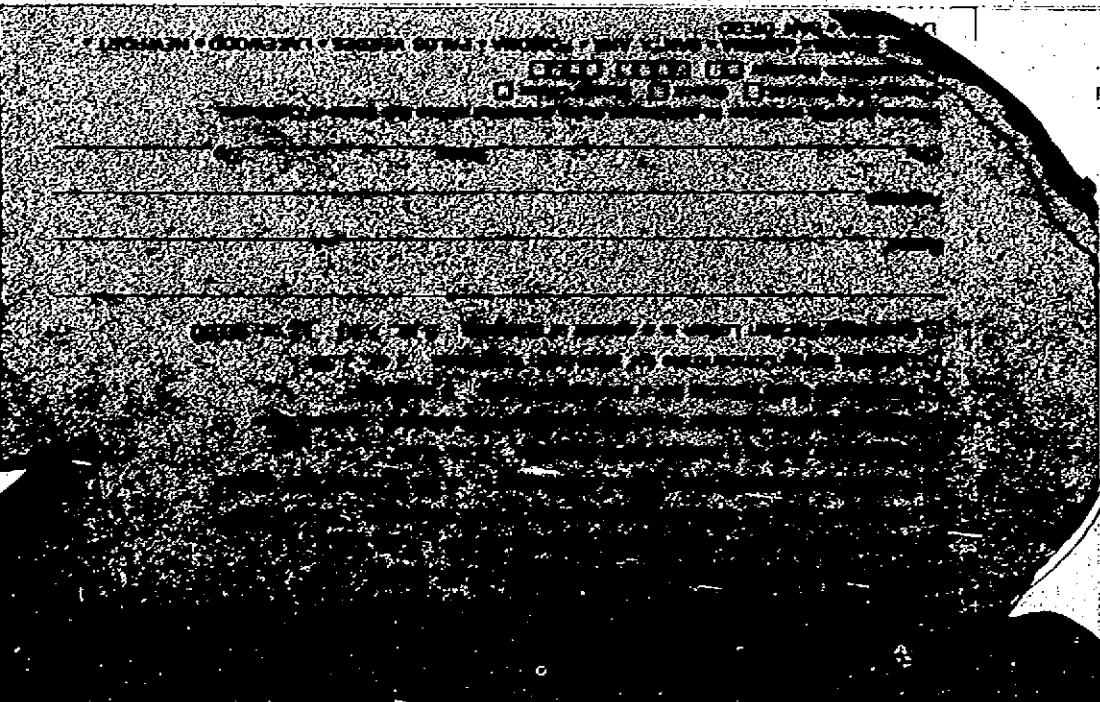

Besides feeling gloriously clean (which is the first purpose of any bath) your skin is being pampered while the fragrance of Azurée lingers on. For those precious moments when you can really call your time your own — make the best of it — with Azurée.

Glad You Asked That!

By Hy Gardner

Q. IS BUDDY HACKETT part Chinese — Sam Berensohn, Oakland.

A. Only when he stretches a rubber band across his face to get that slanty-eyed look in a take-off that made him famous — the Chinese waiter. He'll cash in on this familiar routine by going into the franchised Chinese restaurant business in partnership with Dong Kingman, the famous watercolor artist, and other associates. The "pilot" chow-meinery will be launched in Philadelphia, called, oddly enough, "Buddy Hackett Presents the Chinese Waiter."

Q. All impressionists who do Cary Grant have him saying, "Judy, Judy, Judy." Did he originally say this to Miss Garland in a movie? — Louise R., Long Beach.

A. "I don't know that I ever said it," Cary declares. "Neither do the found men who checked the tracks for me find any such excerpt. I vaguely recall that at a party somebody introduced Judy Garland by saying, 'Judy, Judy, Judy,' and it caught on, attributed to me."

Q. Was Ed Ames one of the Ames brothers in the late '40s and '50s? — F. Forsyth, Westover Air Force Base, Chicopee Falls, Mass.

A. Ed's been one of the Ames brothers since he was born!

Q. My friend says that the Lone Ranger's old pal Tonto was a Lebanese. I bet he's an Indian. Who wins? — Charles D., Tucson, Ariz.

A. Pick up the marbles, Tonto, real name Jay Silverheels, is a Mohawk.

Q. Does Julie Andrews do her own

Julie... the sound of music is her own.

Dong Kingman's impression of partner Buddy Hackett.

singing in the movies? — John Nagg, Kenmore, N.Y.

A. Of course, she does — that's how she became a star.

Q. Can you tell me a little more about Glenn Campbell — his birthday and bride, for instance? Barbara Amazi, Madelia, Minn.

A. You mean brides. The six-foot-er, seventh son of a seventh son, was born in Delight, Ark., on April 22, 1935. He married for a second time in September 1959. (Billy Nunnley).

Q. Why don't the Vegas casinos employ female croupiers and dealers? — Marcy Richter, Pensacola, Fla.

A. That's precisely what a group of women are asking at this moment. They've formed a Committee to Abolish Discrimination Against Women Dealers and may make a federal case out of it. In northern Nevada, club owners have employed femmes since World War II when a shortage of male dealers forced their hand.

Q. Have former U.S. Presidents the privilege of franking their mail? — L. M. Burton, Winnipeg.

A. Frankly — yes.

Q. Anything happen between Jack Benny and Rochester? The latter seems to be the only one of the old regulars you don't see on Benny specials. — Mary Sue Greene, Shelby, N.C.

A. "We used Rochester on our special last fall," writes Jack Benny, "and intend to use him in the future."

The Pueblo Incident

(See Page 5)

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS, AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

'Splits' Spiel for Kid Shows

FLEEGLE, the doggiest member of the Banana Splits blows his horn for the five new shows on NBC's Saturday morning lineup, starting Sept. 6. The shows to be introduced via film clips at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, Ch. 4, are: "Here Comes the Grump" featuring a boy, his dog, a gnome-like character called The Grump and a bumbling dragon; "The Pink Panther," which will include an animated series, "The Inspector;" "Jambo," a live-action animal series, with Marshall Thompson as host-narrator; "H. R. Pufnstuf," live actors in fantasy roles, with Jack Wild, the young British actor of the film "Oliver!" and "The Heckle and Jeckle Show," starring two wild mynah birds. (See "The Kiddie Market," Page 17.)

To Be Black

The black Americans from whom white America tends to expect the most — the educated and successful — often are torn by inner conflict and resentment.

Their frustrations are documented in "To Be Black," which will air at 4 p.m. Sunday, Ch. 7.

The program concerns itself with the work of two black psychiatrists, Dr. William Grier and Dr. Price M. Cobbs. Drs. Grier and Cobb, who co-authored the book, "Black Rage," appear on the program as interviewers and moderators.

The documentary, taped in San Francisco, uncovers the reality of blackness in a white America through representative case studies from the psychiatrists' practices.

Also featured on "To Be Black" are panel discussions on two topics: education and health services.

The education panel, moderated by Dr. Cobbs, includes a school administrator, Harriet Wood, a graduate student at Berkeley, Mike Brown, and a teenaged student, Janet Gates.

Dr. Grier moderates the health services panel, composed of a white doctor, Earl Marsh, a black doctor, Arthur Coleman, and a health services consumer, Mrs. Ruth Williams.

DIFFERENCES between black and white which remain even when conditions of equal opportunity are provided are discussed by Dr. William Grier (l) and Dr. Price M. Cobbs, psychiatrists, on "To Be Black."

OUR COVER

The world's best tennis player, Rod Laver, and his wife, Mary, of Corona del Mar, are happily awaiting the birth of their first child; it is expected the first week of September. Also, Laver in the next two weeks will be trying to win the U. S. Open championship at Forest Hills, N. Y. If he succeeds, he will be the first man in tennis history to score two "Grand Slams"—the winning of the championships of Australia, France, England and America in the same year. Laver is an Australian native, but has been living in Orange County since his marriage three years ago. In our cover photo, Mr. and Mrs. Laver are pictured at the Newport Beach Tennis Club, which he represents as touring pro. For more about the Lavers, turn to Page 6.

Outside House Painting Eliminated for 15 Years

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT)—Painting is a thing of the past. Let us show you how Fiberglas TEX-COTE insulates, waterproofs and beautifies and is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the TEX-COTE story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every fiberglas TEX-COTE job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to TEX-COTE its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

TEX-COTE is one of the oldest coatings now marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings since 1946. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

TEX-COTE is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. TEX-COTE fuses itself to the walls and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. TEX-COTE may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

THE WELLS REPORT

End of Innocence

By Bob Wells

DURING the presidential campaign of 1968, Richard Nixon promised the American people "to bring us together." What Orange County residents didn't understand until last week was that he was going to do it in San Clemente.

It is possible that President Nixon's decision to locate the Summer White House in San Clemente might be the last straw that defeats Orange County's long effort to hold off the evils of the 20th Century—real and imagined—from its green suburbs, golden hills and bluff-guarded beaches.

Four to six thousand people—depending on whose estimate you accept—came to see the President last Sunday. That's about a third of the normal population of San Clemente, once a sleepy beach town whose greatest claim to fame was its phony California Spanish architecture whose dazzling white walls caused show blindness among motorists passing on Coast Highway.

Out-of-county writers and in-county civic leaders have combined to produce a great deal of myth and nonsense about Orange County. To transient reporters, Orange County is Mississippi without William Faulkner, the Bible Belt with orange juice instead of Coca Cola.

TO THE native sons and daughters of Orange County, their homeland is Eden. True, the fruit of Paradise is gone and the two-lane blacktop roads with their prim white stripes no longer ramble through endless orange groves. But the air, they tell themselves, is still almost pollution free. The waves that crash on the eternal coasts are clean and green. There are still cattle on a thousand hills above the freeways, and in summer the Great Orange rises hot and shining from behind Saddleback, and at night it falls bloody and hissing into the sea.

Both views distort reality. Orange County didn't invent air pollution but it was one of the first areas in the nation to adopt it enthusiastically. Back in the 1920s and 1930s, the most popular radio program in the county was the KFI frost reports. Movies were interrupted in county theaters for frost warnings.

When there was danger of frost, the orange growers would hurry to the groves and light their smudge pots. Orange County housewives would hurry home in those pre-automatic dryer days and take in their laundry. Occasionally, when the wind was right, Los Angeles County housewives who hadn't bothered to take their laundry off the lines would be the victims of smudge pot fall out. The air in Orange County during a cold winter was kerosene scented and interestingly textured with tiny bits of soot.

IT MAY dismay Birchers to discover that in the last century, Orange County was the site of German and Polish collectivist utopian colonies. Walter Knott, the gentle conservative, recalls with nostalgia his early days in Orange County when he would go for months without seeing a federal employee except the postmaster. Yet, in 1877 the Los Angeles Star reported that "Internal Revenue Collector Hall swooped down on an illicit distillery at Anaheim one day last week and captured the still and one thousand gallons of grape brandy spirits."

Nevertheless, there is a solid basis of reality for the myths. Orange County is politically conservative. It harkens back to small-town America and a Lost Eden. But like the rest of the nation, Orange County has had to fall back step by step before the devices and depravities of the 20th Century.

And last Sunday, mass protest came down the San Diego Freeway to San Clemente.

SAN CLEMENTE had been having trouble with modernism even before President Nixon established the Western White House there. San Clemente lifeguards had been threatening to strike. Indeed, they were only stopped by a court injunction. A lifeguard strike in San Clemente would be roughly equivalent to a croupier strike in Las Vegas, or a walkout by Mickey Mouse, Tinkerbell and all of the Seven Dwarfs at Disneyland. There goes the economy.

The anti-war protestors came in private cars, rented busses and gaudy vans decorated in psychedelic designs. They flowed off the freeway around the San Clemente Inn and parked along the neat, grass-and-ivy boulevard strips of upper middle class Suburbia.

Some of the residents ventured out to watch and shake their heads, but most stayed indoors. Many displayed American flags. Curiously, many of the disapproving residents were hard to distinguish from the demonstrators. Orange County Republicans at home tend to dress like Harry Truman on vacation at Palm Beach. The householders' bright sport shirts and Bermuda shorts blended comfortably into the bright bell-bottoms and headbands of the protestors.

THE DEMONSTRATORS raised their placards (most original: A pencil sketch of Nixon with the query, "Would you buy a used war from this man?") and moved down the Via de Frente to a point about 300 yards from the entrance to the Western White House, where police blocked their path.

Before they reached the first line of police, however, they were turned back by a massed line of their own demonstration monitors. The monitors chanted and cheered with the protestors, but they stood shoulder to shoulder between the marchers and the police.

The San Clemente police were reinforced by units of Orange County and San Diego County deputy sheriffs. Santa Ana police manne the front line at every potential confrontation point.

It is still enough of a small town police force that the officers can smile in response to a friendly smile and give a friendly reply to a polite query or comment. The demeanor of the police eased tension and isolated potential trouble makers among the demonstrators.

"The police handled the demonstration with real professionalism," Robert Bland, Orange County chairman of the Peace Action Committee, said after the march.

After the usual round of speeches in the state park, the demonstration dispersed. The sign on the marquee at the San Clemente Inn had the last word for the moment:

"MR. PRESIDENT. WE ONLY DEMONSTRATE OUR ADMIRATION AND RESPECT."

But Bland promised further demonstrations. A Laguna Beach resident for 15 years, he seemed a little sad about the changes he was bringing to Orange County.

"I don't like to come down and disturb the good people of San Clemente," he said, "but we will be here as long as the war in Vietnam continues."

Unlike tubes, solid-state components are designed to work without burning themselves out. If one ever fails it can usually be replaced in minutes, right at home. • The "power equalizer" helps keep Quasar TV working at a pre-set voltage level ... no matter how high the voltage coming from the wall socket. This means the picture size remains constant. There's practically no shrinkage or expansion of picture due to electrical equipment operating in the home or nearby. Most importantly, the "power equalizer" provides long life for the picture tube, because it constantly operates at the voltage range it was designed for. • Automatic fine tuning and electronic picture lock • Lighted channel indicators on VHF and UHF.

GEORGE ERIES, Editor

TV NOTEBOOK

Sure, the show must go on — but how when the star is flat on her back in a hospital bed fighting the battle of a slipped disc?

Personal manager Lee Magid found the solution to Della Reese's hospitalization in a local supermarket at 2:30... AM!

Della's slipped disc which precluded her hostessing "Della" on Monday and Tuesday. ("Della" airs 10 p.m., weeknights on Channel 9.)

Enter Lee Magid, miracle-worker wand in hand — dry as a bone without a drop of fresh orange juice at home. Enter Kaye Stevens, newly arrived from New York and without a flacon of diet cola.

"What's new?" asked Kaye across the produce counter. "Della's sick," said the weary, thirsty manager. "Want to do the show for her?" "Sure," Kaye said, "when, where and what time?" Kaye'll do the Della bit Monday and Tuesday.

KAM NELSON, teen co-star of KJL-TV Channel 9 Boss City (Saturday, 6 p.m.) and The Groovy Show (Monday-Friday, 5 p.m.), has now become a movie starlet as well!

Kam recently completed shooting two forthcoming movies. The first, a Walt Disney production titled "The Computer Wore Tennis Shoes" stars Kurt Russell; the second is a Paramount feature called "Norwood", starring Glen Campbell and Joe Namath.

PEARL BAILEY

BROADWAY, night club and recording star Pearl Bailey, who won a Tony Award for her portrayal of Dolly Levi in the Broadway musical "Hello, Dolly!", has been signed to star in her own musical variety series on the ABC Television Network for the 1970-71 season.

Pearl has been a star since her Broadway debut in "St. Louis Woman" in 1946, for which she won the Donaldson Award. That production was the first in a string of stage successes. She has several starring motion picture roles to her credit and will soon be seen in the Norman Jewison production of "The Landlord." She recently made her first mark in literary circles with her book of memoirs, "The Raw Pearl."

Named "Man of the Year" in 1963 by the March of Dimes — the first woman to be so honored — Miss Bailey has also been the USO's "Woman of the Year."

Jacqueline Bisset: a New Sex Symbol in Film

By Lorraine Gauguin

Jacqueline Bissett... a certain magnetism

THE DAY I MET Jacqueline Bisset everyone was upset because they were going to simulate a bomb explosion aboard a jetliner with a full load of passengers. All of the passengers are distinguished actors and not one of them refused to appear in the scene, although Jacqueline was replaced by famous Hollywood stuntgirl Donna Garrett (she has done stunts for some of Hollywood's most glamorous gals, including Raquel Welch and Shirley MacLaine).

"They wouldn't allow me to do it," said Jackie. "I'm the stewardess and standing in front of the lavatory door when the bomb goes off. I get the door right in my face and, although they don't say what actually happens to me — you just see me being carried off the plane on a stretcher — it's pretty obvious that I won't recover."

Talk about nerves, everybody was dashing around the set, photographers were getting ready and practically everybody on the Universal studio lot had walked onto the set. It's not every day you get to see Dean Martin, Jacqueline Bisset, Helen Hayes, Van Heflin, Whit Bissell, Sondra Gould and countless character actors get blown up. Producer Ross Hunter was a nervous wreck. He was more concerned about stuntgirl Garrett than anyone else.

An hour before bomb blast, Jackie and I sat in her dressing room discussing her career. She was wearing a smart gray wool stewardess uniform and covering her long shoulder-length auburn hair was a page-boy wig. She's very big on wigs. Soon she had changed wigs and wore one cut in the short Mia Farrow style. "My hair is long and always a mess, so I'm never without a wig," she explained. As she wouldn't appear in the next scene, she was changing from her warm uniform. Soon, she emerged in tight black trousers that belled at the bottom, and sturdy English boots; wrapped around her thin shoulders was an old-fashioned granny shawl, and she was completely unrecognizable.

But, no matter how she is dressed, Jackie causes tremendous traumas in men, which is obviously the way she got started as a new sex symbol or whatever they call bright young actresses today. One editor I know walks around almost a basket case, muttering, "I've got to get over my crush on that girl." That's the kind of reaction men have to her stunning impact, for that editor is not alone. It's not that she's any exceptional beauty, it's just that old-fashioned animal magnetism.

"I started my career as a model in London," said Jackie. "My father is a doctor and my mother a lawyer and I'd always thought I'd be either one or the other, but instead I began to model — as a lark, actually. I was overweight and every agent that I went to see told me I had to take off lots of poundage. I used to walk around with a sweater tied around my bottom — as if that would hide it."

One photographer, who worked with her in London when she first began modeling, said: "She had too much sexual presence to be a classical model. She had this... wanton thing."

Evidently a few producers noticed that... er, ah... wanton thing. Jackie's role of stewardess Gwen Meighan in "Airport" is the most important of her short career. Her first film was "The Knack" in 1965, followed by a small role in "Cul De Sac." Then, she had a small but outstanding role in "Two for the Road," but she was overshadowed by Audrey Hepburn. When Mia Farrow was unable to co-star with her then husband, Frank Sinatra, director Roman Polanski, who was directing Mia in "Rosemary's Baby," suggested Jackie. He had directed "Cul De Sac." Jackie won the role opposite the famous singer-actor, which started her on the way to the top. Next she co-starred with Steve McQueen in the thriller "Bullitt."

In "Airport" she is supposed to have a romance with the pilot, played by Dean Martin. The romance is complicated, as he is married and Jackie (Gwen) is pregnant.

"'Airport' is a story about current problems facing airports all over the world," said producer Ross Hunter earlier that day. They have crammed just about every problem an airport could undergo during an imaginary eight hours. Outside of stewardess Gwen's romantic involvement with the pilot, there is a dangerous lunatic aboard, Guerrero (Van Heflin), who is carrying a homemade bomb with which to blow himself up for insurance. Aboard the plane are all the average passengers, who are unaware of their danger, and also a little old lady stowaway (Helen Hayes) who is sitting next to Guerrero. As we were going to watch the filming of an explosion, I guess it's not giving the plot away to say that the homemade bomb is a success.

The bomb idea caused a great deal of worry to the studio and the airlines in recreating this touchy problem. They had to prove that the story was not just sensational but that it could really happen and the plane, with a big hole in the fuselage, could be landed safely.

It had been thought until recently that if there was an explosion in a jet the decompression would kill everyone. Most people are unaware that the oxygen masks overhead are for just that reason. Since the book "Airport" hit the best seller list two bombs have gone off in jets, proving the author's point. A jet can land with a hole in it and everyone can survive.

"Passengers have something like 20 seconds to get that oxygen mask on when it comes down," explained director George Seaton. "If you are ever on a plane and you see that mask come down — grab it and don't ask questions. We were shown training films used by the airlines of what happens during decompression. If you don't get oxygen a sense of euphoria overcomes you, something like the sensations of skindivers who go beyond their depth. We saw stewardesses applying lipstick and putting it all over their face, pilots repeated aimless phrases and laughed and a form of intoxica-

Transplanted Tennis King From Queensland Eyes
Second 'Sweep', Awaits Birth of First Child

'Rocket Rod' Laver — Orange County's Grand Slammer

By Bob Martin

LONG BEACH HAD ITS queen of world tennis, Billie Jean Moffitt King, and neighboring Orange County proudly claims the king of the courts, Rod Laver.

Laver, of course, is no native of Orange County — or even of America. Like most of the top male tennis stars of the last two decades, he's as Australian as a wallaby.

But the world champion has been making his home in the Corona del Mar section of Newport Beach for three years, and all the blokes in the county are bloody well happy to call him their own. Great tennis players may be as plentiful in Australia as kangaroos, but in Orange County they're about as scarce as wombats.

(Even in Australia, you don't find a Laver under every eucalyptus tree. He is one of the all-time tennis greats; some say he may be the best player ever to swing a racket.)

It is safe to assume that Laver's attractive wife, the former Mary Benson, is largely responsible for bringing him to Corona del Mar, for that's where she was living when she met Rod. They were married in June 1966.

Also, the Newport Beach Tennis Club

rates an assist, for Laver has represented the club as touring pro since its opening in early 1967.

THE NEXT couple of weeks will be two of the biggest yet in the life of the transplanted Aussie, who was born 31 years ago this month on a cattle ranch in Queensland (there was a tennis court in his family's back yard).

For one thing, he is due to become a father for the first time. And, secondly, he will be striving to become the first man in tennis history to score a second "Grand Slam."

The "Grand Slam" in tennis is the winning of the championships of Australia, France, England (Wimbledon) and the United States in the same year. Laver has won the first three; now he's after the title in the U.S. Open Championships at Forest Hills, N.Y., which begin Wednesday and continue through Sept. 7.

Only two men in the long history of the game have achieved one Slam — California's Don Budge in 1938, about a month after Rod was born, and, 24 years later, Laver in 1962. Like Budge, Rod is a free-kle-faced redhead. But whereas Budge stood 6 feet 1½ inches tall, Laver is only 5 feet 9½. And Rod, of course, is a left-hander.

"Which are you more excited about — the prospect of another Slam or of becoming a father?" I asked Laver at the Newport Beach Tennis Club.

"Why, I'm rather excited about both," the reluctant champion replied. "Can't say I'm more excited about one than the other."

Would he prefer a boy or a girl?

"It doesn't make a bit of difference."

Would he want his child to be a tennis player?

"He can be what he wants to be."

Mrs. Laver says that since the baby is expected near the time of the Forest Hills finals, "It would be nice to name him after the winner, if it's a boy."

Rodney George Jr. may be her name choice, but she is not so sure what her husband will want to call the child.

"We have a pet Yorkshire terrier and Rod named it Drop Shot. Good Lord, what will he call the baby!" she wondered aloud.

THE LAVERS live in a handsome, split-level home just a short drive from the Newport Beach Tennis Club, which is in the Bluffs area east of Upper Newport Bay. From their back yard terrace they have a view of Balboa and the Pacific Ocean.

Mrs. Laver is an art lover and collector, and their home is beautifully furnished.

When staff photographer Curt Johnson and I left the house after a picture-taking session, Curt, who doesn't follow tennis very closely, said to me: "You mean to tell me that a tennis player makes enough money to live like that?"

I explained that Laver, who dropped out of school at 15 to concentrate on tennis, is the world's best and that he has a contract with the National Tennis League guaranteeing him a minimum of $90,000 a year; that he also represents the Newport Beach Tennis Club; that he endorses tennis rackets, shirts, shoes and so forth; and that he and a few of his tennis buddies have an interest in a convention center-hotel (The Homestead) in Brisbane, among other investments.

Curt kindly refrained from commenting, "What a racket!"

Despite his income, it just may be possible that Rod is a bit of a spender.

sible that Laver, like other husbands, has to keep an eye on his wife's spending. After Mrs. Laver showed Johnson and me a grandfather clock she recently had sent over from England, Curt started telling her about a Southland shop with many interesting clocks.

She wanted to know more about the place, but Rod interrupted. "Honey," he said, "don't you think we have enough clocks already?"

After Curt and I had spoken admiringly of an Italian Renaissance painting in the living room, Mary turned to her husband and said: "Yes, when are you going to buy me another one like that, dear?"

Rod feigned a look of displeasure.

In addition to some works of art, the Laver home boasts quite a collection of silver — trophies won by Rod in more than a dozen years of competition in all parts of the world.

Since Laver follows the tournament trail 9 or 10 months a year, the Lavers are, of necessity, apart some of the time. But Mary makes a number of trips with Rod — and she finds time in her travels to visit art galleries and museums. She made the South African and European tour with him in 1966 and 1967, and she has seen him play at Wimbledon the last two years. She preceded him home after this summer's Wimbledon, while he stopped off in Boston to win his fourth straight U.S. professional crown. He then came home for 2½ weeks in late July-early August before setting out on the pro trail again, playing in a few tournaments leading up to the U.S. Open.

WHILE AT HOME, Rod put aside his rackets for a week's rest, then was ready to start practicing at the club. Rath-

A Question of Intelligence

A study of a traumatic military event in American life, and an attempt to assess the implications of that event on American society today will be aired in "Pueblo: A Question of Intelligence," at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Ch. 4.

The purpose of the program will be to examine all factors concerning the seizure of an American ship in neutral waters by an enemy nation, the internment of her crew in that country, and the failure of the military and the intelligence community to foresee what might happen under the existing circumstances—and to act when it did happen.

The special colorcast will examine the actual event; the methods of gathering military infor-

In the Dead of Night

"In the Dead of Night," a suspense drama about a young woman who inherits a haunted house, will be telecast at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 7.

"In the Dead of Night" is the story of a young secretary who inherits a mansion but can't sell it because it's supposed to be haunted. She hires a ghost catcher to de-spook the place.

Stars of the drama are Kerwin Mathews as Jonathan Fletcher, the ghost-hunter; Marj Dusay as Angela Marten, the secretary; Cal Bellini as Sajeed Bau, Fletcher's assistant; Thayer David as the strange, brawny er than do road work (unless he has been inactive for a few months) or exercises. Rod trains by practicing. "I enjoy practicing, and find that this is the best way for me to keep in shape," he says.

Laver tries to catch up on his fan mail when he's home. According to Mary, he likes to receive fan letters and tries to reply to as many as he can.

Asked if he likes to work in the yard, Rod displayed a look that seemed to say: "Does a chap like to get beat in an important match?"

A stranger seeing the Lavers, and not recognizing Rod, might get the idea that Mary is more sports-minded than he. For Rod, despite years of playing tennis in the sun, doesn't have much of a tan, whereas Mary sports as attractive a tan as you'll ever see at a beach.

She had played little tennis before she met him, and didn't know a great deal about it, but since their marriage she has become a regular on the courts at the club. "And I've played more this year — since I've been pregnant — than ever," she says.

Does she ever play mixed doubles with Rod?

"Oh, yes, we play together sometimes — but I just try to get out of the way and let him take the shots."

Mary recalls that she met Rod at the Jack Kramer Club in Rolling Hills Estates, but says she had gone there for a swimming exhibition, not tennis.

For relaxation and a change of pace, Rod likes to play golf occasionally, and he can shoot in the high 70s (he swings right-handed). Mary also plays golf.

There's one sport, though, that Rod leaves to his wife. She's an avid skier, but he "can't take the risk of getting hurt," she points out.

Mrs. Laver was born in Illinois and grew up there, then her family moved to Orange County, where she attended Orange Coast College and Santa Ana College. She has a teen-age son and a teen-age daughter by a previous marriage.

I ASKED MRS. LAVER about the personality of the world champion, who always has appeared somewhat shy to me.

"On an original meeting, he is reserved," she said. "But he warms up quickly. After he gets to know people, he's quite talkative.

"He's the kind of person who likes to be doing something all the time — he doesn't like to just sit around. When he's home, we lead quite a social life. We both love music and dancing. And he likes to be around people."

A couple of years ago, Laver got a pal from Brisbane, Jimmy Shepherd, to take the job as teaching pro at the Newport Beach Tennis Club. Shepherd, slightly younger than Rod, is a fine player who never quite reached the international star level.

I put the question, "Is Rod shy?" to Shepherd one day at the club.

"You might say that," said Jimmy, who quickly added: "Until he's had a couple of these." And he hoisted a mug of Australian beer that the club bar stocks.

Like most Australian tennis players,

Just to make a pretty picture, the Lavers placed a few of his numerous trophies on a coffee table in their family room.

LAVER, KING OF THE COURTS

and some non-Australians as well, Rod likes nothing better than downing a few beers after a hard day, or hard night, on the court.

"Rod's no snob," Shepherd added. "He's regular. Why, when he came back to Australia after winning the Grand Slam he hadn't changed a bit."

Another good friend of Laver's is fellow Aussie star Roy Emerson, himself a two-time Wimbledon amateur champion. Emerson took up residence with his Australian wife and family near the Lavers after he turned pro with the National Tennis League early last year. Rod and Roy play together at the club whenever they're both home.

Says Emme of Rod: "He's a glorious man. There's no one I respect more."

On the court, Laver is well behaved. He doesn't throw temper tantrums, and he's a good sport in victory or defeat. Unlike Pancho Gonzales, he doesn't like to offer alibis if he loses. And, although he may seem a little ill at ease when being interviewed by sports writers, either in victory or in defeat, he will graciously field their questions in the dressing room after a match. Early coaching by Australian Davis Cup captain Harry Hopman on not talking to the press may be responsible for his "on guard" nature around newsmen, but he has become more communicative in recent years than he used to be.

ROD SEEMS TO BE modest, but he does not affect a false modesty. He is perfectly aware that, on the basis of the record, he and only he can be considered the No. 1 player in the world at this time, and, if asked, will admit that being on top gives him "much satisfaction." "I'm No. 1 and it's up to me to battle to stay there," he says.

Any suggestion that another player is better than he is might bring a retort. At the "Welcome Home, Rod" party given by the Newport Beach Tennis Club on his return from his fourth Wimbledon triumph last month, one newsman asked if Aussie

Tony Roche, another left-hander, gives Rod more trouble than any other player. Laver, probably figuring that the newsman had in mind the fact that Roche holds an edge in head-to-head duels this year, pointed out that Tony hadn't advanced far enough to get to play him in the big tournaments later in the year.

And when someone brought up the name of Arthur Ashe, who won the first U.S. Open a year ago, Rod commented: "He hasn't won much since then, has he?"

Laver also will tell you that competition is tougher now than it ever was in the past — that there is more pressure on the good players today. "The players were not playing for money in earlier days," he points out. "Also, you have to consider that, with air travel, we are playing in a lot more tournaments than the players used to play in."

Like everyone else in tennis, Laver rates Wimbledon (generally considered the world championship) as "the biggest, most important tournament of all." And, since Wimbledon became an open tournament — a meet in which pros as well as amateurs compete — for the first time last year, Laver understandably rates the last two Wimbledon as the toughest ones of all. Inasmuch as he won them both, he is the only undisputed world champion since tennis first began having pro stars.

Laver also won the last two Wimbledon as he played in as an amateur — in 1961 and 1962 — and there's no telling how many more he might have won had he been eligible from 1963 through 1967. This year he became the first man since 1913 to win more than three Wimbledon singles titles.

Asked whom he considered the best of the players he has known, Laver replied: "Hoad for one match, and Gonzales and Rosewall over-all. Kramer was before my time."

Lew Hoad, he says, was his idol as a youngster.

Youngsters are given tips by Laver and Aussie Mal Anderson at a clinic. Laver is active in boosting junior tennis, especially in Orange County.

FOR ONE WHO REIGNED as king of the amateurs, then as king of the pros, and now as king of all tennis, Laver presents a strange appearance when he walks on the court for a tournament match. The shy, slightly bowlegged, redhead looks almost apologetic, as though he doesn't belong on the same court with his rival. (Maybe I'm wrong; maybe he's embarrassed by what he knows is going to happen to the other bloke.)

Once the play starts, though, there is nothing backward about Laver's game. He is not a defensive type of player, content merely to keep the ball in play until his foe makes an error. No, Rod is always on the offensive, always going for winners. The Aussie southpaw is more like a Tasmanian devil than a gentle koala. He hits the most sensational ground strokes in the game, and he's said to have the most effective serve in history for anyone under 5 feet 10. His game, rather than his personality on the court, makes the poker-faced Laver a "colorful" performer.

Rod carries the nickname "The Rocket" or "Rocket Rod," and it seems most appropriate for the champion of the Space Age, with his high-powered game. But, as a matter of fact, the nickname got started when Hopman sarcastically said, "Laver, you're a regular rocket," when he thought Rod wasn't displaying enough enthusiasm in a workout a number of years ago.

Laver's great forehand and backhand ground strokes are not orthodox, for he flicks his wrist in hitting the ball. Like right-hander Hoad, his early idol, Laver is what is known as a "wristy player," which most tennis teachers advise their pupils not to become. With his strong left wrist — the 150-pound Laver's left wrist is bigger than Floyd Patterson's and his left forearm equals the size of Rocky Marciano's — he is able to hit a greater variety of shots of different spins than any other person in tennis. Also, he can reset his wrist in midstroke, and, after waiting until his opponent has committed himself, can surprise him with the shot that's least expected.

An early coach named Charlie Hollis taught Rod to put topspin on his shots, always insisting, "Hit over the ball."

SAYS KEN ROSEWALL: "Potentially, Rod has twice as many shots as I do. I'm an orthodox player. But his iron-clad wrist enables him to hit a topspin backhand like nobody else. And his running forehand is tops. He has a gift of coordination and timing, the ability to make contact on the run."

A few years ago at a pro tournament in Los Angeles, I was sitting with Ashe, then a UCLA star, watching Laver play. "That guy makes shots no one else can make," Ashe commented. "I feel that I can make all the shots the other pros can make — maybe not as consistently yet — but Laver is something else again."

This, of course, was a few years ago, and now Ashe figures to be one of Laver's toughest roadblocks in his path toward an unprecedented second "Grand Slam." Tennis fans throughout the world will follow Laver's progress at Forest Hills the next two weeks, but, win or lose in the U.S. Open, Rocket Rod still will be the world champion — and he expects to play tournament tennis for at least another four or five years.

Does he plan to make his home permanently in America? I put this question to Rod at his home.

He thought for a moment, then motioned toward the house as he replied: "Well, this looks pretty permanent, wouldn't you say?"

Corona del Mar and Orange County will be happy to have Laver stay.

And, who knows, maybe in another 20 years there'll be a new champion named Laver in the county.

The Joyful Jeeps

THE SAND DUNE has a 40-degrees slope. At its crest is the hot, blue Imperial Valley sky. At the base of the dune, a vehicle — a Jeep and yet not a Jeep — revs its engine and bounces up the powdery side of the dune, shooting off the crest with surprising speed.

At the wheel is 16-year-old Gene Shook, a Wilson High School junior who teams with his brother Keith, 14, to rebuild and modify Jeeps into special off-the-road vehicles.

Gene's own rig — formerly a two-wheel drive Jeep Dispatcher used by a government agency — was converted in four months into four-wheel drive custom Jeep with a V-8 engine, a Borg-Warner four-speed transmission, bucket seats and new paint. Gene and his brother, working at their father's shop, have rebuilt and sold other rigs, but for Gene the most fun is in the driving. His views:

—The back country — whether accessible like Pismo Beach, or hard to reach — is the best place to go jeeping. Competition is not the main thing, although there are a lot of meets and races. The main thing is to have a good time, to be with friends away from city life for awhile. My club — the Jeeping Jeeps — goes out on runs about twice a month.

—Our club has been organized a lot in the past few years. I went out on my first trail run when I was under six months old, so jeeping seems like a normal thing to do. Each month, a new trail boss is appointed by the club president. The boss's job is to set up a meet in the back country and lead the club there and back.

—Like in anything, rules and safety are there for good reason. The greatest danger in riding the dunes is flipping over. About the only way to flip end-over-end is to apply the brakes while all four wheels are off the ground. Regular street tires in sand — instead of wide tires — can cause you to flip sideways. In any case, a jeeper should never be alone. Another jeeper can keep his eye on you and give help if you get into trouble.

—You run the chance of burying up your equipment. Once when sand got into my brakes and made me swerve, I almost flipped off a dune cliff. I might have escaped, but the jeep would have been totaled.

—Probably the most fun is taking a several day run down to the Imperial Valley dunes which stretch along for 12 miles to the Mexican border. We take house trailers and stay a few days running the bowls, or depressions between dunes.

—One big problem that's becoming bigger is the influence of car company-sponsored drivers who enter meets. It used to be that a sand dune meet or other race would attract mostly guys who built their own rigs and who needed the prize money. But now, big auto companies like Ford spend a lot of money souping up a special rig just so they can claim victory in their advertisements. Even when these company-sponsored drivers are put into another class, they find ways to get around it.

—Jeep was the first four-wheel drive vehicle of its type, and the name, "Jeep," has become this type of vehicle. Other companies haven't made much impact on the market, but competition has helped jeep more than hurt it.

—Generally, we have the run of the back country. Government officials and private people are friendly, even though a new law has closed fire breaks in mountain areas to back country drivers. Sometimes, conservation groups try to close our trip areas, but I think the 8,000 or so people who turn up for a meet shows jeeping's popularity. —Steve Stowe.

Steak Kabob

By Mildred Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

WHO'S IN THE MOOD FOR A barbecue picnic menu, festive enough for important guests, yet easy enough for a new bride to prepare? Without breaking the budget?

Try these ideas and shine as summer's most inventive hostess! For the main dish, have Picnic Pepper Steak Kabobs, using relatively inexpensive flank steak laced on skewers with chunks of crunchy green peppers. Let guests grill their own — it takes just minutes.

With it, serve a high and handsome potato salad mold. The work-saving secret is to prepare it with the ready-made potato salad available today in vacuum packed cans. You can add your own touches such as slices of olives, radishes or slivers of ham if desired. For dessert, provide a variety of ice cream and let folks help themselves to old-fashioned double-dip cones.

Modern vacuum packing methods have made it possible to can potato salad so that it comes to you safer and fresher than that available in refrigerated cartons. The salad is blended with creamy mayonnaise, celery, peppers, and seasonings. It can be kept on your pantry shelf, as no refrigeration is needed until after the can is opened.

PICNIC PEPPER STEAK KABOBS

Flank steak, approx. 2 lbs.
3 large green peppers

1/2 cup salad oil
2 cloves garlic, crushed
Juice of 1/2 lemon
1/4 cup red wine (or wine vinegar)
1/2 teas. rosemary, crushed

Cut flank steak across grain of meat into strips 1/4-inch wide and as long as the width of the steak. Immerse green peppers in boiling water and boil about 5 minutes. When cool, remove stem and seeds from peppers and cut in 1-inch squares. Blend remaining ingredients in large flat pan. Make "camel humps" of the steak strips and lace on skewers alternating meat and green pepper squares. Marinate 1 or 2 hours in the oil mixture. Grill till meat is desired doneness, over hot coals. 8 servings.

MOLDED POTATO SALAD

2 cans vacuum packed potato salad (15-oz. size)
1/2 cup of any of these to add your own "touch":

Sliced olives, minced ham, parsley, pickles, pimiento, sliced radishes, slivers of frankfurters, capers or chopped nuts

Blend potato salad with any of above if desired. Pack lightly in 1 quart round mold or bowl. Chill several hours. To unmold, run knife around edge and immerse briefly in warm water to edge of mold. Invert on platter, if necessary, shape with spatula and garnish as desired. 8 servings.

Recipe of the Week

MRS. E. HARLOW, 474 E. Plymouth St., Long Beach, is this week's winner of the $5 prize.

FRUIT MEAL IN A MELON

2 cantaloupes
2 cups fresh pineapple, bite size
1 cup seedless grapes
1 orange
1/2 cup honey
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 cup flaked coconut
1/4 cup dark rum
1 cup fresh berries of your choice
Sour cream or sherbet

Cut cantaloupes into halves and remove seeds. With melon ball cutter, cut out one row of balls around the edge of cavity. Mix these balls with pineapple and grapes. Grate orange rind over fruits.

Ream orange juice and add to honey, lemon juice, coconut and rum. Mix with above fruits and chill.

Set cantaloupe halves on frosty mint-decorated plates. Add berries to fruits and heap into cantaloupe. For salad, top with sour cream — for dessert use whipped cream or sherbet. Serves 4.

SPECIAL

MISS BLACK America (11), 7 p.m.—Hal Jackson is emcee at Madison Square Garden as finalists from 42 states compete in the second annual beauty pageant, featuring entertainment by Stevie Wonder, Curtis Mayfield and the Fabulous Impressions, the James Cleveland Singers and Novella Nelson. Taped last Friday, 90-min. telecast features Oakland's La Verne Williams as Miss Black California.

IN THE DEAD OF Night (7), 8:30 p.m.—Filling in this hour until the fall debut of ABC's "Movie (for TV) of the Week," a series of original dramas offers unsold pilots and first-run films. Tonight it's a Gothic suspense story of a young woman who can't find a buyer for the "haunted" house she inherited — so hires a ghost-hunter to help her solve the mystery.

COME ON, CARRI! Come On! (2), 10 p.m.—A new approach to promoting physical fitness among mentally-retarded children is revealed by Cleto Roberts when "KNXT Reports" looks at the Western Special Olympics for retarded youth at the L.A. Coliseum. Featuring 900 youngsters from six western states, the meet is seen through the eyes of 9-year-old Carri of Long Beach, and through interviews with her mother and two doctors.

Not Toys—Playtools!

By Ellen Krec

Interior
BOUTIQUE

TO SOME he is Frank Armbruster, president and founder of Products of the Behavioral Sciences, Inc. To me he is the Pied Piper of the toy world.

The carpeted floor of the Ambassador Hotel and a table top in the dim light of the Brown Derby were the playground for an adult learning to use school tools.

"Learning must be fun," says Armbruster. "I'm a perfect example of no-fun school... a junior college drop-out."

But the drop-out dropped into self-taught engineering which brought him a career in the aircraft industry which in turn was a step away from total involvement in teaching machines.

"Instant Insanity" was his first and best known toy-to-go-mad-with, produced by Parker Brothers.

Sound psychological principles also were introduced into the swinging booming playtool business in Palo Alto, where a six-hour day is enforced.

"Help Stamp Out Baffery Toys," is the firm's motto, and it appears on all the packages. A sincere effort to return children to participating in the games instead of spectating has created a series of high-IQ toys.

At first appearance the toys seem to be humorous. Consider the beautifully bound mind bower, "The Blank Book," with its pristine pages waiting for the creative writer to darken them with words. With more than 15,000 of these printless books on the market, the results have removed it from the non-book market to the status of your first edition.

Armbruster designed his first teaching machine in 1957 at UCLA where the pinball-type of learning was successful enough to delight a non-achiever replica of himself.

Based on the psychology of B. F. Skinner, Armbruster's toys depend on presentation of material, not the mechanism, and no threat of punishment for failure.

Playtools is the coined expression for the learning equipment... never-called educational toys, since that casts a pall over playtime.

"Children's play also is their work, and they must have the proper tools," says Armbruster.

Personal learning problems are the foundation for many of the "tools."

The blank book resulted from too many years of the sanctuary book or the "never." Never write in a book, never turn down a page in a book... and always use book marks.

"Bali Buttons" is a sneaky approach to higher math, but the children who manage to win the game through the elimination process won't discover it until matrix algebra comes up.

The play purpose of the game is to separate four families of four persons each to remove the possibility of total destruction. It isn't easy for the well-over-four set!

Clear plastic notched circles are called "Deelie

Learning IS fun when you use playtools by Products of the Behavioral Sciences, Inc.

Bobbers" and are bagged with no instructions. The child's imagination is allowed to expand into unbounded creativity.

"The toy industry," says Armbruster, "has a responsibility to the public NOT to do the work for children."

Dr. Paul R. Hanna, professor emeritus at Stanford graduate school of education, introduced "Phoneme-Grapheme" which converts sounds into pictograms, then the alphabet which results in talking and spelling.

Hexagonal picture blocks

were the result of this particular teaching method and can be used to teach 200 words.

The toy designer recalls his days of toymaking from the garbage cans of Los Angeles, when his creations contributed to his firm belief in participation.

Prescriptive toys are the future of the playtool field with a toy or game for every child at each with any problem.

The next time you visit a youngster at school and notice the abundance of toys remember they are not for play but work!

A Gentle Squeeze

CAMERA MOTION is one of the most common causes of poor pictures, and one of the easiest to prevent. If everything is blurred in a snapshot, the reason usually is that the camera was unsteady when the shutter was tripped. (Sometimes, of course, a photographer deliberately blurs motion, but that is another subject.)

Often, it's the trigger finger that caused the problem. Punching the shutter release with a sudden jerk may save a second or two, but it's also guaranteed to make the camera wiggle at the crucial moment. Squeeze it gently and evenly in the manner taught in Lesson No. 1 on the rifle range. A camera will stay on target no better than a gun when the trigger is jerked.

Gripping the camera tightly, strange as it may seem, also adds to the problem. The harder you squeeze, the tenser your muscles will be, increasing the likelihood of a tremor. Hold the camera just firmly enough for safety to achieve maximum steadiness.

It's best to prop your elbows or, ideally, the camera itself on a firm support. If this is not available and you must shoot free-hand, jam your elbows against your ribs and hold your breath as you squeeze the trigger to keep the lens firmly on target.

The exposure time of even the simplest modern camera with no shutter adjustment can be at least doubled by the insertion of a used flashcube. This extends the range of light conditions under which good pictures can be made without flash, but it also increases the danger of getting blurred pictures because of camera wiggle as the lens will be open at least twice as long as normal. With more sophisticated equipment adjustable to extremely slow shutter speeds, the problem is multiplied.

The best preventive measure, obviously, is to use a firm support — a flat surface on which the camera can rest solidly is best — such as a table, a desk, a piano stool, or a buffet. Even outdoors one is often available. A brick wall or a picnic table will serve nicely.

Almost as good is a support that is supplemented by some manual assistance, such as a fence post or rail, a car fender or the back of a camp chair. With normal care, exposures of one or even two seconds can be made from such a base without moving the camera.

An excellent substitute for the cumbersome stand and tripod is a "stirrappod," a steadying device you can slip into your pocket and that can be made inexpensively in a few minutes.

It's made from a length of non-stretch cord, such as plastic clothes line or picture wire, and a screw that fits into the camera's tripod socket, available at most photo stores. One end of the cord is attached to the screw. The other is made into a loop into which the photographer can slip his foot. The cord should be just long enough to be taut when the foot is in the "stirrappod" and the camera is at operating level. Firm upward pressure on the camera will steady it to the point where fairly long exposures are feasible.

A wall, a door jamb, a post, a tree or any other solid vertical object also can be a useful brace for the photographer. If possible, rest the camera itself against the surface, with just enough horizontal pressure to keep it from slipping. If not, lean an arm — preferably the left one because the "trigger finger" is on the right — firmly against the wall as you shoot.

Even without such aids, motion-free pictures requiring long exposure can be made with a hand-held camera if the snapshooter makes the best of his body.

It is immaterial whether the camera is held horizontally or vertically.

To ruin a picture with camera movement is tragic with a subject like this.

ment can put essential elements clear out of the picture or cause an objectionable tilt. Composition is an essential element of good pictures — preserve it by using the best method available to steady the camera.

WORKSHOP

For Outdoor Gourmets, a Table and Cart

By Steve Ellingson

Entertaining made easy.

THERE'S a certain care-free comfort about outdoor living that appeals to everyone. No matter whether you call it a patio, terrace, garden or outdoor living room this is one area that's always synonymous with contentment and pleasure. The mere fact that you are outdoors under the sun or stars and near growing things makes troubles fall away and cares lessen.

Then too, outdoor dinner parties have become fashionable. With a little equipment, it's possible to bring indoor grace and variety to the great outdoors. Entertaining outdoors is easy because it's casual, comfortable and carefree. Furthermore, it lessens Mother's work and delights the youngsters as well as adults.

To get the most out of your open air dining room it helps to have some strong yet good looking furniture. The table and benches shown here with actress Jo Anne Loren will withstand all kinds of weather and hard use and will last a lifetime. It has a rugged appearance just as all outdoor furniture should have. The serving cart saves countless trips back-and-forth to the kitchen. The cart may be used for serving cool drinks as well as food. Its removable top doubles as a serving tray and the enclosed compartment holds all sorts of pots and pans as well as dinnerware.

Both the table and cart are easily built when you use the full-size pattern. Even if you are an amateur, you can undertake these projects with success. You need only trace the parts on wood, then saw them out and put them together. Inexpensive, too, when you do-it-yourself.

To obtain the full-size table and benches pattern number 312 for $1 (add 25c per pattern for airmail delivery), and the serving cart pattern number 204 for $1, send currency, check or money order to:

Poet as Correspondent

SELECTED LETTERS OF E. E. CUMMINGS.
Edited by F. W. Dupee and George Stade. Harcourt, Brace and World, $8.95.
When he was 5, the future poet wrote his grandmother (on Nov. 27, 1899):

I AM SORRY
DEAR NANA
BUT I WILL BE A GOOD BOY

He was already, although unconscious of it, somewhat of a poet, but, be it noted, instead of the famous lower casing, young Estlin (for that was his name) Cummings used only capitals.

Less than a year later, writing his mother, he had worked toward a mixed style:
MOTHER DEAR I-AM VERY SORRY YOU
haVe The Back Ache MoTher Dear. I-Love LOVE
YoU VERY MUCH.

One of the best books to come out of World War I was Cummings' "The Enormous Room," in which he wrote of his experiences on ambulance duty. Cummings' 1917 letters to his mother and father vividly recount those experiences, as well as his unjustified imprisonment by the French.

Cummings, in the 1920s-1930s, was an inveterate traveler, and his journeys in Spain, Italy, France, Tunisia, Greece and the Soviet Union brought forth some of his most interesting letters.

Cummings wrote one of the most perceptive and honest books on the USSR ("Eimi") and was never to be a stooge of the Communists. He was never to be anybody's stonage.

He writes his mother of a 1920 May Day in New York:

"Cops. Bulls. Stool Pigeons. Fixers, etc. etc., lined 5th Avenue in preparation for the 'Vast Red Plot' fostered for public consumption by that charming person and protégé of Wilson Mr. Palmer (Wilson's attorney general, notoriously high-handed with liberals and radicals). Not only that—the government of this great city had a parade of all patriots—taxi drivers, tough guys, gangs, parochial school boys, down the Avenue to prevent the granting of a parade-permit to any 'Reds' who might want to march up it."

For two score years Cummings lived at 4 Patchin Place, New York, and from there went forth letters to such friends as Ezra Pound, John Peale Bishop, Dos Passos, William Carlos Williams, Archibald Mac Leish, Allen Tate, letters with all the idiosyncracies of his poetry, penetrating and witty observations on life, literature, and politics.

And Try Not to Miss...

THE SAVAGE SHIP. By Millen Brand. Crown, $6.95.

The author of the widely acclaimed novel "The Outward Room" writes in "The Savage Ship" about a great psychoanalyst, Dr. John Marks, and three critical years in his career. He cures Jimmy Cady, dying of catatonic excitement, and wages a life and death struggle with the schizophrenia of the mute Marla.

SARAH'S COTTAGE. By D. E. Stevenson. Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $5.95.

Those who enjoyed "Sarah Morris Remembers" will be glad to know of its sequel, "Sarah's Cottage," in which Sarah and her new husband are confronted with the problems and joys of raising the unwanted young daughter of Sarah's rich sister. The story is set in the Scottish highlands.

THE SINGLE GIRL'S GUIDE TO LIVING IN THE CITY. By Gwen Cummings. Association Press, $4.95.

Amusingly but frankly, Gwen Cummings covers all the challenges that beset today's single girl—on the job, at home, with a roommate, money, safety, appearance, personality, budget, wardrobe, etc.

Death Merchants

THE WAR BUSINESS. By George Thayer. Simon and Schuster, $6.95.

This is a startling revelation on the cold-blooded, widespread international trade in war materials, now running to some $5 billion a year.

Thayer has detailed researched findings of politics, financing, behind the scenes secrets and personalities of the business of death and destruction. He has raised questions that have caused much comment from on high. On the jacket, Sen. William Fulbright writes: "I would hope that... book receives widespread attention. The international traffic in arms, and the consequences... are obscure to the public. I trust that... the book will acquaint the public with one of the most serious of all international problems."

The book raises a number of important questions, the most important of which concerns the extent to which the American public has the right to be informed about the manner in which its government provides other countries with massive quantities of modern weapons, from rifles to missiles and jet fighters.

In the past 21 years, the United States has pumped $50 billion worth of arms into the world market. Communist countries have shipped approximately $7 billion in arms since 1955.

The sheer madness of this practice was prominently in evidence in the Israeli-Arab war when both sides were using identical arms... mostly made in U.S.A. — Bill Shelton.

Hammett Revival

DASHIELL HAMMETT: A Casebook. By William F. Nolan. McNally and Lofton, $6.95.

Reviewed by Prof. David Peck, English Department, California State College at Long Beach.

Dashiell Hammett was one of the most influential writers of the past half century. Creator of Nick Charles ("The Thin Man"), Sam Spade ("The Maltese Falcon"), and the "Fat Man" radio series, Hammett pioneered the "hard-boiled" school of realistic fiction in the Twenties and Thirties and influenced American writers as diverse as Hemingway and Mickey Spillane.

Nolan's casebook is the first full-length study in what promises to be a major revival of interest in Hammett, and as a sketchy introduction to the writer it is adequate. (It is most valuable for its 50-page checklist of Hammett's work in radio and film scripts, magazine fiction and novels—the first complete Hammett bibliography of this kind.) But more serious fans of Hammett should wait for the memoirs of Lillian Hellman, scheduled for publication later this year.

Companion to Hammett for 25 years (he died in 1961) and executor of his estate, Miss Hellman possesses a number of unpublished Hammett papers and manuscripts. This material, coupled with her autobiography, will serve to fill out our knowledge of this neglected pioneer in American fiction.

Patriot's Youth

PATRICK HENRY: Patriot in the Making. By Robert Douthat Meade. Lippincott, $10.

Patrick Henry was more than a slogan—"Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death." As orator, he was an early-day Winston Churchill whose gifts made men brave in the face of almost insuperable difficulties. He was five times Virginia's governor. He was one of the men Washington deemed indispensable.

In "Patrick Henry: Patriot in the Making," we travel with historian Robert Douthat Meade on the road to Henry's greatness, from boyhood and youth, to Henry at the First Continental Congress in 1774.

We meet him as husband and father, as lawyer, as a leader of the restless Colonials as he introduces the Stamp Act resolutions.

In this, and a second volume, "Patrick Henry: Practical Revolutionary," legend is winnowed from fact. — N.H.

You Remember— What's 'is Name—

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

No one in the cutthroat world of television seems to care what happens to stars or would-be stars of cancelled shows, some of whom have disappeared from sight.

For instance, what ever happened to Burt Ward who played Robin in the "Batman" series?

What of Steve Strimpel who was Stanley Steamish of "Mr. Terrific?"

Then there was what's-his-name, Jack Sheldon, of "Run, Buddy, Run."

And what do you hear of Cara Williams who had her own show as recently as 1964?

TELEVISION Flip-flops every season sends many a familiar face — even if the name doesn't strike a memorable note — into living room limbo.

Some survive as guest artists, movie actors or in the theater — the likes of Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, CARA ???

Her Own Show in '64

Buddy Hackett and Bing Crosby.

Others jump nimbly from one series to another: Dennis Weaver, Tony Franciosa, Chuck Connors, Raymond Burr, Efrem Zimbalist, Eve Arden, and Gene Barry.

JACK ???

"Run, Buddy, Run"

BUT an amazingly high number of television personalities are drenched with hoopla, given their own shows, and then disappear as if through a trap door. Networks, producers, studios and the public apparently have little compassion for the rejected.

Remember the series "Wendy and Me?" Who were the stars?

Have you seen much of Shirley Booth since "Hazel" left the air?

Patty Duke doesn't dominate the television sections of newspapers now that her series is fading in memory.

There was once a show, only four years ago, titled "Wackiest Ship in The Army." But how many viewers remember the cast — or the show.

Does the name Dwane Hickman strike a spark? It will if you can recall "Dobie Gillis." He was the clean-cut kid in the title role.

TIME WAS when every-

AS STANLEY BEAMISH... In 'Mr. Terrific'

one rushed home to watch Tennessee Ernie Ford, George Gobel and (sob) Robert Montgomery presiding over his own dramatic anthology hour.

Robert Cummings was a television standard for years. What has gone amiss with his magic?

There are others: Ozzie Nelson, Pat Carroll, Gale Storm, Perry Como, Loretta Young, Garry Moore and Durwood Kirby, Charles Farrell, Allen

Funt. You used to love them all, but you switched the dial too often on them.

However, viewers aren't all bad. They still adore Lassie and Ed Sullivan, both of whom must be loveable indeed!

'Drownproofing' Saves Persons in 'Drink'

By Ben Zinser

See Also: Medicine, Medical Science, Editor

A QUICK RUNDOWN on a water-survival technique known as "drownproofing" is now available free.

The information is contained on a wallet card entitled "Safety Tips In, On, and Around the Water."

Dr. Richard E. Marland of the U.S. Public Health Service's injury control program, says this about the technique:

"Drownproofing uses simple aquatic skills to keep a person afloat—even in rough water—for a long period with a minimum expenditure of effort and energy.

"The technique enables a person to take advantage of his best floating position so that, with simple movements of arms and legs, he can breathe in an up-and-down bobbing action."

However, the skill needs to be taught by a trained person. Even so, the wallet card will be of benefit in the training period.

The card is offered free in quantities of up to 100, according to a report in Clinical Pediatrics, a medical journal. Write: Public Inquiries, National Center for Urban and Industrial Health, 222 East Central Parkway, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202.

AN ONLY CHILD is more prone to mental ills than is a youngster with brothers and sisters, according to a study of military recruits.

The study shows that psychiatric referrals at a Coast Guard training station included almost twice as many in the only child category as found among the recruit population.

Dr. Zebulon Taintor, a Buffalo, N. Y., psychiatrist, reports that an only child is more likely to be given a medical discharge from the service.

The findings are based on a study of psychiatric referrals at the Coast Guard Training Center, Cape May, N. J.

THE AMERICAN DENTAL Association's Council on Dental Materials and Devices has classified the Water Pik, an irrigating device for the mouth, as "acceptable." It calls the instrument effective aid to the toothbrush in a program of good oral hygiene.

A RELATIONSHIP among weather, high altitude and the ailment croup is described by a doctor who resides at an elevation of 7,500 feet.

Dr. Freeman F. Fowler of Idaho Springs, Colo., says that croup, a disorder marked by difficult breathing, is more likely to occur when the barometer is low (around 29.50) and when it is raining or snowing.

Most patients, he says, experience sudden onset about 2 to 4 a.m.

The disorder can be severe. Dr. Fowler gives treatment details in the Journal of the American Medical Association (Vol. 208, No. 10, Page 1907).

A DOCTOR SAYS there's solid evidence that emotional factors play a causative role in the development of angina pectoris, a painful heart condition.

Dr. Kurt Wolff, associate professor of psychiatry at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, says several studies show that angina patients may have intense repressed hatred and strong guilt feelings.

Often there is an early competitive relationship with a much feared and envied parent, especially the father. This develops into a situation in which the patient drives himself compulsively. Even success produces no sense of gratification or relief from tension.

The report is in Geriatric Times, a medical newspaper.

SAYS A PSYCHIATRIST: "Patients know when they are dying. We don't know how they know, but they know."

Dr. Elizabeth Ross, assistant director of the psychiatric service at University of Chicago medical school, says that in view of this, well-meant words of false cheer ring hollow.

Evasive answers only irritate a person aware of the little time left to settle his affairs, she says. False reassurance is "phony," she adds.

The dying patient most resents what is known as the "conspiracy of silence." This begins when nurses avoid conversations, visitors sit around with nothing to say and physician visits become merely perfunctory. The patient experiences a sense of loneliness, rejection and abandonment.

A NEW STUDY shows why it's so difficult to arrive at a definition of what is obscene and what is not. Researchers at St. Louis University School of Medicine found that factors of education, occupation and income have a significant bearing on a person's judgment of what is obscene.

The report is in the American Journal of Psychiatry.

Pegboard Windows.

PET PARADE

SOMETIMES there is a small bare window in the house which the housewife would like to see transformed into something more attractive. Or it may be that there is a clubroom or one in a religious place of meeting which needs to be made more interesting to provide a quiet mood of restfulness.

You can use a square of pegboard to make an effective stained glass window. Buy a piece of the white pegboard cut the right size to cover your window, and affix it in place.

Such a board has ready-made holes, and into them put little pieces of glass or plastic such as are used in the making of the currently popular mosaic pictures.

Or if you do not want the small pieces of the pegboard, use a knife and cut larger squares or triangles in the pegboard, and either fill these larger shapes with assorted colors or leave them empty as places for the light to shine through in its own unfiltered state.

If you make such larger cut out spaces, at the edges use glue and put odd pieces of bright colored glass around the shape. This allows the light to filter through and reflect in interesting patterns.

As the clear light comes into the room through the pegboard stained glass window it will appear as a rainbow, reflecting against the colored wall of the room. The shades and shapes will vary as the light changes during the day.

This simple technique can transform the plain and possibly cracked glass window into something of real beauty. Watching the light change has its therapeutic value if there are invalids in the home, or the aged to whom it recalls the memory of lovely large windows seen in travel.

Early homes in America had such stained glass windows, and many which are now being removed from homes dismantled because of encroaching freeway growth are highly prized as collector items.

If such regular stained glass seems not in order, because of price or the need to move soon to another location, the making of a pegboard stained glass window can be a happy family project, and result in beauty at comparatively small cost to the budget.

Happy, Busy Bird Dogs

AT ONE TIME, almost all dogs were actively employed in some kind of work, and they were happier for it. Today, in our country, not a great many dogs do more than bid for points at dog shows, prove their ability to obey at obedience trials (and most enjoy this), or loiter around the house as companions.

For example, one does not see the Afghan Hound galloping, long tresses flying, after deer, or guarding flock and herds in the fields even though he was designed for such duties in his native home. Nor are Keeshonds riding barges and serving as "radar" in the fogs of U.S. waterways, although this was their original purpose in Holland. And who has heard of a St. Bernard in this country recently having his tranquil life interrupted to carry a cask of brandy through a blizzard, or of a Dachshund having to leave home base to dig up a badger?

In fact, only a handful of breeds have a trade. Some sheepdogs of various kinds keep lonely vigil with their masters. German Shepherd Dogs are guiding the blind, sniffing out 'Pot,' stopping thieves including those who try to go off with whole truckloads of cattle, and working with policemen in various cities. Golden Retriever and Labrador Retrievers are also guiding the blind, and now and then a Doberman Pinscher or Alaskan Malamute serves the same purpose. Occasionally we hear of a Rottweiler pulling youngsters in carts or assisting police. There is still some use for sled dogs, but mostly in races, for snowmobiles are beginning to take their place even with Eskimo!

Red Water Rex, Pointer, won Purina's Top Field Trial Bird Dog in the U.S. award for 1968-1969 season. Trainer is D. H. Eaton.

Life is often active for the sporting breeds such as Pointers, Setters, Retrievers, Spaniels, and some Hounds. There are several hundred licensed field trials every year in our country. Most are specialized, with each breed put to its basic use. For example, Setters and Pointers find hidden game, and point it out. Spaniels work closer to their handlers, their purpose being to flush birds. Retrievers bring back fallen birds even from icy water. Beagles (hounds) are eager beavers on rabbit.

Most trainers start a young dog in the field by its 10th month. The young dog enjoys being out with an older, fully trained dog, running freely together. Since an older dog is not always available, obedience classes are utilized to help teach the dog. The field dog also likes to have some freedom of mind to develop on his own, and certainly he must consistently be steady to shoot.

The field dog needs lots of play, some friendly roughing. He is not to be considered a mechanical object. From my observations, the loved, trained field dog is busier than most other breeds, also the happiest. To keep busy is to keep happy. It's as simple as that.

The Decline and Fall of Jive Talk

By ROBERT MUSEL
By United Press

Anyone who is uptight and wants to do his thing will have to get down to the nitty gritty without the aid of Cab Calloway.

Cab is alive and well and appearing as an actor on television and Broadway but those who use the flabby cliches of the day (like the above) to say so are liable to be put down by the master.

Long before this generation had its first hangup Cab was helping compile the "Hepster's Dictionary", a reference book of the jive talk popular in the era of the big bands when his fame as maestro, singer and composer was international.

AS CAB happily recalled it those were the torrid '30's when "solid" gave "okay" a lot of competition and cats who dug what was cooking were on the beam. Some jive words and phrases are still around — pot, for instance — but only an optimist would predict longevity for the verbalisms now beating the gums (as Cab might say) of the young.

Cab plays the angel Gabriel in the NBC-TV "Hall of Fame" production of "The Littlest Angel", an original musical based on Charles Tazewell's Christmas story. To take the role he did a little moonlighting on his featured role in the Broadway musical "Hello Dolly."

"The Littlest Angel" will be broadcast the night

of Dec. 6 which the network insists is the holiday season. Others might think they were rushing it a bit but Christmas programs are often careless of time — this one was taped in February with the floss and wrappings of the last celebration scarcely down the inclinator.

CAB WAS considered pretty far out in his day with his zoot suits and bell-bottomed trousers (now back in style) and he tries to understand youth and its music and keep up with the hippy talk. He is, of course, the distinguished writer of such standard songs as "Minnie The Moocher," "Ole Man Mose is Dead," "St. James Infirmary" and "The Jumping Jive" among others.

"I like The Beatles," he said, "but not the kids who try to hide lack of talent by throwing 'baby' into a song when they find nothing else to say. I used 'Hi-Di-Hi' and 'Ho-Di-Ho' but only for rhythm. The rest of the lyrics made sense. It's the same with kids sayings—one day they're fresh, the next day stale. No staying power like 'jive'."

It was time to go and I extended my hand palm upwards.

"Slap some skin," I said.

Cab completed the nostalgic ritual by briefly touching palms.

"Ah," he sighed, "they don't make cliches like that any more."

Millions of families are taking big financial risks they don't know about Are you?

A national survey recently revealed the following two startling facts. If either one applies to you, you are risking financial ruin:

1. Two-thirds of all the families in the United States are not protected by insurance against theft... loss of personal property... or liability for injury to another person.

2. One-third of all American families do not have insurance on their furniture and other household possessions (even though some have insurance on their homes).

To be sure you are sufficiently protected against fire, accident, vandalism, and other hazards, see an independent insurance agent.

As your local independent agents we are pledged to serve you first. We select the best policies for you from those offered by several competing companies. And when you have a loss, we'll help you get your claim settled quickly, fairly, without red tape.

To find out how we can take the big worries out of insurance for you, call on us any time. Just look for this seal.

The Independent Insurance Agents Association of Long Beach includes 30 agencies with 130 licensed agents to serve you. For a list of members see the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory under the heading "Independent Insurance Agents Association of Long Beach," under the "Insurance" classification.

I Dreamed I Was Panting in My Slim and Trim Spa

By L. M. Donahue
With Cartoons by Robert Ahle

TO BE HONEST, I wasn't really dreaming. I just kept hoping it WAS a dream and that I'd wake up to find myself back home with a strawberry milkshake and a mushroom pizza. It was true about me being short of breath, though. I haven't panted like that since I crammed for the last stage breathing test in my natural childbirth classes.

But the most incredible part about the whole thing is that I was there at all — in a Spa I mean. Not too long ago I still thought SPA was a grammatical contraction (Where is pa? — 'Spa comin' home for dinner?).

I tell you, I found out in a hurry that the only contraction involved in a Spa was muscular. Now I've got muscles that haven't done an hour's work in 10 years, and you can bet that chocolate bar you've got taped to the underside of the ironing board that they weren't about to come out of retirement without painful protest. I was so stiff and sore after my first encounter with "stretch and bend" that I had to take two-hour liniment baths every four hours.

Why did I make myself

so miserable? Good question. Well, originally I had a choice. Either self-imposed physical suffering of diet and exercise or a mentally deteriorating guilt complex inflicted by a society more tolerant of obscenity than obesity. Basically lazy, devoid of will power and incompatible with pain, I decided to go with guilt. Figured I could pass the buck and blame my pudginess on my kids. The way I see it, if I can be held responsible for every one of their major or minor abnormalities, the least they can do is shoulder the burden of my figure imperfections. (After all, it only amounts to about 10 pounds apiece.)

You will note that I said "originally" I had a choice. That was before I won a month's free pass to this metropolitan fat farm. Now the only thing stronger than my compulsion to eat is my obsessive delight in getting something for nothing. I just had to take advantage of it.

I should have been suspicious when they asked me to wear leotards. Me in leotards is like a 25-pound tom turkey in a salami stocking. Reluctantly they settled for a sleeveless pup tent and bloomers. Since they also frowned on wearing masks to hide one's identity, I went in through the back door after dark.

I hadn't been inside five minutes when my allergy started acting up. First the palsied shaking — then the swelling . . . it happens every time. I come within 10 feet of a scale. They weren't the least bit concerned about my discomfort, but were kind enough to blindfold me before they checked my weight.

Following that, I was ushered into the figure analyst. When it came to the question, "Bone Structure?" she stared at me so long I got the impression she suspected I'd been inflated and that there weren't any bones there at all. For a moment I feared she might suggest exploratory surgery, but she merely shrugged her shoulders and filled in the answer space with a large question mark.

It didn't help matters when I confessed to wearing two size "small" girdles — one for each leg. After that she shook her head a lot. Her final analysis was that my right earlobe was in fairly satisfactory condition. The rest of me she stamped "critical."

I might insert here that the most frightening things about the whole place were the mirrors — they were everywhere. I think their interior decorator was suffering from reflectionitis. Personally, I haven't had anything but "shoulder-up" mirrors in the house for ages. (There's no longer a need to check if my seams are straight and somebody always tells me if my slip's showing.)

Oh, I did make one exception. About five years ago there was a sale on full-length "seconds." It took me six hours but I finally found one with the flaw in just the right place. By standing sideways and bending forward at a 90-degree angle I could favorably repropportion my image. Unfortunately the mirror was broken when the kids took it to use in the school carnival funhouse. Since then I've never quite had the stamina to go in search

The Kiddie Market

United Press International

The mind of a child seeks simple solutions. If there's somebody you don't like why not hit him on the head?

That's the sort of TV viewing the little darlings apparently hoped for and what they used to get in the days before the television code began to frown on gratuitous violence even in the cartoons of the rich Saturday morning kiddie market.

Children may not have much purchasing power individually but there are millions of them and behind nearly every child stands two indulgent parents (and perhaps four even more indulgent grandparents). So their likes and dislikes are and have been a matter of deep commercial concern to the networks.

THE GOOD news from Lawrence R. White, vice president of NBC-TV, is that children from four to 12 years of age have found an acceptable alternative to such delights as cartoon characters slammed, banged and walloped by other cartoon characters.

In fact the pioneering of the past season in stretching the "attention span" of the young with appeals to intelligence as well as emotion have, according to White, encouraged NBC to invest heavily in a lineup of children's shows that it thinks marks a new departure for the medium. It premieres Sept. 6.

"This is a big further step forward," White said. "Our new shows are better written with much more use of fantasy and imagination. One of them, H. R. Pufnstuf, is an adventure series devised by the famous puppeteers, Sid and Marty Krofft, that I really think is a work of genius."

"It's the story of a boy, played by Jack Wild, the Artful Dodger of the film, 'Oliver,' who sails off to the living island. He meets witches, spiders, talking trees, mushrooms and so on -- all played by humans in side astonishing costumes.

"WE CORNERED the market in midgets and dwarfs but there are ordinary sized people, too. All this unravels with a degree of sophistication that we believe will appeal to older children as well. We're also giving the children seven one hour specials about the fabric of American life, a series of animal stories; a humorous but instructional series on the little things in daily life that we take for granted from pencils to tape recorders -- a total of five new and three returning shows all in color."

White conceded it was difficult to know what children will accept though the fact they liked the comedy of "The Banana Splits," one of the returning shows, last season was a good pointer.

"The trouble with researching the tastes of children is that their degree of critical attitude is never negative," he said. "They say 'I like this but I like this better.' They rarely say 'I don't like this.' They're not as discriminating as they should be so for their own good the standards have to be imposed by adults. Then again parents don't say 'You should watch this' often enough. They are more apt to say 'You can't watch that.'"

White said NBC was not, of course, giving up cartoons, simply changing the content and emotional direction. One of the new cartoon shows, "Here Comes The Grunch" will be a fantasy adventure in the land of the gnome-like Grunch. Another, "The Pink Panther" is a detective-style cartoon based on the character developed for the titles of the Peter Sellers comedy of that name.

What Your Name Means

By LA REINA RULE
Send your name to La Reina Rule, Post Office Box 54151, Los Angeles, Calif. 90064, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Please explain CAUDILL. — E.C., Long Beach.

CAUDILL, English, was initiated in the 13th century as "Cauld-well" portraying the forefather's property as being land-marked by a "cold spring."

MISS RULE: What is the source of D'AMICO? — C.D., Lakewood.

D'AMICO and DE AMICI, Italian, describe "sons of the friendly one." The De Amici shield has a wide red diagonal stripe crossing it. Above the stripe the background is gold; below it, silver.

MISS RULE: Would like the origin of WOJCIECHOWSKI. — B.W., Long Beach.

WOJCIECHOWSKI, Polish, deciphered as "from the property of descendants of the noble and brilliant one."

MISS RULE: We would like the origin of WARNER. — J.W., P.T., P.H., Long Beach; J.W., Garden Grove.

WARNER, English, had as one source the occupation "Warrenere" describing "keeper of game preserves on a royal estate." Warner also began as the hero name Warin-Heri meaning "defending warrior." Robert Le Warner is in royal English records of 1272. The Warner armorial shield is gold, emblazoned with a red diagonal stripe placed between six red roses. Seth Warner, of English ancestry, was an officer in our Revolutionary War, 1775-1776.

MISS RULE: What is the background on MERRITT? — S.M., Long Beach.

MERRITT, English, was formed from a medieval Anglo-French baptismal name "Mer-et" meaning "young, famous one." The Merritt shield is covered with six alternating horizontal silver and black stripes, overlaid with a diagonal ermine band. Thomas Merritt, born in England in 1634, came to Massachusetts, where he married in 1656.

MISS RULE: Please identify the origin of HORN. — E.H., Long Beach, D.H., Los Alamitos.

HORN, German, English,

Dutch, represents an ancestor whose inn was trademarked by a pictured sign of a horn. In Holland Horn also began as a property location on a "horn" or "tongue of land" jutting into the sea. The German Horn shield from Westphalia is silver, decorated with a rampant gold-collared bear. The Dutch Van der Horn shield from Haarlem is red, crossed by a wavy blue and silver stripe framed by two narrow gold bands, placed between three silver stars.

MISS RULE: What is the origin of RAINWATER? — O.R., Torrance, J.R., Long Beach.

RAINWATER, Americanized German, originated as the warrior name "Ragin-Wallhere" meaning "strung army-sulci."

MISS RULE: Please give the origin of GALAVIZ, GALVEZ. — A.G., Long Beach; R.T., Wilmington.

GALAVIZ and GALVEZ, Spanish, are derived from the ancient Gothic-Spanish "Galavez" meaning "son of the chanter or singer," as well as being based on "Gual-vez" meaning "son of the powerful one." The Galvez shield from Castile and Aragon is silver on the left half, emblazoned with two black wolves overlying a green tree. The shield's right half is also silver, decorated with three blue seashells indicating ancestral participation in the Crusades.

MISS RULE: Kindly give the origin of DUVALL. — R.P., Long Beach.

DUVALL, French, began in the Middle Ages as "Du Val" describing a family "from the valley." The Du Val shield from Normandy is silver, crossed by a diagonal red stripe.

of another and, besides, with improved manufacturing techniques flaws just aren't what they used to be.

But back to my visit to Intake Anonymous. Next I was put into a group of fellow consumers. (Immediately I decided that anyone under 150 pounds was a spy from some health food store and I avoided them.)

Our first stop was the carpeted and chandelied torture room. I nearly fainted. You never saw so much agony in motion — chrome fingers mercilessly kneading human flesh . . . vibrating poundage wherever you looked . . . grunts . . . groans . . . heavy breathing. I'd have fled in panic except that my instant friend, Size 48, was blocking the doorway.

With trepidation I mounted a "going nowhere" bicycle and the attendant set the timer for two minutes. (She turned her back so I coasted for 118 seconds.) When they announced "sit-up" time I was certain I never would again. My heart was beating like a turned-on drummer in a rock group. But the pool was delightful. There's nothing like buoyancy to "think thin."

The steam room was something else — kind of a group therapy approach to offensive perspiration. The dry heat of the sauna room made me a little delirious. I kept seeing my waistline (which disappeared after my first pregnancy). I know it was a mirage but I've got to keep searching. Somewhere around a calorie corner or behind a pound dune I'll find it. I know it's there — I've got the X-rays to prove it.

Kitchen Korner Facts You Should Know About Contractors

by Robby Robertson

MR. KITCHEN'S REMODELING CENTER

Did you know that no matter how much or how little you pay for something, if it does not satisfactorily serve the purpose it was designed to do, it was a poor investment.

Did you know it is usually hard to really tell if a kitchen remodeler is telling you the true story of his company, or if he actually delivers what he contracts to do?

Did you know there is a way? Here it is:

BE SURE TO TOUR

A remodeling contractor must be doing from five to 15 kitchen jobs a month to be properly judged in this manner. Ask to take a tour of his last three or four completed jobs.

Remember, his last three — not three that he may choose

When on the tour ask these questions:

- Did the contractor help you plan, design, and contract properly?
- Did contractor finish the job on schedule?
- Was the price fair and just?
- Did you get the quality and service you felt you deserved for the price?
- How long were you without kitchen facilities during job?
- Did you get an absolute lien-free job from the contractor?
- Would you build with him again if you had to do it over?
- Would you recommend him to me for my home improvement?

If the above questions are answered to your liking, feel satisfied that you are in good hands with this contractor. The fact that you, saw three recently-completed projects, talked with the satisfied homeowners, almost tells the story by itself.

REMEMBER TO ASK QUESTIONS!

Watch for this weekly series with helpful ideas on kitchen planning and design. If any questions come up in regard to your kitchen, feel free to contact MR. KITCHEN REMODELING CENTER, 1215 Redondo, Long Beach, call 557-5554 for free information.

By FRANK ANDERSON
(For Vacantinnig, Tedd Thomey)

PEPPY's is only a hop, skip and cool drive away across the Vincent Thomas Bridge. It's well worth the trip to 584 W.
Ninth St., San Pedro.

If you plan to dine at Peppy's on a Friday or Saturday night, I would advise calling for reservations. The restaurant is so popular that a wait of up to an hour is common on weekends.

PEPPY PIELAGO
Draws to Full House

Cartoon by Larry Lavoe

And if you do have to wait — as I did on a Saturday night — it's painless.
The bar is comfortable, the refreshments are soothing, and the peanuts, popcorn and dips whet one's appetite for what is to come.

I ordered the sea food combination for $3.95. It was a happy decision.

The meal opened with a pleasant-to-the-palate cup of lentil soup. A generous tossed salad followed quickly. Blue cheese dressing, croutons and pepper corns were staunch allies of the lettuce, and I lingered over the bowl — savoring every bite.

The arrival of the sea food combination was an event. The shrimp, oysters, scallops and done-to-a-T filet were flanked by a baked potato and sauce auxillaries. I opted for the cheese-and-chives, topping for the potato, which is a meal in itself.

Well filled and well satisfied, I was given a cook's tour by owner Peppy Pielago.
The restaurant has two levels — the French Normandy room in which I ate and the upstairs Captain's Deck, which has a nautical theme. Entertainment is offered at the piano bar on the upper deck.

My eyes saw why Pep-py's has been a 15-year success story. My palate confirmed the fact.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

'Splits' Spiel for Kid Shows

FLEEGLE, the doggiest member of the Banana Splits blows his horn for the five new shows on NBC's Saturday morning lineup, starting Sept. 6. The shows to be introduced via film clips at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, Ch. 4, are: "Here Comes the Grump" featuring a boy, his dog, a gnome-like character called The Grump and a bumbling dragon; "The Pink Panther," which will include an animated series, "The Inspector;" "Jambo," a live-action animal series, with Marshall Thompson as host-narrator; "H. R. Pufnstuf," live actors in fantasy roles, with Jack Wild, the young British actor of the film "Oliver!" and "The Heckle and Jeckle Show," starring two wild mynah birds. (See "The Kiddie Market," Page 17.)

To Be Black

The black Americans from whom white America tends to expect the most — the educated and successful — often are torn by inner conflict and resentment.

Their frustrations are documented in "To Be Black," which will air at 4 p.m. Sunday, Ch. 7.

The program concerns itself with the work of two black psychiatrists, Dr. William Grier and Dr. Price M. Cobb. Drs. Grier and Cobb, who co-authored the book, "Black Rage," appear on the program as interviewers and moderators.

The documentary, taped in San Francisco, uncovers the reality of blackness in a white America through representative case studies from the psychiatrists' practices.

Also featured on "To Be Black" are panel discussions on two topics: education and health services.

The education panel, moderated by Dr. Cobb, includes a school administrator, Harriet Wood, a graduate student at Berkeley, Mike Brown, and a leonaged student, Janet Gates.

Dr. Grier moderates the health services panel, composed of a white doctor, Earl Marsh, a black doctor, Arthur Coleman, and a health services consumer, Mrs. Ruth Williams.

DIFFERENCES between black and white which remain even when conditions of equal opportunity are provided are discussed by Dr. William Grier (l) and Dr. Price M. Cobb, psychiatrists, on "To Be Black."

Glad You Asked That!

By Hy Gardner

Q. IS BUDDY HACKETT part Chinese — Sam Herensohn, Oakland.

A. Only when he stretches a rubber band across his face to get that slanty-eyed look in a take-off that made him famous — the Chinese waiter. He'll cash in on this familiar routine by going into the franchised Chinese restaurant business in partnership with Dong Kingman, the famous watercolor artist, and other associates. The "pilot" chow-meinery will be launched in Philadelphia, called, oddly enough, "Buddy Hackett Presents the Chinese Waiter."

Q. All impressionists who do Cary Grant have him saying, "Judy, Judy, Judy." Did he originally say this to Miss Garland in a movie? — Louise R., Long Beach.

A. "I don't know that I ever said it," Cary declares. "Neither do the sound men who checked the tracks for me find any such excerpt. I vaguely recall that at a party somebody introduced Judy Garland by saying, 'Judy, Judy, Judy,' and it caught on, attributed to me."

Q. Was Ed Ames one of the Ames brothers in the late '40s and '50s? — F. Forsyth, Westover Air Force Base, Chicopee Falls, Mass.

A. Ed's been one of the Ames brothers since he was born!

Q. My friend says that the Lone Ranger's old pal Tonto was a Lebanese. I bet he's an Indian. Who wins? — Charles D., Tucson, Ariz.

A. Pick up the marbles. Tonto, real name Jay Silverheels, is a Mohawk.

Q. Does Julie Andrews do her own

Julie... the sound of music is her own.

Dong Kingman's impression of partner Buddy Hackett.

singing in the movies? — John Nagy, Kenmore, N.Y.

A. Of course, she does — that's how she became a star.

Q. Can you tell me a little more about Glenn Campbell — his birthday and bride, for instance? Barbara Amazi, Madelia, Minn.

A. You mean brides. The six-foot-er, seventh son of a seventh son, was born in Delight, Ark., on April 22, 1935. He married for a second time in September 1959 (Billy Nunnley).

Q. Why don't the Vegas casinos employ female croupiers and dealers? — Marey Richter, Pensacola, Fla.

A. That's precisely what a group of women are asking at this moment. They've formed a Committee to Abolish Discrimination Against Women Dealers and may make a federal case out of it. In northern Nevada, club owners have employed females since World War II when a shortage of male dealers forced their hand.

Q. Have former U.S. Presidents the privilege of franking their mail — J. M. Burton, Winnipeg.

A. Frankly — yes.

Q. Anything happen between Jack Benny and Rochester? The latter seems to be the only one of the old regulars you don't see on Benny specials. — Mary Sue Greene, Shelby, N.C.

A. "We used Rochester on our special last fall," writes Jack Benny, "and intend to use him in the future."

• Quasar Color TV retains new set color, sharpness, and sound because the works in a drawer are all solid state. Unlike tubes, solid-state components are designed to work without burning themselves out. If one ever fails it can usually be replaced in minutes, right at home. • The "power equalizer" helps keep Quasar TV working at a pre-set voltage level ... no matter how high the voltage coming from the wall socket. This means the picture size remains constant. There's practically no shrinkage or expansion of picture due to electrical equipment operating in the home or nearby. Most importantly, the "power equalizer" provides long life for the picture tube, because it constantly operates at the voltage range it was designed for. • Automatic fine tuning and electronic picture lock • Lighted channel indicators on VHF and UHF.

TV NOTEBOOK

Sure, the show must go on — but how when the star is flat on her back in a hospital bed fighting the battle of a slipped disc?

Personal manager Lee Magid found the solution to Della Reese's hospitalization in a local supermarket at 2:30 . . . AM!

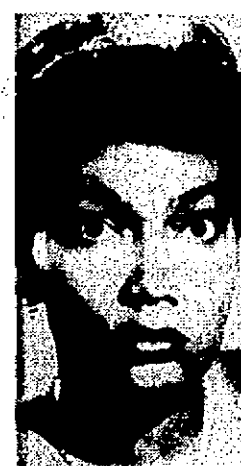

Della's slipped disc which precluded her hosting "Della" on Monday and Tuesday. ("Della" airs 10 p.m., weeknights on Channel 9.)

Enter Lee Magid, miracle-worker wand in hand — dry as a bone without a drop of fresh orange juice at home. Enter Kaye Stevens, newly arrived from New York and without a flask of diet cola.

"What's new?" asked Kaye across the produce counter. "Della's sick," said the weary, thirsty manager. "Want to do the show for her?" "Sure," Kaye said, "when, where and what time?" Kaye'll do the Della bit Monday and Tuesday.

KAM NELSON, teen co-star of KHL-TV Channel 9 Boss City (Saturday, 6 p.m.) and The Groovy Show (Monday-Friday, 5 p.m.), has now become a movie starlet as well!

Kam recently completed shooting two forthcoming movies. The first, a Walt Disney production titled "The Computer Wore Tennis Shoes" stars Karl Russell; the second is a Paramount feature called "Norwood", starring Glen Campbell and Joe Namath.

PEARL BAILEY

BROADWAY, night club and recording star Pearl Bailey, who won a Tony Award for her portrayal of Dolly Levi in the Broadway musical "Hello, Dolly!", has been signed to star in her own musical variety series on the ABC Television Network for the 1970-71 season.

Pearl has been a star since her Broadway debut in "St. Louis Woman" in 1946, for which she won the Donaldson Award. That production was the first in a string of stage successes. She has several starring motion picture roles to her credit and will soon be seen in the Norman Jewison production of "The Landlord." She recently made her first mark in literary circles with her book of memoirs, "The Raw Pearl."

Named "Man of the Year" in 1968 by the March of Dimes — the first woman to be so honored — Miss Bailey has also been the USO's "Woman of the Year."

OUR COVER

The world's best tennis player, Rod Laver, and his wife, Mary, of Corona del Mar, are happily awaiting the birth of their first child; it is expected the first week of September. Also, Laver in the next two weeks will be trying to win the U. S. Open championship at Forest Hills, N. Y. If he succeeds, he will be the first man in tennis history to score two "Grand Slams"—the winning of the championships of Australia, France, England and America in the same year. Laver is an Australian native, but has been living in Orange County since his marriage three years ago. In our cover photo, Mr. and Mrs. Laver are pictured at the Newport Beach Tennis Club, which he represents as touring pro. For more about the Lavers, turn to Page 6.

Outside House Painting Eliminated for 15 Years

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT)—Painting is a thing of the past. Let us show you how Fiberglas TEX-COTE insulates, waterproofs and beautifies and is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the TEX-COTE story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every fiberglas TEX-COTE job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to TEX-COTE its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

TEX-COTE is one of the oldest coatings now marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings since 1946. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

TEX-COTE is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. TEX-COTE fuses itself to the walls and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. TEX-COTE may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

THE WELLS REPORT

End of Innocence

By Bob Wells

DURING the presidential campaign of 1968, Richard Nixon promised the American people "to bring us together." What Orange County residents didn't understand until last week was that he was going to do it in San Clemente.

It is possible that President Nixon's decision to locate the Summer White House in San Clemente might be the last straw that defeats Orange County's long effort to hold off the evils of the 20th Century—real and imagined—from its green suburbs, golden hills and bluff-guarded beaches.

Four to six thousand people—depending on whose estimate you accept—came to see the President last Sunday. That's about a third of the normal population of San Clemente, once a sleepy beach town whose greatest claim to fame was its phony California Spanish architecture whose dazzling white walls caused snow blindness among motorists passing on Coast Highway.

Out-of-county writers and in-county civic leaders have combined to produce a great deal of myth and nonsense about Orange County. To transient reporters, Orange County is Mississippi without William Faulkner, the Bible Belt with orange juice instead of Coca Cola.

TO THE native sons and daughters of Orange County, their homeland is Eden. True, the fruit of Paradise is gone and the two-lane blacktop roads with their prim white stripes no longer ramble through endless orange groves. But the air, they tell themselves, is still almost pollution free. The waves that crash on the eternal coasts are clean and green. There are still cattle on a thousand hills above the freeways, and in summer the Great Orange rises hot and shining from behind Saddleback, and at night it falls bloody and hissing into the sea.

Both views distort reality. Orange County didn't invent air pollution but it was one of the first areas in the nation to adopt it enthusiastically. Back in the 1920s and 1930s, the most popular radio program in the county was the KFI frost reports. Movies were interrupted in county theaters for frost warnings.

When there was danger of frost, the orange growers would hurry to the groves and light their smudge pots. Orange County housewives would hurry home in those pre-automatic dryer days and take in their laundry. Occasionally, when the wind was right, Los Angeles County housewives who hadn't bothered to take their laundry off the lines would be the victims of smudge pot fall out. The air in Orange County during a cold winter was kerosene scented and interestingly textured with tiny bits of soot.

IT MAY dismay Birchers to discover that in the last century, Orange County was the site of German and Polish collectivist utopian colonies. Walter Knott, the gentle conservative, recalls with nostalgia his early days in Orange County when he would go for months without seeing a federal employee except the postmaster. Yet, in 1877 the Los Angeles Star reported that "Internal Revenue Collector Hall swooped down on an illicit distillery at Anaheim one day last week and captured the still and one thousand gallons of grape brandy spirits."

Nevertheless, there is a solid basis of reality for the myths. Orange County is politically conservative. It harkens back to small-town America and a Lost Eden. But like the rest of the nation, Orange County has had to fall back step by step before the devices and depravities of the 20th Century.

And last Sunday, mass protest came down the San Diego Freeway to San Clemente.

SAN CLEMENTE had been having trouble with modernism even before President Nixon established the Western White House there. San Clemente lifeguards had been threatening to strike. Indeed, they were only stopped by a court injunction. A lifeguard strike in San Clemente would be roughly equivalent to a croupier strike in Las Vegas, or a walkout by Mickey Mouse, Tinkerbell and all of the Seven Dwarfs at Disneyland. There goes the economy.

The anti-war protestors came in private cars, rented busses and gaudy vans decorated in psychedelic designs. They flowed off the freeway around the San Clemente Inn and parked along the neat, grass-and-ivy boulevard strips of upper middle class Suburbia.

Some of the residents ventured out to watch and shake their heads, but most stayed indoors. Many displayed American flags. Curiously, many of the disapproving residents were hard to distinguish from the demonstrators. Orange County Republicans at home tend to dress like Harry Truman on vacation at Palm Beach. The householders' bright sport shirts and Bermuda shorts blended comfortably into the bright bell-bottoms and headbands of the protestors.

THE DEMONSTRATORS raised their placards (most original: A pencil sketch of Nixon with the query, "Would you buy a used war from this man?") and moved down the Via de Frente to a point about 300 yards from the entrance to the Western White House, where police blocked their path.

Before they reached the first line of police, however, they were turned back by a massed line of their own demonstration monitors. The monitors chanted and cheered with the protestors, but they stood shoulder to shoulder between the marchers and the police.

The San Clemente police were reinforced by units of Orange County and San Diego County deputy sheriffs. Santa Ana police manned the front line at every potential confrontation point.

It is still enough of a small town police force that the officers can smile in response to a friendly smile and give a friendly reply to a polite query or comment. The demeanor of the police eased tension and isolated potential trouble makers among the demonstrators.

"The police handled the demonstration with real professionalism," Robert Bland, Orange County chairman of the Peace Action Committee, said after the march.

After the usual round of speeches in the state park, the demonstration dispersed. The sign on the marquee at the San Clemente Inn had the last word for the moment:

"MR. PRESIDENT. WE ONLY DEMONSTRATE OUR ADMIRATION AND RESPECT."

But Bland promised further demonstrations. A Laguna Beach resident for 15 years, he seemed a little sad about the changes he was bringing to Orange County.

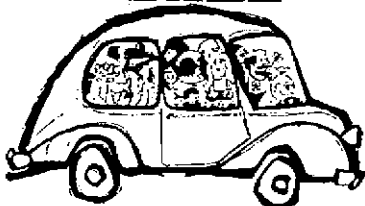

"I don't like to come down and disturb the good people of San Clemente," he said, "but we will be here as long as the war in Vietnam continues."

A Question of Intelligence

A study of a traumatic military event in American life, and an attempt to assess the implications of that event on American society today will be aired in "Pueblo: A Question of Intelligence," at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Ch. 4.

The purpose of the program will be to examine all factors concerning the seizure of an American ship in neutral waters by an enemy nation, the internment of her crew in that country, and the failure of the military and the intelligence community to foresee what might happen under the existing circumstances—and to act when it did happen.

The special colorcast will examine the actual event; the methods of gathering military infor-

In the Dead of Night

"In the Dead of Night," a suspense drama about a young woman who inherits a haunted house, will be telecast at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 7.

"In the Dead of Night" is the story of a young secretary who inherits a mansion but can't sell it because it's supposed to be haunted. She hires a ghost-catcher to de-spook the place.

Stars of the drama are Kerwin Mathews as Jonathan Fletcher, the ghost-hunter; Marj Dusay as Angela Marten, the secretary; Cal Bellini as Sajeed Ban, Fletcher's assistant; Thayer David as the strange, brawny

Jacqueline Bisset: a New Sex Symbol in Filmland

By Lorraine Gauguin

Jacqueline Bisset... a certain magnetism

THE DAY I MET Jacqueline Bisset everyone was upset because they were going to simulate a bomb explosion aboard a jetliner with a full load of passengers. All of the passengers are distinguished actors and not one of them refused to appear in the scene, although Jacqueline was replaced by famous Hollywood stuntgirl Donna Garrett (she has done stunts for some of Hollywood's most glamorous gals, including Raquel Welch and Shirley MacLaine).

"They wouldn't allow me to do it," said Jackie. "I'm the stewardess and standing in front of the lavatory door when the bomb goes off. I get the door right in my face and, although they don't say what actually happens to me — you just see me being carried off the plane on a stretcher — it's pretty obvious that I won't recover."

Talk about nerves, everybody was dashing around the set, photographers

were getting ready and practically everybody on the Universal studio lot had walked onto the set. It's not every day you get to see Dean Martin, Jacqueline Bisset, Helen Hayes, Van Heflin, Whit Bissell, Sondra Gould and countless character actors get blown up. Producer Ross Hunter was a nervous wreck. He was more concerned about stuntgirl Garrett than anyone else.

An hour before bomb blast, Jackie and I sat in her dressing room discussing her career. She was wearing a smart gray wool stewardess uniform and covering her long shoulder-length auburn hair was a page-boy wig. She's very big on wigs. Soon she had changed wigs and wore one cut in the short Mia Farrow style. "My hair is long and always a mess, so I'm never without a wig," she explained. As she wouldn't appear in the next scene, she was changing from her warm uniform. Soon, she emerged in flight black trousers that belled at the bottom, and sturdy English boots; wrapped around her thin shoulders was an old-fashioned granny shawl, and she was completely unrecognizable.

But, no matter how she is dressed, Jackie causes tremendous traumas in men, which is obviously the way she got started as a new sex symbol or whatever they call bright young actresses today. One editor I know walks around almost a basket case, muttering, "I've got to get over my crush on that girl." That's the kind of reaction men have to her stunning impact, for that editor is not alone. It's not that she's any exceptional beauty, it's just that old-fashioned animal magnetism.

"I started my career as a model in London," said Jackie. "My father is a doctor and my mother a lawyer and I'd always thought I'd be either one or the other, but instead I began to model — as a lark, actually. I was overweight and every agent that I went to see told me I had to take off lots of poundage. I used to walk around with a sweater tied around my bottom — as if that would hide it."

One photographer, who worked with her in London when she first began modeling, said: "She had too much sexual presence to be a classical model. She had this . . . wanton thing."

Evidently a few producers noticed that . . . er, ah . . . wanton thing. Jackie's role of stewardess Gwen McElghan in "Airport" is the most important of her short career. Her first film was "The Knack" in 1965, followed by a small role in "Cul De Sac." Then, she had a small but outstanding role in "Two for the Road," but she was overshadowed by Audrey Hepburn. When Mia Farrow was unable to co-star with her then husband, Frank Sinatra, director Roman Polanski, who was directing Mia in "Rosemary's Baby," suggested Jackie. He had directed "Cul De Sac." Jackie won the role opposite the famous singer-actor, which started her on the way to the top. Next she co-starred with Steve McQueen in the thriller "Bullitt."

In "Airport" she is supposed to have a romance with the pilot, played by Dean Martin. The romance is complicated, as he is married and Jackie (Gwen) is pregnant.

"'Airport' is a story about current problems facing airports all over the world," said producer Ross Hunter earlier that day. They have crammed just about every problem an airport could undergo during an imaginary eight hours. Outside of stewardess Gwen's romantic involvement with the pilot, there is a dangerous lunatic aboard, Guerrero (Van Heflin), who is carrying a homemade bomb with which to blow himself up for insurance. Aboard the plane are all the average passengers, who are unaware of their danger, and also a little old lady slowaway (Helen Hayes) who is sitting next to Guerrero. As we were going to watch the filming of an explosion, I guess it's not giving the plot away to say that the homemade bomb is a success.

The bomb idea caused a great deal of worry to the studio and the airlines in recreating this touchy problem. They had to prove that the story was not just sensational but that it could really happen and the plane, with a big hole in the fuselage, could be landed safely.

It had been thought until recently that if there was an explosion in a jet the decompression would kill everyone. Most people are unaware that the oxygen masks overhead are for just that reason. Since the book "Airport" hit the best seller list two bombs have gone off in jets, proving the author's point. A jet can land with a hole in it and everyone can survive.

"Passengers have something like 20 seconds to get that oxygen mask on when it comes down," explained director George Seaton. "If you are ever on a plane and you see that mask come down — grab it and don't ask questions. We were shown training films used by the airlines of what happens during decompression. If you don't get oxygen a sense of euphoria overcomes you, something like the sensations of skindivers who go beyond their depth. We saw stewardesses applying lipstick and putting it all over their face, pilots repeated aimless phrases and laughed and a form of intoxication."

'Rocket Rod' Laver — Orange County's Grand Slammer

By Rob Martin

LONG BEACH HAD ITS queen of world tennis, Billie Jean Moffitt King, and neighboring Orange County proudly claims the king of the courts, Rod Laver.

Laver, of course, is no native of Orange County — or even of America. Like most of the top male tennis stars of the last two decades, he's as Australian as a wallaby.

But the world champion has been making his home in the Corona del Mar section of Newport Beach for three years, and all the blokes in the county are bloody well happy to call him their own. Great tennis players may be as plentiful in Australia as kangaroos, but in Orange County they're about as scarce as wombats.

(Even in Australia, you don't find a Laver under every eucalyptus tree. He is one of the all-time tennis greats; some say he may be the best player ever to swing a racket.)

It is safe to assume that Laver's attractive wife, the former Mary Benson, is largely responsible for bringing him to Corona del Mar, for that's where she was living when she met Rod. They were married in June 1966.

Also, the Newport Beach Tennis Club

rates an assist, for Laver has represented the club as touring pro since its opening in early 1967.

THE NEXT couple of weeks will be two of the biggest yet in the life of the transplanted Aussie, who was born 31 years ago this month on a cattle ranch in Queensland (there was a tennis court in his family's back yard).

For one thing, he is due to become a father for the first time. And, secondly, he will be striving to become the first man in tennis history to score a second "Grand Slam."

The "Grand Slam" in tennis is the winning of the championships of Australia, France, England (Wimbledon) and the United States in the same year. Laver has won the first three; now he's after the title in the U.S. Open Championships at Forest Hills, N.Y., which begin Wednesday and continue through Sept. 7.

Only two men in the long history of the game have achieved one Slam — California's Don Budge in 1938, about a month after Rod was born, and, 24 years later, Laver in 1962. Like Budge, Rod is a free-kick-faced redhead. But whereas Budge stood 6 feet 1½ inches tall, Laver is only 5 feet 9½. And Rod, of course, is a left-hander.

"Which are you more excited about — the prospect of another Slam or of becoming a father?" I asked Laver at the Newport Beach Tennis Club.

"Why, I'm rather excited about both," the reticent champion replied. "Can't say I'm more excited about one than the other."

Would he prefer a boy or a girl?

"It doesn't make a bit of difference."

Would he want his child to be a tennis player?

"He can be what he wants to be."

Mrs. Laver says that since the baby is expected near the time of the Forest Hills finals, "It would be nice to name him after the winner, if it's a boy."

Rodney George Jr. may be her name choice, but she is not so sure what her husband will want to call the child.

"We have a pet Yorkshire terrier and Rod named it Drop Shot. Good Lord, what will he call the baby!" she wondered aloud.

THE LAVERS live in a handsome, split-level home just a short drive from the Newport Beach Tennis Club, which is in the Bluffs area east of Upper Newport Bay. From their back yard terrace they have a view of Balboa and the Pacific Ocean.

Mrs. Laver is an art lover and collector, and their home is beautifully furnished.

When staff photographer Curt Johnson and I left the house after a picture-taking session, Curt, who doesn't follow tennis very closely, said to me: "You mean to tell me that a tennis player makes enough money to live like that?"

I explained that Laver, who dropped out of school at 15 to concentrate on tennis, is the world's best and that he has a contract with the National Tennis League guaranteeing him a minimum of $30,000 a year; that he also represents the Newport Beach Tennis Club; that he endorses tennis rackets, shirts, shoes and so forth; and that he and a few of his tennis buddies have an interest in a convention center-hotel (The Homestead) in Brisbane, among other investments.

Curt kindly refrained from commenting, "What a racket!"

Despite his income, it just may be possible that Laver, like other husbands, has to keep an eye on his wife's spending. After Mrs. Laver showed Johnson and me a grandfather clock she recently had sent over from England, Curt started telling her about a Southland shop with many interesting clocks.

She wanted to know more about the place, but Rod interrupted. "Honey," he said, "don't you think we have enough clocks already?"

After Curt and I had spoken admiringly of an Italian Renaissance painting in the living room, Mary turned to her husband and said: "Yes, when are you going to buy me another one like that, dear?"

Rod feigned a look of displeasure.

In addition to some works of art, the Laver home boasts quite a collection of silver — trophies won by Rod in more than a dozen years of competition in all parts of the world.

Since Laver follows the tournament trail 9 or 10 months a year, the Lavers are, of necessity, apart some of the time. But Mary makes a number of trips with Rod — and she finds time in her travels to visit art galleries and museums. She made the South African and European tour with him in 1966 and 1967, and she has seen him play at Wimbledon the last two years. She preceded him home after this summer's Wimbledon, while he stopped off in Boston to win his fourth straight U.S. professional crown. He then came home for 2½ weeks in late July-early August before setting out on the pro trail again, playing in a few tournaments leading up to the U.S. Open.

WHILE AT HOME, Rod put aside his rackets for a week's rest, then was ready to start practicing at the club. Rath-

PUEBLO: A Question of Intelligence (4), 7:30 p.m. — Frank McGee examines the implications on American society today of the seizure of a U.S. ship in neutral waters by an enemy nation, the internment of her crew in that country, and the failure of the military and intelligence communities to act. Hour includes studies of the mission itself, the possible blame, and current sophisticated methods of gathering military information.

Laver points out something of interest to his wife, Mary, at their home.

er than do road work (unless he has been inactive for a few months) or exercises, Rod trains by practicing. "I enjoy practicing, and find that this is the best way for me to keep in shape," he says.

Laver tries to catch up on his fan mail when he's home. According to Mary, he likes to receive fan letters and tries to reply to as many as he can.

Asked if he likes to work in the yard, Rod displayed a look that seemed to say: "Does a chap like to get beat in an important match?"

A stranger seeing the Lavers, and not recognizing Rod, might get the idea that Mary is more sports-minded than he. For Rod, despite years of playing tennis in the sun, doesn't have much of a tan, whereas Mary sports as attractive a tan as you'll ever see at a beach.

She had played little tennis before she met him, and didn't know a great deal about it, but since their marriage she has become a regular on the courts at the club. "And I've played more this year — since I've been pregnant — than ever," she says.

Does she ever play mixed doubles with Rod?

"Oh, yes, we play together sometimes — but I just try to get out of the way and let him take the shots."

Mary recalls that she met Rod at the Jack Kramer Club in Rolling Hills Estates, but says she had gone there for a swimming exhibition, not tennis.

For relaxation and a change of pace, Rod likes to play golf occasionally, and he can shoot in the high 70s the swings right-handed). Mary also plays golf.

There's one sport, though, that Rod leaves to his wife. She's an avid skier, but he "can't take the risk of getting hurt," she points out.

Mrs. Laver was born in Illinois and grew up there, then her family moved to Orange County, where she attended Orange Coast College and Santa Ana College. She has a teen-age son and a teen-age daughter by a previous marriage.

I ASKED MRS. LAVER about the personality of the world champion, who always has appeared somewhat shy to me. "On an original meeting, he is reserved," she said. "But he warms up quickly. After he gets to know people, he's quite talkative.

"He's the kind of person who likes to be doing something all the time — he doesn't like to just sit around. When he's home, we lead quite a social life. We both love music and dancing. And he likes to be around people."

A couple of years ago, Laver got a pal from Brisbane, Jimmy Shepherd, to take the job as leaching pro at the Newport Beach Tennis Club. Shepherd, slightly younger than Rod, is a fine player who never quite reached the international star level.

I put the question, "Is Rod shy?" to Shepherd one day at the club.

"You might say that," said Jimmy, who quickly added: "Until he's had a couple of these." And he hoisted a mug of Australian beer that the club bar stocks.

Like most Australian tennis players

Just to make a pretty picture, the Lavers placed a few of his numerous trophies on a coffee table in their family room.

Three Australians, all living in the Newport Beach area now, look over Laver's Wimbledon Cup. From left: Roy Emerson, Jimmy Shepherd and Laver. Emerson won Wimbledon twice himself; Shepherd is teaching pro at Newport Beach Tennis Club.

LAVER, KING OF THE COURTS

and some non-Australians as well, Rod likes nothing better than downing a few beers after a hard day, or hard night, on the court.

"Rod's no snob," Shepherd added. "He's regular. Why, when he came back to Australia after winning the Grand Slam he hadn't changed a bit."

Another good friend of Laver's is fellow Aussie star Roy Emerson, himself a two-time Wimbledon amateur champion. Emerson took up residence with his Australian wife and family near the Lavers after he turned pro with the National Tennis League early last year. Rod and Roy play together at the club whenever they're both home.

Says Emmo of Rod: "He's a glorious man. There's no one I respect more."

On the court, Laver is well behaved. He doesn't throw temper tantrums, and he's a good sport in victory or defeat. Unlike Pancho Gonzales, he doesn't like to offer alibis if he loses. And, although he may seem a little ill at ease when being interviewed by sports writers, either in victory or in defeat, he will graciously field their questions in the dressing room after a match. Early coaching by Australian Davis Cup captain Harry Hopman on not talking to the press may be responsible for his "on guard" nature around newsmen, but he has become more communicative in recent years than he used to be.

ROD SEEMS TO BE modest, but he does not affect a false modesty. He is perfectly aware that, on the basis of the record, he and only he can be considered the No. 1 player in the world at this time, and, if asked, will admit that being on top gives him "much satisfaction." "I'm No. 1 and it's up to me to battle to stay there," he says.

Any suggestion that another player is better than he is might bring a retort. At the "Welcome Home, Rod" party given by the Newport Beach Tennis Club on his return from his fourth Wimbledon triumph last month, one newsman asked if Aussie

Tony Roche, another left-hander, gives Rod more trouble than any other player. Laver, probably figuring that the newsmen had in mind the fact that Roche holds an edge in head-to-head duels this year, pointed out that Tony hadn't advanced far enough to get to play him in the big tournaments later in the year.

And when someone brought up the name of Arthur Ashe, who won the first U.S. Open a year ago, Rod commented: "He hasn't won much since then, has he?"

Laver also will tell you that competition is tougher now than it ever was in the past — that there is more pressure on the good players today. "The players were not playing for money in earlier days," he points out. "Also, you have to consider that, with air travel, we are playing in a lot more tournaments than the players used to play in."

Like everyone else in tennis, Laver rates Wimbledon (generally considered the world championship) as "the biggest, most important tournament of all." And, since Wimbledon became an open tournament — a meet in which pros as well as amateurs compete — for the first time last year, Laver understandably rates the last two Wimbledon as the toughest ones of all. Inasmuch as he won them both, he is the only undisputed world champion since tennis first began having pro stars.

Laver also won the last two Wimbledon that he played in as an amateur — in 1961 and 1962 — and there's no telling how many more he might have won had he been eligible from 1963 through 1967. This year he became the first man since 1913 to win more than three Wimbledon singles titles.

Asked whom he considered the best of the players he has known, Laver replied: "Hoad for one match, and Gonzales and Rosewall over-all. Kramer was before my time."

Lew Hoad, he says, was his idol as a youngster.

Youngsters are given tips by Laver and Aussie Mal Anderson at a clinic. Laver is active in boosting junior tennis, especially in Orange County.

FOR ONE WHO REIGNED as king of the amateurs, then as king of the pros, and now as king of all tennis, Laver presents a strange appearance when he walks on the court for a tournament match. The shy, slightly bowlegged, redhead looks almost apologetic, as though he doesn't belong on the same court with his rival. (Maybe I'm wrong; maybe he's embarrassed by what he knows is going to happen to the other bloke.)

Once the play starts, though, there is nothing backward about Laver's game. He is not a defensive type of player, content merely to keep the ball in play until his foe makes an error. No, Rod is always on the offensive, always going for winners. The Aussie southpaw is more like a Tasmanian devil than a gentle koala. He hits the most sensational ground strokes in the game, and he's said to have the most effective serve in history for anyone under 5 feet 10. His game, rather than his personality on the court, makes the poker-faced Laver a "colorful" performer.

Rod carries the nickname "The Rocket" or "Rocket Rod," and it seems most appropriate for the champion of the Space Age, with his high-powered game. But, as a matter of fact, the nickname got started when Hopman sarcastically said, "Laver, you're a regular rocket," when he thought Rod wasn't displaying enough enthusiasm in a workout a number of years ago.

Laver's great forehand and backhand ground strokes are not orthodox, for he flicks his wrist in hitting the ball. Like right-hander Hoad, his early idol, Laver is what is known as a "wristy player," which most tennis teachers advise their pupils not to become. With his strong left wrist — the 150-pound Laver's left wrist is bigger than Floyd Patterson's and his left forearm equals the size of Rocky Marciano's — he is able to hit a greater variety of shots of different spins than any other person in tennis. Also, he can reset his wrist in midstroke, and, after waiting until his opponent has committed himself, can surprise him with the shot that's least expected.

An early coach named Charlie Hollis taught Rod to put topspin on his shots, always insisting, "Hit over the ball."

SAYS KEN ROSEWALL: "Potentially, Rod has twice as many shots as I do. I'm an orthodox player. But his iron-clad wrist enables him to hit a topspin backhand like nobody else. And his running forehand is tops. He has a gift of coordination and timing, the ability to make contact on the run."

A few years ago at a pro tournament in Los Angeles, I was sitting with Ashe, then a UCLA star, watching Laver play. "That guy makes shots no one else can make," Ashe commented. "I feel that I can make all the shots the other pros can make — maybe not as consistently yet — but Laver is something else again."

This, of course, was a few years ago, and now Ashe figures to be one of Laver's toughest roadblocks in his path toward an unprecedented second "Grand Slam." Tennis fans throughout the world will follow Laver's progress at Forest Hills the next two weeks, but, win or lose in the U.S. Open, Rocket Rod still will be the world champion — and he expects to play tournament tennis for at least another four or five years.

Does he plan to make his home permanently in America? I put this question to Rod at his home.

He thought for a moment, then motioned toward the house as he replied: "Well, this looks pretty permanent, wouldn't you say?"

Corona del Mar and Orange County will be happy to have Laver stay.

And, who knows, maybe in another 20 years there'll be a new champion named Laver in the county.

The Joyful Jeeps

THE SAND DUNE has a 40-degrees slope. At its crest is the hot, blue Imperial Valley sky. At the base of the dune, a vehicle — a Jeep and yet not a Jeep — revs its engine and bounces up the powdery side of the dune, shooting off the crest with surprising speed.

At the wheel is 16-year-old Gene Shook, a Wilson High School junior who teams with his brother Keith, 14, to rebuild and modify Jeeps into special off-the-road vehicles.

Gene's own rig — formerly a two-wheel drive Jeep Dispatcher used by a government agency — was converted in four months into four-wheel drive custom Jeep with a V-8 engine, a Borg-Warner four-speed transmission, bucket seats and new paint. Gene and his brother, working at their father's shop, have rebuilt and sold other rigs, but for Gene the most fun is in the driving. His views:

—The back country — whether accessible like Pismo Beach, or hard to reach — is the best place to go jeeping. Competition is not the main thing, although there are a lot of meets and races. The main thing is to have a good time, to be with friends away from city life for awhile. My club — the Jeeping Jeeps — goes out on runs about twice a month.

—Our club has been organized a lot in the past few years. I went out on my first trail run when I was under six months old, so jeeping seems like a normal thing to do. Each month, a new trail boss is appointed by the club president. The boss's job is to set up a meet in the back country and lead the club there and back.

—Like in anything, rules and safety are there for good reason. The greatest danger in riding the dunes is flipping over. About the only way to flip end-over-end is to apply the brakes while all four wheels are off the ground. Regular street tires in sand — instead of wild tires — can cause you to flip sideways. In any case, a jeep should never be alone. Another jeep can keep his eye on you and give help if you get into trouble.

—You run the chance of burning up your equipment. Once when sand got into my brakes and made me swerve, I almost flipped off a dune cliff. I might have escaped, but the jeep would have been totaled.

—Probably the most fun is taking a several day run down to the Imperial Valley dunes which stretch along for 12 miles to the Mexican border. We take house trailers and stay a few days running the bows, or depressions between dunes.

—One big problem that's becoming bigger is the influence of car company-sponsored drivers who enter meets. It used to be that a sand dune meet or other race would attract mostly guys who built their own rigs and who needed the prize money. But now, big auto companies like Ford spend a lot of money souping up a special rig just so they can claim victory in their advertisements. Even when these company-sponsored drivers are put into another class, they find ways to get around it.

—Jeep was the first four-wheel drive vehicle of its type, and the name, "Jeep," has become this type of vehicle. Other companies haven't made much impact on the market, but competition has helped jeep more than hurt it.

—Generally, we have the run of the back country. Government officials and private people are friendly, even though a new law has closed fire breaks in mountain areas to back country drivers. Sometimes, conservation groups try to close our trip areas, but I think the 8,000 or so people who turn up for a meet shows jeeping's popularity. —Steve Stowe.

Steak Kabob

By Mildred Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

WHO'S IN THE MOOD FOR A barbecue picnic menu, festive enough for important guests, yet easy enough for a new bride to prepare? Without breaking the budget?

Try these ideas and shine as summer's most inventive hostess! For the main dish, have Picnic Pepper Steak Kabobs, using relatively inexpensive flank steak laced on skewers with chunks of crunchy green peppers. Let guests grill their own — it takes just minutes.

With it, serve a high and handsome potato salad mold. The work-saving secret is to prepare it with the ready-made potato salad available today in vacuum packed cans. You can add your own touches such as slices of olives, radishes or slivers of ham if desired. For dessert, provide a variety of ice cream and let folks help themselves to old-fashioned double-dip cones.

Modern vacuum packing methods have made it possible to can potato salad so that it comes to you safer and fresher than that available in refrigerated cartons. The salad is blended with creamy mayonnaise, celery, peppers, and seasonings. It can be kept on your pantry shelf, as no refrigeration is needed until after the can is opened.

PICNIC PEPPER STEAK KABOBS

Flank steak, approx. 2 lbs.
3 large green peppers

1/2 cup salad oil
2 cloves garlic, crushed
Juice of 1/2 lemon
1/4 cup red wine (or wine vinegar)
1/2 teas. rosemary, crushed

Cut flank steak across grain of meat into strips 1/4-inch wide and as long as the width of the steak. Immerse green peppers in boiling water and boil about 5 minutes. When cool, remove stem and seeds from peppers and cut in 1-inch squares. Blend remaining ingredients in large flat pan. Make "camel humps" of the steak strips and lace on skewers alternating meat and green pepper squares. Marinate 1 or 2 hours in the oil mixture. Grill till meat is desired doneness, over hot coals. 8 servings.

MOLDED POTATO SALAD

2 cans vacuum packed potato salad (15-oz. size)
1/2 cup of any of these to add your own "touch":
Sliced olives, minced ham, parsley, pickles, pimiento, sliced radishes, slivers of frankfurters, capers or chopped nuts
Blend potato salad with any of above if desired. Pack tightly in 1 quart round mold or bowl. Chill several hours. To unmold, run knife around edge and immerse briefly in warm water to edge of mold. Invert on platter, if necessary, shape with spatula and garnish as desired. 8 servings.

Recipe of the Week

MRS. E. HARLOW, 474 E. Plymouth St., Long Beach, is this week's winner of the $5 prize.

FRUIT MEAL IN A MELON

2 cantaloupes
2 cups fresh pineapple, bite size
1 cup seedless grapes
1 orange
1/4 cup honey
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 cup flaked coconut
1/4 cup dark rum
1 cup fresh berries of your choice
Sour cream or sherbet

Cut cantaloupes into halves and remove seeds. With melon ball cutter, cut out one row of balls around the edge of cavity. Mix these balls with pineapple and grapes. Grate orange rind over fruits.

Ream orange juice and add to honey, lemon juice, coconut and rum. Mix with above fruits and chill.

Set cantaloupe halves on frosty mint-decorated plates. Add berries to fruits and heap into cantaloupe. For salad, top with sour cream — for dessert use whipped cream or sherbet. Serves 4.

A THOROUGHLY INSPECTED PRODUCT

Not Toys—Playtools!

By Ellen Krec

Interior
BOUTIQUE

TO SOME he is Frank Armbruster, president and founder of Products of the Behavioral Sciences, Inc. To me he is the Pied Piper of the toy world.

The carpeted floor of the Ambassador Hotel and a table top in the dim light of the Brown Derby were the playground for an adult learning to use school tools. "Learning must be fun," says Armbruster. "I'm a perfect example of no-fun school... a junior college drop-out."

But the drop-out dropped into self-taught engineering which brought him a career in the aircraft industry which in turn was a step away from total involvement in teaching machines.

"Instant Insanity" was his first and best known toy-to-go-mad-with, produced by Parker Brothers. Sound psychological principles also were introduced into the swinging booming playtool business in Palo Alto, where a six-hour day is enforced.

"Help Stamp Out Battery Toys," is the firm's motto, and it appears on all the packages. A sincere effort to return children to participating in the games instead of spectating has created a series of high-IQ toys.

At first appearance the toys seem to be humorous. Consider the beautifully bound mind blower, "The Blank Book," with its pristine pages waiting for the creative writer to darken them with words. With more than 15,000 of these printless books on the market, the results have removed it from the non-book market to the status of your first edition.

Armbruster designed his first teaching machine in 1957 at UCLA where the pinball-type of learning was successful enough to delight a non-achiever replica of himself.

Based on the psychology of B. F. Skinner, Armbruster's toys depend on presentation of material, not the mechanism, and no threat of punishment for failure.

Playtools is the coined expression for the learning equipment... never called educational toys, since that casts a pall over playtime.

"Children's play also is their work, and they must have the proper tools," says Armbruster.

Personal learning problems are the foundation for many of the "tools."

The blank book resulted from too many years of the sanctuary book or the "never." Never write in a book, never turn down a page in a book... and always use book marks.

"Bali Buttons" is a sneaky approach to higher math, but the children who manage to win the game through the elimination process won't discover it until matrix algebra comes up.

The play purpose of the game is to separate four families of four persons each to remove the possibility of total destruction. It isn't easy for the well-over-four set!

Clear plastic notched circles are called "Deedle

Learning IS fun when you use playtools by Products of the Behavioral Sciences, Inc.

Bobbers" and are bagged with no instructions. The child's imagination is allowed to expand into unbounded creativity.

"The toy industry," says Armbruster, "has a responsibility to the public NOT to do the work for children."

Dr. Paul R. Hanna, professor emeritus at Stanford graduate school of education, introduced "Phoneme-Grapheme" which converts sounds into pictograms, then the alphabet which results in talking and spelling.

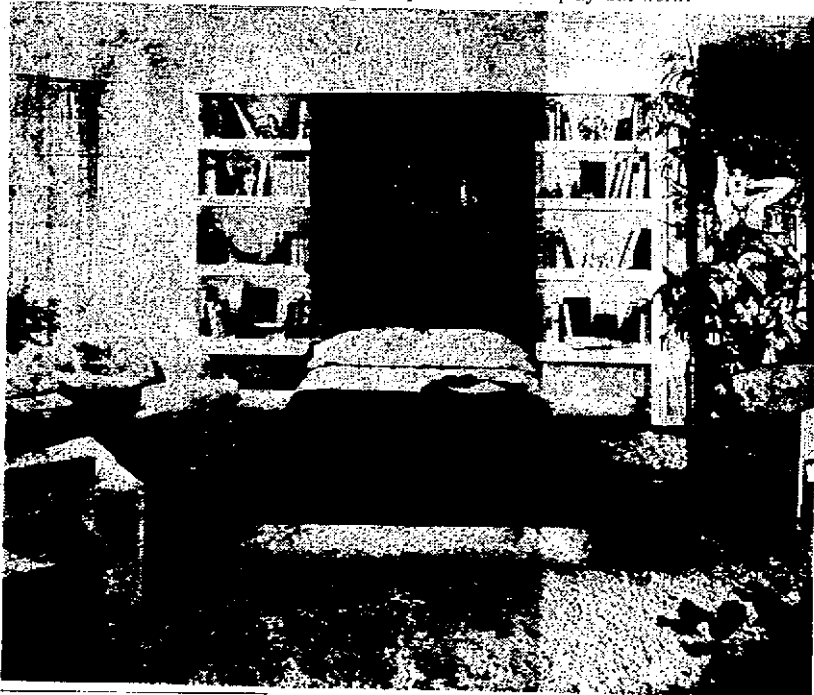

Hexagonal picture blocks

were the result of this particular teaching method and can be used to teach 200 words.

The toy designer recalls his days of toymaking from the garbage cans of Los Angeles when his creations contributed to his firm belief in participation.

Prescriptive toys are the future of the playtool field with a toy or game for every child at each with any problem.

The next time you visit a youngster at school and notice the abundance of toys remember they are not for play but work!

This stylish bachelor's pad, designed by John Elmo, A.I.D., is carpeted with Allied Chemical Corporation's new Source fiber. The carpet is a creation of Lees Carpets, and is a shimmering blue. The headboard of rough barn siding contrasts with the elegance of the rest of the decor. There is soft mood lighting.

Plexiglass furniture contrasts with deep soft pink of Source rug in this unusual room.

You Remember—

What's 'is Name—

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

No one in the cutthroat world of television seems to care what happens to stars or would-be stars of cancelled shows, some of whom have disappeared from sight.

For instance, what ever happened to Burt Ward who played Robin in the "Batman" series?

What of Steve Strimpel who was Stanley Steamish of "Mr. Terrific"?

Then there was what's-his-name, Jack Sheldon, of "Run, Buddy, Run."

And what do you hear of Cara Williams who had her own show as recently as 1964?

TELEVISION Hip-flops every season sends many a familiar face — even if the name doesn't strike a memorable note — into living room limbo.

Some survive as guest artists, movie actors or in the theater — the likes of Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, CARA ???

JACK ???

"Run, Buddy, Run"

Buddy Hackett and Bing Crosby.

Others jump nimbly from one series to another: Dennis Weaver, Tony Franciosa, Chuck Connors, Raymond Burr, Efrem Zimbalist, Eve Arden, and Gene Barry.

BUT an amazingly high number of television personalities are drenched with hoopla, given their own shows, and then disappear as if through a trap door. Networks, producers, studios and the public apparently have little compassion for the rejected.

Remember the series "Wendy and Me?" Who were the stars?

Have you seen much of Shirley Booth since "Hazel" left the air?

Patty Duke doesn't dominate the television sections of newspapers now that her series is fading in memory.

There was once a show, only four years ago, titled "Wackiest Ship in The Army." But how many viewers remember the cast — or the show.

Does the name Dwane Hickman strike a spark? It will if you can recall "Dobie Gillis." He was the clean-cut kid in the title role.

TIME WAS when every-

AS STANLEY BEAMISH... In 'Mr. Terrific'

one rushed home to watch Tennessee Ernie Ford, George Gobel and (sob) Robert Montgomery presiding over his own dramatic anthology hour.

Robert Cummings was a television standard for years. What has gone amiss with his magic?

There are others: Ozzie Nelson, Pat Carroll, Gale Storm, Perry Como, Loretta Young, Garry Moore and Durwood Kirby, Charles Farrell, Allen

Funt. You used to love them all, but you switched the dial too often on them.

However, viewers aren't all bad. They still adore Lassie and Ed Sullivan, both of whom must be loveable indeed!

A Gentle Squeeze

CAMERA MOTION is one of the most common causes of poor pictures, and one of the easiest to prevent. If everything is blurred in a snapshot, the reason usually is that the camera was unsteady when the shutter was tripped. (Sometimes, of course, a photographer deliberately blurs motion, but that is another subject.)

Often, it's the trigger finger that caused the problem. Punching the shutter release with a sudden jerk may save a second or two, but it's also guaranteed to make the camera wiggle at the crucial moment. Squeeze it gently and evenly in the manner taught in Lesson No. 1 on the rifle range. A camera will stay on target no better than a gun when the trigger is jerked.

Gripping the camera tightly, strange as it may seem, also adds to the problem. The harder you squeeze, the tenser your muscles will be, increasing the likelihood of a tremor. Hold the camera just firmly enough for safety to achieve maximum steadiness.

It's best to prop your elbows or, ideally, the camera itself on a firm support. If this is not available and you must shoot free-hand, jam your elbows against your ribs and hold your breath as you squeeze the trigger to keep the lens firmly on target.

The exposure time of even the simplest modern camera with no shutter adjustment can be at least doubled by the insertion of a used flasheube. This extends the range of light conditions under which good pictures can be made without flash, but it also increases the danger of getting blurred pictures because of camera wiggle as the lens will be open at least twice as long as normal. With more sophisticated equipment adjustable to extremely slow shutter speeds, the problem is multiplied.

The best preventive measure, obviously, is to use a firm support — a flat surface on which the camera can rest solidly is best — such as a table, a desk, a piano stool, or a buffet. Even outdoors one is often available. A brick wall or a picnic table will serve nicely.

Almost as good is a support that is supplemented by some manual assistance, such as a fence post or rail, a car fender or the back of a camp chair. With normal care, exposures of one or even two seconds can be made from such a base without moving the camera.

An excellent substitute for the cumbersome standard tripod is a "stirrup-pod," a steadying device you can slip into your pocket and that can be made inexpensively in a few minutes.

It's made from a length of non-stretch cord, such as plastic clothes line or picture wire, and a screw that fits into the camera's tripod socket, available at most photo stores. One end of the cord is attached to the screw. The other is made into a loop into which the photographer can slip his foot. The cord should be just long enough to be taut when the foot is in the "stirrup" and the camera is at operating level. Firm upward pressure on the camera will steady it to the point where fairly long exposures are feasible.

A wall, a door jamb, a post, a tree or any other solid vertical object also can be a useful brace for the photographer. If possible, rest the camera itself against the surface, with just enough horizontal pressure to keep it from slipping. If not, lean an arm — preferably the left one because the "trigger finger" is on the right — firmly against the wall as you shoot.

Even without such aids, motion-free pictures requiring long exposure can be made with a hand-held camera if the snapshotter makes the best of his body.

It is immaterial whether the camera is held horizontally or vertically.

By using the latter position, the photographer can steady the box against his forehead. If you wear glasses it's best to take them off before trying this maneuver — they're almost sure to get in the way.

Picture sharpness is only one of the benefits of the steady camera. Another lies in the fact that the snapshotter actually gets on film exactly what he composed in the viewfinder. Random camera movement at the last moment can put essential elements clear out of the picture or cause an objectionable tilt. Composition is an essential element of good pictures — preserve it by using the best method available to steady the camera.

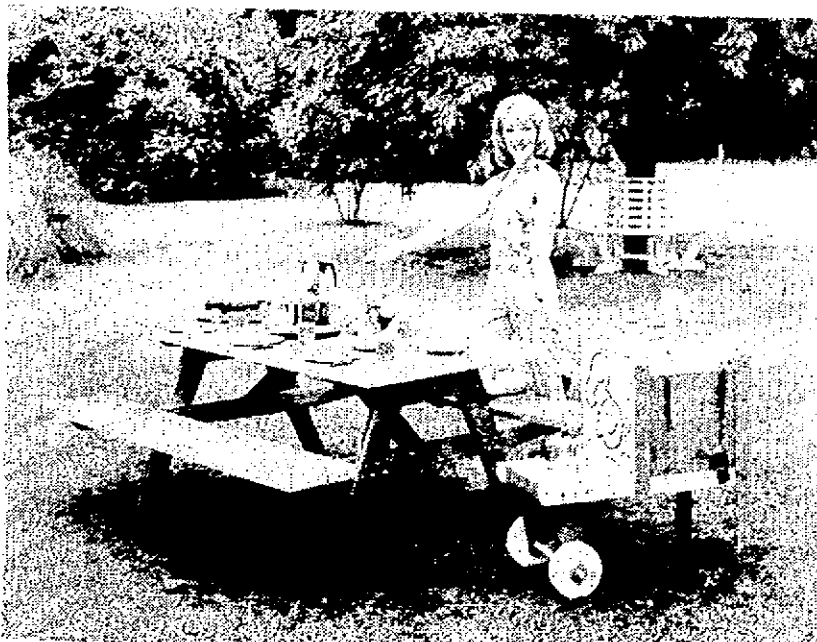

To ruin a picture with camera movement is tragic with a subject like this.

WORKSHOP

For Outdoor Gourmets, a Table and Cart

By Steve Ellingson

Entertaining made easy.

THERE'S a certain carelessness about outdoor living that appeals to everyone. No matter whether you call it a patio, terrace, garden or outdoor living room this is one area that's always synonymous with contentment and pleasure. The mere fact that you are outdoors under the sun or stars and near growing things makes troubles fall away and cares lessen.

Then too, outdoor dinner parties have become fashionable. With a little equipment, it's possible to bring indoor grace and variety to the great outdoors. Entertaining outdoors is easy because it's casual, comfortable and carefree. Furthermore, it lessens Mother's work and delights the youngsters as well as adults.

To get the most out of your open air dining room it helps to have some strong yet good looking furniture. The table and benches shown here with actress Jo Anne Loren will withstand all kinds of weather and hard use and will last a lifetime. It has a rugged appearance just as all outdoor furniture should have. The serving cart saves countless trips back-and-forth to the kitchen. The cart may be used for serving cool drinks as well as food. Its removable top doubles as a serving tray and the enclosed compartment holds all sorts of pots and pans as well as dinnerware.

Both the table and cart are easily built when you use the full-size pattern. Even if you are an amateur, you can undertake these projects with success. You need only trace the parts on wood, then saw them out and put them together. Inexpensive, too, when you do-it-yourself.

To obtain the full-size table and benches pattern number 312 for $1 (add 25¢ per pattern for airmail delivery), and the serving cart pattern number 204 for $1, send currency, check or money order to:

Poet as Correspondent

SELECTED LETTERS OF E. E. CUMMINGS.
Edited by F. W. DuPre and George Stade. Harcourt, Brace and World, $8.95.
When he was 5, the future poet wrote his grand-mother (on Nov. 27, 1899):

I AM SORRY
DEAR NANA
BUT I WILL BE A GOOD BOY

He was already, although unconscious of it, somewhat of a poet, but, he it noted, instead of the famous lower casing, young Estlin (for that was his name) Cummings used only capitals.

Less than a year later, writing his mother, he had worked toward a mixed style:

MOTHER DEAR I-AM VERY SORRY YOU
HAVE THE BACKACHE MOTHER DEAR. I-LOVE LOVE
YOU VERY MUCH.

One of the best books to come out of World War I was Cummings' "The Enormous Room," in which he wrote of his experiences on ambulance duty. Cummings' 1917 letters to his mother and father vividly recount those experiences, as well as his unjustified imprisonment by the French.

Cummings, in the 1920s-1930s, was an inveterate traveler, and his journeys in Spain, Italy, France, Tunisia, Greece and the Soviet Union brought forth some of his most interesting letters.

Cummings wrote one of the most perceptive and honest books on the USSR ("Kimi") and was never to be a stooge of the Communists. He was never to be anybody's stooge.

He writes his mother of a 1920 May Day in New York:

"Cops. Bulls. Stool Pigeons. Fixers, etc. etc., lined 5th Avenue in preparation for the 'Vast Red Plot' fostered for public consumption by that charming person and protégé of Wilson—Mr. Palmer (Wilson's attorney general, notoriously high-handed with liberals and radicals). Not only that—the government of this great city had a parade of all patriots—taxi drivers, tough guys, gangs, parochial school boys, down the Avenue to prevent the granting of a parade-permit to any 'Reds' who might want to march up it."

For two score years Cummings lived at 4 Patchin Place, New York, and from there went forth letters to such friends as Ezra Pound, John Peale Bishop, Dos Passos, William Carlos Williams, Archibald Mac Leish, Allen Tate, letters with all the idiosyncracies of his poetry, penetrating and witty observations on life, literature, and politics.

And Try Not to Miss...

THE SAVAGE SHIP. By Millen Brand. Crown, $6.95.

The author of the widely acclaimed novel "The Outward Room" writes in "The Savage Ship" about a great psychoanalyst, Dr. John Marks, and three critical years in his career. He cures Jimmy Cady, dying of catatonic excitement, and wages a life and death struggle with the schizophrenia of the mute Marta.

SARAH'S COTTAGE. By D. E. Stevenson. Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $5.95.

Those who enjoyed "Sarah Morris Remembers" will be glad to know of its sequel, "Sarah's Cottage," in which Sarah and her new husband are confronted with the problems and joys of raising the unwanted young daughter of Sarah's rich sister. The story is set in the Scottish highlands.

THE SINGLE GIRL'S GUIDE TO LIVING IN THE CITY. By Gwen Cummings. Association Press, $4.95.

Amusingly but frankly, Gwen Cummings covers all the challenges that beset today's single girl—on the job, at home, with a roommate, money, safety, appearance, personality, budget, wardrobe, etc.

Death Merchants

THE WAR BUSINESS. By George Thayer. Simon and Schuster, $6.95.

This is a startling revelation on the cold-blooded, widespread international trade in war materials, now running to some $5 billion a year.

Thayer has detailed researched findings of politics, financing, behind the scenes secrets and personalities of the business of death and destruction. He has raised questions that have caused much comment from on high. On the jacket, Sen. William Fulbright writes: "I would hope that... book receives widespread attention. The international traffic in arms, and the consequences... are obscure to the public. I trust that... the book will acquaint the public with one of the most serious of all international problems."

The book raises a number of important questions, the most important of which concerns the extent to which the American public has the right to be informed about the manner in which its government provides other countries with massive quantities of modern weapons, from rifles to missiles and jet fighters.

In the past 24 years, the United States has pumped $50 billion worth of arms into the world market. Communist countries have shipped approximately $7 billion in arms since 1955.

The sheer madness of this practice was prominently in evidence in the Israeli-Arab war when both sides were using identical arms... mostly made in U.S.A. — Bill Shelton.

Hammett Revival

DASHIELL HAMMETT: A Casebook. By William F. Nolan. McNally and Lofton, $6.95.

Reviewed by Prof. David Peck, English Department, California State College at Long Beach.

Dashiell Hammett was one of the most influential writers of the past half century. Creator of Nick Charles ("The Thin Man"), Sam Spade ("The Maltese Falcon"), and the "Fat Man" radio series, Hammett pioneered the "hard-boiled" school of realistic fiction in the Twenties and Thirties and influenced American writers as diverse as Hemingway and Mickey Spillane.

Nolan's casebook is the first full-length study in what promises to be a major revival of interest in Hammett, and as a sketchy introduction to the writer it is adequate. (It is most valuable for its 50-page checklist of Hammett's work in radio and film scripts, magazine fiction and novels—the first complete Hammett bibliography of this kind.) But more serious fans of Hammett should wait for the memoirs of Lillian Hellman, scheduled for publication later this year.

Companion to Hammett for 25 years (he died in 1961) and executor of his estate, Miss Hellman possesses a number of unpublished Hammett papers and manuscripts. This material, coupled with her autobiography, will serve to fill out our knowledge of this neglected pioneer in American fiction.

Patriot's Youth

PATRICK HENRY: Patriot in the Making. By Robert Douthat Meade. Lippincott, $10.

Patrick Henry was more than a slogan—"Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death." As orator, he was an early-day Winston Churchill whose gifts made men brave in the face of almost insuperable difficulties. He was five times Virginia's governor. He was one of the men Washington deemed indispensable.

In "Patrick Henry: Patriot in the Making," we travel with historian Robert Douthat Meade on the road to Henry's greatness, from boyhood and youth, to Henry at the First Continental Congress in 1774.

We meet him as husband and father, as lawyer, as a leader of the restless Colonials as he introduces the Stamp Act resolutions.

In this, and a second volume, "Patrick Henry: Practical Revolutionary," legend is winnowed from fact. — N.H.

The Decline and Fall of Jive Talk

By ROBERT MUSEL
By United Press

Anyone who is uptight and wants to do his thing will have to get down to the nitty gritty without the aid of Cab Calloway.

Cab is alive and well and appearing as an actor on television and Broadway but those who use the flabby cliches of the day (like the above) to say so are liable to be put down by the master.

Long before this generation had its first hangup Cab was helping compile the "Hepster's Dictionary", a reference book of the jive talk popular in the era of the big bands when his fame as maestro, singer and composer was international.

AS CAB happily recalled it those were the torrid '30's when "solid" gave "okay" a lot of competition and cats who dug what was cooking were on the beam. Some jive words and phrases are still around — pot, for instance — but only an optimist would predict longevity for the verbalisms now beating the gums (as Cab might say) of the young.

Cab plays the angel Gabriel in the NBC-TV "Hall of Fame" production of "The Littlest Angel", an original musical based on Charles Tazewell's Christmas story. To take the role he did a little moonlighting on his featured role in the Broadway musical "Hello Dolly."

"The Littlest Angel" will be broadcast the night

CAB CALLOWAY

of Dec. 6 which the network insists is the holiday season. Others might think they were rushing it a bit but Christmas programs are often careless of time — this one was taped in February with the tinsel and wrappings of the last celebration scarcely down the incinerator.

CAB WAS considered pretty far out in his day with his zoot suits and bell-bottomed trousers (now back in style) and he tries to understand youth and its music and keep up with the hippy talk. He is, of course, the distinguished writer of such standard songs as "Minnie The Moocher," "Ole Man Mose is Dead," "St. James Infirmary" and "The Jumping Jive" among others.

"I like The Beatles," he said, "but not the kids who try to hide lack of talent by throwing 'baby' into a song when they find nothing else to say. I used 'Hi-Di-Hi' and 'Ho-Di-Ho' but only for rhythm. The rest of the lyrics made sense. It's the same with kids sayings—one day they're fresh, the next day stale. No staying power like 'jive'."

It was time to go and I extended my hand palm upwards.

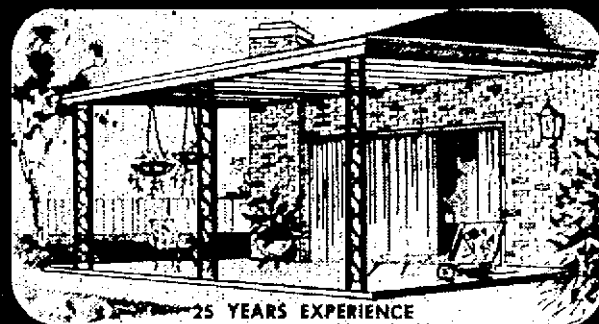

"Slap some skin," I said.

Cab completed the nostalgic ritual by briefly touching palms.

"Ah," he sighed, "they don't make cliches like that any more."

(4), 8:30 p.m. — There's a top British-flavored supporting cast in this one, as Maurice Evans, Honor Blackman and Brian Bedford join Gene Barry in a London-based story in which Howard and a number of other publishers are being sued for libel by a young British race driver. Glenn suspects collusion when he learns the plaintiff has been dating his pretty attorney while she pretends to be in love with another.

Millions of families are taking big financial risks they don't know about Are you?

A national survey recently revealed the following two startling facts. If either one applies to you, you are risking financial ruin:

1. Two-thirds of all the families in the United States are not protected by insurance against theft... loss of personal property... or liability for injury to another person.

2. One-third of all American families do not have insurance on their furniture and other household possessions (even though some have insurance on their homes).

To be sure you are sufficiently protected against fire, accident, vandalism, and other hazards, see an independent insurance agent.

As your local independent agents we are pledged to serve you first. We select the best policies for you from those offered by several competing companies. And when you have a loss, we'll help you get your claim settled quickly, fairly, without red tape.

To find out how we can take the big worries out of insurance for you, call on us any time. Just look for this seal.

The Independent Insurance Agents Association of Long Beach includes 80 agencies with 130 licensed agents to serve you. For a list of members see the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory under the heading "Independent Insurance Agents Association of Long Beach," under the "insurance" classification.

'Drownproofing' Saves Persons in 'Drink'

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Editor

A QUICK RUNDOWN on a water-survival technique known as "drownproofing" is now available free.

The information is contained on a wallet card entitled "Safety Tips In, On, and Around the Water."

Dr. Richard E. Marland of the U.S. Public Health Service's injury control program, says this about the technique:

"Drownproofing uses simple aquatic skills to keep a person afloat—even in rough water—for a long period with a minimum expenditure of effort and energy.

"The technique enables a person to take advantage of his best floating position so that, with simple movements of arms and legs, he can breathe in an up-and-down bobbing action."

However, the skill needs to be taught by a trained person. Even so, the wallet card will be of benefit in the training period.

The card is offered free in quantities of up to 100, according to a report in Clinical Pediatrics, a medical journal. Write: Public Inquiries, National Center for Urban and Industrial Health, 222 East Central Parkway, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202.

AN ONLY CHILD is more prone to mental ills than is a youngster with brothers and sisters, according to a study of military recruits.

The study shows that psychiatric referrals at a Coast Guard training station included almost twice as many in the only child category as found among the recruit population.

Dr. Zebulon Taintor, a Buffalo, N. Y., psychiatrist, reports that an only child is more likely to be given a medical discharge from the service.

The findings are based on a study of psychiatric referrals at the Coast Guard Training Center, Cape May, N. J.

THE AMERICAN DENTAL Association's Council on Dental Materials and Devices has classified the Water Pik, an irrigating device for the mouth, as "acceptable." It calls the instrument effective aid to the toothbrush in a program of good oral hygiene.

A RELATIONSHIP among weather, high altitude and the ailment croup is described by a doctor who resides at an elevation of 7,500 feet.

Dr. Freeman F. Fowler of Idaho Springs, Colo., says that croup, a disorder marked by difficult breathing, is more likely to occur when the barometer is low (around 29.50) and when it is raining or snowing.

Most patients, he says, experience sudden onset about 2 to 4 a.m. The disorder can be severe. Dr. Fowler gives treatment details in the Journal of the American Medical Association (Vol. 208, No. 10, Page 1907).

A DOCTOR SAYS there's solid evidence that emotional factors play a causative role in the development of angina pectoris, a painful heart condition.

Dr. Kurt Wolff, associate professor of psychiatry at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, says several studies show that angina patients may have intense repressed hatred and strong guilt feelings.

Often there is an early competitive relationship with a much feared and envied parent, especially the father. This develops into a situation in which the patient drives himself compulsively. Even success produces no sense of gratification or relief from tension.

The report is in Geriatric Times, a medical newspaper.

SAYS A PSYCHIATRIST: "Patients know when they are dying. We don't know how they know, but they know."

Dr. Elizabeth Ross, assistant director of the psychiatric service at University of Chicago medical school, says that in view of this, well-meant words of false cheering hollow.

Evasive answers only irritate a person aware of the little time left to settle his affairs, she says. False reassurance is "phony," she adds.

The dying patient most resents what is known as the "conspiracy of silence." This begins when nurses avoid conversations, visitors sit around with nothing to say and physician visits become merely perfunctory. The patient experiences a sense of loneliness, rejection and abandonment.

A NEW STUDY shows why it's so difficult to arrive at a definition of what is obscene and what is not. Researchers at St. Louis University School of Medicine found that factors of education, occupation and income have a significant bearing on a person's judgment of what is obscene.

The report is in the American Journal of Psychiatry.

Pegboard Windows

SOMETIMES there is a small bare window in the house which the housewife would like to see transformed into something more attractive. Or it may be that there is a clubroom or one in a religious place of meeting which needs to be made more interesting to provide a quiet mood of restfulness.

You can use a square of pegboard to make an effective stained glass window. Buy a piece of the white pegboard cut the right size to cover your window, and affix it in place.

Such a board has ready-made holes, and into them put little pieces of glass or plastic such as are used in the making of the currently popular mosaic pictures.

Or if you do not want the small pieces of the pegboard, use a knife and cut larger squares or triangles in the pegboard, and either fill these larger shapes with assorted colors or leave them empty as places for the light to shine through in its own unfiltered state.

If you make such larger cut out spaces, at the edges use glue and put odd pieces of bright colored glass around the shape. This allows the light to filter through and reflect in interesting patterns.

As the clear light comes into the room through the pegboard stained glass window it will appear as a rainbow, reflecting against the colored wall of the room. The shades and shapes will vary as the light changes during the day.

This simple technique can transform the plain and possibly cracked glass window into something of real beauty. Watching the light change has its therapeutic value if there are invalids in the home, or the aged to whom it recalls the memory of lovely large windows seen in travel.

Early homes in America had such stained glass windows, and many which are now being removed from homes dismantled because of encroaching freeway growth are highly prized as collector items.

If such regular stained glass seems not in order, because of price or the need to move soon to another location, the making of a pegboard stained glass window can be a happy family project, and result in beauty at comparatively small cost to the budget.

Happy, Busy Bird Dogs

AT ONE TIME, almost all dogs were actively employed in some kind of work, and they were happier for it. Today, in our country, not a great many dogs do more than bid for points at dog shows, prove their ability to obey at obedience trials (and most enjoy this), or loiter around the house as companions.

For example, one does not see the Afghan Hound galloping, long tresses flying, after deer, or guarding flock and herds in the fields even though he was designed for such duties in his native home. Nor are Keeshonds riding barges and serving as "radar" in the fogs of U.S. waterways, although this was their original purpose in Holland. And who has heard of a St. Bernard in this country recently having his tranquil life interrupted to carry a cask of brandy through a blizzard, or of a Dachshund having to leave home base to dig up a badger?

In fact, only a handful of breeds have a trade. Some sheepdogs of various kinds keep lonely vigil with their masters. German Shepherd Dogs are guiding the blind, sniffing out "Pot," stopping thieves including those who try to go off with whole truckloads of cattle, and working with policemen in various cities. Golden Retrievers and Labrador Retrievers are also guiding the blind, and now and then a Doberman Pinscher or Alaskan Malamute serves the same purpose. Occasionally we hear of a Rottweiler pulling youngsters in carts or assisting police. There is still some use for sled dogs, but mostly in races, for snowmobiles are beginning to take their place even with Eskimos!

Red Water Rex, Pointer, won Purina's Top Field Trial Bird Dog in the U.S. award for 1968-1969 season. Trainer is D. H. Eaton.

Life is often active for the sporting breeds such as Pointers, Setters, Retrievers, Spaniels, and some Hounds. There are several hundred licensed field trials every year in our country. Most are specialized, with each breed put to its basic use. For example, Setters and Pointers find hidden game, and point it out. Spaniels work closer to their handlers, their purpose being to flush birds. Retrievers bring back fallen birds even from icy water. Beagles (hounds) are eager beavers on rabbit.

Most trainers start a young dog in the field by its 10th month. The young dog enjoys being out with an older, fully trained dog, running freely together. Since an older dog is not always available, obedience classes are utilized to help teach the dog. The field dog also likes to have some freedom of mind to develop on his own, and certainly he must consistently be steady to shoot.

The field dog needs lots of play, some friendly roughing. He is not to be considered a mechanical object. From my observations, the loved, trained field dog is busier than most other breeds, also the happiest. To keep busy is to keep happy. It's as simple as that.

The Kiddie Market

United Press International

The mind of a child seeks simple solutions. If there's somebody you don't like why not hit him on the head?

That's the sort of TV viewing the little darlings apparently hoped for and what they used to get in the days before the television code began to frown on gratuitous violence even in the cartoons of the rich Saturday morning kiddie market.

Children may not have much purchasing power individually but there are millions of them and behind nearly every child stands two indulgent parents (and perhaps four even more indulgent grandparents). So their likes and dislikes are and have been a matter of deep commercial concern to the networks.

THE GOOD news from Lawrence R. White, vice president of NBC-TV, is that children from four to 12 years of age have found an acceptable alternative to such delights as cartoon characters slammed, banged and walloped by other cartoon characters.

In fact the pioneering of the past season in stretching the "attention span" of the young with appeals to intelligence as well as emotion have, according to White, encouraged NBC to invest heavily in a lineup of children's shows that it thinks marks a new departure for the medium. It premieres Sept. 6.

"This is a big further step forward," White said. "Our new shows are better written with much more use of fantasy and imagination. One of them, H. R. Pufnstuf, is an adventure series devised by the famous puppeteers, Sid and Marty Krofft, that I really think is a work of genius."

"It's the story of a boy, played by Jack Wild, the Artful Dodger of the film, 'Oliver,' who sails off, to the living island. He meets witches, spiders, talking trees, mushrooms and so on — all played by humans inside astonishing costumes.

"WE CORNERED the market in midgets and dwarfs but there are ordinary sized people, too. All this unrolls with a degree of sophistication that we believe will appeal to older children as well. We're also giving the children seven one hour specials about the fabric of American life, a series of animal stories; a humorous but instructional series on the little things in daily life that we take for granted from pencils to tape recorders — a total of five new and three returning shows all in color."

White conceded it was difficult to know what children will accept though the fact they liked the comedy of "The Banana Splits," one of the returning shows, last season was a good pointer.

"The trouble with researching the tastes of children is that their degree of critical attitude is never negative," he said. "They say 'I like this but I like this better.' They rarely say 'I don't like this.' They're not as discriminating as they should be so for their own good the standards have to be imposed by adults. Then again parents don't say 'You should watch this' often enough. They are more apt to say 'You can't watch that.'"

White said NBC was not, of course, giving up cartoons, simply changing the content and emotional direction. One of the new cartoon shows, "Here Comes The Grunch" will be a fantasy adventure in the land of the gnome-like Grunch. Another, "The Pink Panther" is a detective-style cartoon based on the character developed for the titles of the Peter Sellers comedy of that name.

SPECIAL

BANANA SPLITS (4), 9:30 a.m. — In a special edition, the Banana Splits introduce leading characters of 5 new NBC series to debut next Saturday an ordinary SPECIAL (11), 9 p.m. — Canadian comedian John Barbour, who launches a regular Sunday series on Sept. 21, hosts a comedy hour with Kelly Leser, Meredith MacRae, Rip Taylor and Jackie Gayle. Musical background is by the Johnny Smale Quartet, with Bill Walker producing.

I Dreamed I Was Panting in My Slim and Trim Spa

By L. M. Donahue

With Cartoons by Robert Ahle

TO BE HONEST, I wasn't really dreaming. I just kept hoping it WAS a dream and that I'd wake up to find myself back home with a strawberry milkshake and a mushroom pizza. It was true about me being short of breath, though. I haven't panted like that since I crammed for the last stage breathing test in my natural childbirth classes.

But the most incredible part about the whole thing is that I was there at all — in a Spa I mean. Not too long ago I still thought SPA was a grammatical contraction (Where is pa? — 'Spa comin' home for dinner?).

I tell you, I found out in a hurry that the only contraction involved in a Spa was muscular. Now I've got muscles that haven't done an hour's work in 10 years, and you can bet that chocolate bar you've got taped to the underside of the ironing board that they weren't about to come out of retirement without painful protest. I was so stiff and sore after my first encounter with "stretch and bend" that I had to take two-hour liniment baths every four hours.

Why did I make myself

so miserable? Good question. Well, originally I had a choice. Either self-imposed physical suffering of diet and exercise or a mentally deteriorating guilt complex inflicted by a society more tolerant of obscenity than obesity. Basically lazy, devoid of will power and incompatible with pain, I decided to go with guilt. Figured I could pass the buck and blame my pudginess on my kids. The way I see it, if I can be held responsible for every one of their major or minor abnormalities, the least they can do is shoulder the burden of my figure imperfections. (After all, it only amounts to about 10 pounds apiece.)

You will note that I said "originally" I had a choice. That was before I won a month's free pass to this metropolitan fat farm. Now the only thing stronger than my compulsion to eat is my obsessive delight in getting something for nothing. I just had to take advantage of it.

I should have been suspicious when they asked me to wear leotards. Me in leotards is like a 25-pound tom turkey in a salami stocking. Reluctantly they settled for a sleeveless pup tent and bloomers. Since they also frowned on wearing masks to hide one's identity, I went in through the back door after dark.

I hadn't been inside five minutes when my allergy started acting up. First the palsied shaking — then the swelling . . . it happens every time I come within 10 feet of a scale. They weren't the least bit concerned about my discomfort, but were kind enough to blindfold me before they checked my weight.

Following that, I was ushered into the figure analyst. When it came to the question, "Bone Structure?" she stared at me so long I got the impression she suspected I'd been inflated and that there weren't any bones there at all. For a moment I feared she might suggest exploratory surgery, but she merely shrugged her shoulders and filled in the answer space with a large question mark.

It didn't help matters when I confessed to wearing two size "small" girdles — one for each leg. After that she shook her head a lot. Her final analysis was that my right earlobe was in fairly satisfactory condition. The rest of me she stamped "critical."

I might insert here that the most frightening things about the whole place were the mirrors — they were everywhere. I think their interior decorator was suffering from reflectionitis. Personally, I haven't had anything but "shoulder-up" mirrors in the house for ages. (There's no longer a need to check if my seams are straight and somebody always tells me if my ship's showing.)

Oh, I did make one exception. About five years ago there was a sale on full-length "seconds." It took me six hours but I finally found one with the flaw in just the right place. By standing sideways and bending forward at a 90-degree angle I could favorably repropose my image. Unfortunately the mirror was broken when the kids took it to use in the school carnival funhouse. Since then I've never quite had the stamina to go in search.

JACKIE BISSET: ACTRESS WITH SEX APPEAL

tion took place before our eyes."

Universal had gone to great trouble simulating an exact disaster, with technicians and experts in all fields supervising. Director Seaton gave quiet instructions to the actors. "React naturally when the explosion occurs. Follow the instructions of the stewardess, put on the oxygen masks when they descend and don't be slow about it. Grab them and put them on."

Dean Martin sauntered onto the set, putting on a wrist watch. He smiled nervously and shouted, "Say goodbye to my kids." Jackie talked quietly to Donna, who stood outside the balsa-wood door holding onto the handle. Dean walked into his place in the aisle.

"What's a little old lady like you doing in a place like this?" Dean asked Helen Hayes. Everybody laughed. The actors were trying not to appear nervous but there was tension. They pretended to read books, look at television or play cards. On each side of the camera stood a husky man holding an enormous air hose about the size of those used by firemen. Everybody at Universal studio (except the studio tours) was on the set expecting the worst.

After getting quiet on the set, Seaton suddenly yelled, "Action." It's impossible to record everything as it happened. First, the explosion blew off the lavatory door and Donna went down. Then, air blasts shot through the lurching plane (it was on rollers and began to rock). The passengers were flattened as the air hit them. Some tried to fight it, others fell with their head between their knees and not a sound could be heard except for the loud blasts of air. The plane was filled with floating objects, blankets, overcoats, hats, luggage, eyeglasses, playing-cards, newspapers, books as the oxygen masks automatically came down from the ceiling and the actors made mad grabs for them. Dean was struggling up from the floor where he had been prone and covered with flying blankets. Seaton yelled, "Cut."

Ross Hunter and Jackie dashed over to Donna, both screaming, "How are you?" Donna rose with a big smile and said, "Super." One actress began to cry hysterically, and Hunter put his arms around her while the rest of the actors were climbing out of the plane, some laughing, others obviously sorry they had gotten into the mess. Helen Hayes walked by and said, "A jack of spades landed on my shoulder. That must mean good luck." I asked the director if he was glad it was all over, and he shook his head, "All over? I wish you were right. All we saw was a sea of yellow blankets, they covered everything and everybody. The door didn't hit Donna right, only the handle came off in her hand. We'll have to do it again."

A universal groan went up from Universal Studio: "Oh no, not again." But already they had begun to fix up the plane and put back all the props and get rid of those yellow blankets.

"You want to stay and see it again?" asked Jackie. I thought otherwise and decided that one airline explosion in one day was enough for me. For actors the show must go on, but I'm chicken.

WOMEN SUFFER WITH BLADDER IRRITATION

Common Kidney or Bladder Irritations affect twice as many women as men, often causing tenderness and nervousness from frequent, burning, itching urination. Secondly, you may lose sleep and have headaches, backaches and feel older, tired, depressed. In such cases, CYSTEX usually brings relaxing comfort by curbing germs in acid urine, and easing pain. Get CYSTEX at drugists today.

What Your Name Means

By LA REINA RULE
Send your name to La Reina Rule, Post Office Box 64151, Los Angeles, Calif. 90064, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy. For reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Please explain CAUDILL. — E.C., Long Beach.

CAUDILL, English, was introduced in the 13th century as "Caud-well" portraying the forefather's property as being land-marked by a "cold spring."

MISS RULE: What is the source of D'AMICO? — C.D., Lakewood.

D'AMICO and DE AMICI, Italian, describe "sons of the friendly one." The De Amici shield has a wide red diagonal stripe crossing it. Above the stripe the background is gold; below it, silver.

MISS RULE: Would like the origin of WOJCIECHOWSKI. — B.W., Long Beach.

WOJCIECHOWSKI, Polish, deciphers as "from the property of descendants of the noble and brilliant one."

MISS RULE: We would like the origin of WARNER. — J.W., P.T., P.H., Long Beach; J.W., Garden Grove.

WARNER, English, had as one source the occupation "warrenere" describing "keeper of game preserves on a royal estate." Warner also began as the hero name Warin-Heri meaning "defending warrior." Robert Le Warner is in royal English records of 1272. The Warner armorial shield is gold, emblazoned with a red diagonal stripe placed between six red roses. Seth Warner, of English ancestry, was an officer in our Revolutionary War, 1775-1776.

MISS RULE: What is the background on MERRITT? — S.M., Long Beach.

MERRITT, English, was formed from a medieval Anglo-French baptismal name "Mer-et" meaning "young, famous one." The Merritt shield is covered with six alternating horizontal silver and black stripes, overlaid with a diagonal ermine band. Thomas Merritt, born in England in 1634, came to Massachusetts, where he married in 1658.

MISS RULE: Please identify the origin of HORN. — E.H., Long Beach, D.H., Los Alamitos. HORN, German, English, Dutch, represents an ancestor whose inn was trademarked by a pictured sign of a horn. In Holland Horn also began as a property location on a "horn" or "tongue of land" jutting into the sea. The German Horn shield from Westphalia is silver, decorated with a rampant gold-collared bear. The Dutch Van der Horn shield from Haarlem is red, crossed by a wavy blue and silver stripe framed by two narrow gold bands, placed between three silver stars.

MISS RULE: What is the origin of RAINWATER? — O.R., Torrance, J.R., Long Beach.

RAINWATER, Americanized German, originated as the warrior name "Ragin-Walthere" meaning "strong army-ruler."

MISS RULE: Please give the origin of GALAVIZ, GALVEZ. — A.G., Long Beach; R.T., Wilmington.

GALAVIZ and GALVEZ, Spanish, are derived from the ancient Gothic-Spanish "Galavez" meaning "son of the chanter or singer," as well as being based on "Gual-vez" meaning "son of the powerful one." The Galvez shield from Castile and Aragon is silver on the left half, emblazoned with two black wolves overlying a green tree. The shield's right half is also silver, decorated with three blue seashells indicating ancestral participation in the Crusades.

MISS RULE: Kindly give the origin of DUVAL. — R.P., Long Beach.

DUVAL, French, began in the Middle Ages as "Du Val," describing a family "from the valley." The Du Val shield from Normandy is silver, crossed by a diagonal red stripe.

of another and, besides, with improved manufacturing techniques flaws just aren't what they used to be.

But back to my visit to Intake Anonymous. Next I was put into a group of fellow consumers. (Immediately I decided that anyone under 150 pounds was a spy from some health food store and I avoided them.)

Our first stop was the carpeted and chandeliered torture room. I nearly fainted. You never saw so much agony in motion — chrome fingers mercilessly kneading human flesh . . . vibrating poundage wherever you looked . . . grunts . . . groans . . . heavy breathing. I'd have fled in panic except that my instant friend, Size 48, was blocking the doorway.

With trepidation I mounted a "going nowhere" bicycle and the attendant set the timer for two minutes. (She turned her back so I coasted for 118 seconds.) When they announced "sit-up" time I was certain I never would again. My heart was beating like a turned-on drummer in a rock group. But the pool was delightful. There's nothing like buoyancy to "think thin."

The steam room was something else — kind of a group therapy approach to offensive perspiration. The dry heat of the sauna room made me a little delirious. I kept seeing my waistline (which disappeared after my first pregnancy). I know it was a mirage but I've got to keep searching. Somewhere around a calorie corner or behind a pound dune I'll find it. I know it's there — I've got the X-rays to prove it.

Kitchen Korner Facts You Should Know About Contractors

by Robby Robertson

MR. KITCHEN'S REMODELING CENTER

Did you know that no matter how much or how little you pay for something, if it does not satisfactorily serve the purpose it was designed to do, it was a poor investment.

Did you know it is usually hard to really tell if a kitchen remodeler is telling you the true story of his company, or if he actually delivers what he contracts to do?

Did you know there is a way? Here it is:

BE SURE TO TOUR

A remodeling contractor must be doing from five to 15 kitchen jobs a month to be properly judged in this manner. Ask to take a tour of his last three or four completed jobs.

Remember, his last three — not three that he may choose

When on the tour ask these questions:

- Did the contractor help plan, design, and contract properly?
- Did contractor finish the job on schedule?
- Was the price fair and just?
- Did you get the quality and service you felt you deserved for the price?
- How long were you without kitchen facilities during job?
- Did you get an absolute lien-free job from the contractor?
- Would you build with him again if you had to do it over?
- Would you recommend him to me for my home improvement?

If the above questions are answered to your liking, feel satisfied that you are in good hands with this contractor. The fact that you, saw three recently-completed projects, talked with the satisfied homeowners, almost tells the story by itself.

REMEMBER TO ASK QUESTIONS!

Watch for this weekly series with helpful ideas on kitchen planning and design. If any questions come up in regard to your kitchen, feel free to contact MR. KITCHEN REMODELING CENTER, 1819 Redondo, Long Beach, call 557-5564 for free information.

By FRANK ANDERSON
(For Vacationing Todd Thomey)

PEPPY's is only a hop, skip and cool drive away across the Vincent Thomas Bridge. It's well worth the trip to 584 W. Ninth St., San Pedro.

If you plan to dine at Peppy's on a Friday or Saturday night, I would advise calling for reservations. The restaurant is so popular that a wait of up to an hour is common on weekends.

And if you do have to wait — as I did on a Saturday night — it's painless. The bar is comfortable, the refreshments are soothing, and the peanuts, popcorn and dips what one's appetite for what is to come.

I ordered the sea food combination for $3.95. It was a happy decision.

The meal opened with a pleasant-to-the-palate cup of lentil soup. A generous tossed salad followed quickly. Blue cheese dressing, croutons and pepper corns were staunch allies of the lettuce, and I lingered over the bowl — savoring every bite.

The arrival of the sea food combination was an event. The shrimp, oysters, scallops and done-to-a-filet were flanked by a baked potato and sauce auxillaries. I opted for the cheese-and-thives topping for the potato, which is a meal in itself.

Well filled and well satisfied, I was given a cook's tour by owner Peppy Pielago. The restaurant has two levels — the French Normandy room in which I ate and the upstairs Captain's Deck, which has a nautical theme. Entertainment is offered at the piano bar on the upper deck.

My eyes saw why Peppy's has been a 15-year success story. My palate confirmed the fact.

Q. I understand that a great deal of what Richard Nixon knows about communism was taught to him by a Catholic priest named Father Cronin. Can you tell us anything about Father Cronin? — Edward Amos, Worcester, Mass.

A. Father John F. Cronin, 60, of Glens Falls, N.Y., educated at Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass., and Catholic University in Washington, D.C., resides at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore. In the 1940's he was the confidant of an FBI agent named Ed Hummer. Father Cronin was in daily contact with agent Hummer during the Alger Hiss hearings. He passed on to Congressman Richard Nixon, the most important of Hummer's information.

In the process he and Nixon became good friends. From 1954-1960 Father Cronin did most of Nixon's speechwriting. They then parted on a friendly basis. Last summer Nixon ran into Father Cronin in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Father Cronin no longer advises or writes speeches for Nixon. He is busy with race relations for his church, not too long ago signed a statement disagreeing with the Pope on birth control.

Q. Is actor David Janssen dumping his wife for actress Rosemary Forsyth? — Roberta Glassman, Miami Beach, Fla.

A. Yes. His wife, Ellie Janssen, a former fashion model, has asked the court to appoint a receiver for Janssen's earnings and an estimated $1 million in community property acquired in their decade of marriage. In her divorce suit Mrs. Janssen charges her husband with spending much money on jewelry and clothes for Miss Forsyth.

Q. I have read that the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur used to keep a girl in Washington, D.C. If true, was his mistress well known? I read about it in The Nation. — E. T., Baltimore, Md.

A. The disclosure is true. MacArthur met an attractive young woman, a mixture of Scotch, Chinese, and Filipino, in Manila in 1928. Later he brought her to the States, put her up in an apartment at 1701 16th Street N.W. in Washington. Subsequently she lived in a rooming house on G Street, journeyed to Hollywood, where she worked as a bit player in films. Her relationship with the General was not well known.

Q. I know that everybody and his grandmother were invited to Cape Kennedy to see the moon launch of Apollo 11. Was Charles Lindbergh invited? Or was he lost in the shuffle? — Janine Messier, Orlando, Fla.

A. Lindbergh was there, registered at the Wakulla Apartments under the name, "Mister X." He even posed for photographers with Wernher von Braun.

Q. One of the greatest writers of crime detective stories is an American Negro named Chester Himes. A little dope, please, on this man. — Candy Davis Williams, Natchez, Miss.

A. Chester Himes, 60, was born in Missouri, son of two schoolteachers. He was expelled from Ohio State University for wenching and gambling. At 20 he was sentenced to 20 years for armed robbery, became a writer in jail. He was released after ten years, settled down in England. One of his best novels is an anti-white tract, If He Hollers Let Him Go.

Q. Does George Wallace of Alabama own Alabama freshman Senator James Allen? — E. L., Mobile, Ala.

Q. I understand that a great deal of what Richard Nixon knows about communism was taught to him by a Catholic priest named Father Cronin. Can you tell us anything about Father Cronin? — Edward Ames, Worcester, Mass.

A. Father John F. Cronin, 60, of Glens Falls, N.Y., educated at Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass., and Catholic University in Washington, D.C., resides at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore. In the 1940's he was the confidant of an FBI agent named Ed Hummer. Father Cronin was in daily contact with agent Hummer during the Alger Hiss hearings. He passed on to Congressman Richard Nixon the most important of Hummer's information.

In the process he and Nixon became good friends. From 1954-1960 Father Cronin did most of Nixon's speechwriting. They then parted on a friendly basis. Last summer Nixon ran into Father Cronin in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Father Cronin no longer advises or writes speeches for Nixon. He is busy with race relations for his church, not too long ago signed a statement disagreeing with the Pope on birth control.

Ex-Cons Join the Police Force

By Lloyd Shearer

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

What do you think of a police department which boasts among its members a wide assortment of ex-convicts—former thieves, dope addicts, prostitutes, forgers, the whole gamut of criminals?

In Los Angeles, the people and the police believe that ex-convicts can play an important and beneficial role in law enforcement, that no group knows as much about crime as ex-criminals.

Twenty men and four women who a few years ago were bitter enemies of the Los Angeles police are now their devoted colleagues.

These former felons advise rookie cops on basic underworld truths. They explain the secrets of successful thievery, why girls become prostitutes, where youngsters buy their dope. They reveal firsthand the inside story of crime.

More important, they move into the city's most depressed and poverty-ridden areas from which they themselves spring—the black and Mexican districts—and here they try incredibly hard to prevent young boys and girls from going wrong.

Because they themselves are members of minority groups and accepted as "one of us," they are most effective in reducing citizen hostility toward the police.

Such hostility is understandably high among non-whites, who often accuse the police of being unfair, corrupt, incompetent, and unsympathetic, and yet at the same time, demand zealous protection by police who are unwelcome in their community.

The unlikely alliance between cops and robbers in Los Angeles began in early 1968. Taking advantage of a federal program (Department of Labor—Concentrated Employment Program of New Careers) which finances organizations willing to hire "hard-core unemployed," the Police Department asked for a grant of $340,000.

When the federal government came across with the money, the police advertised for "community relations aides" at $2 per hour who met the following qualifications:

1. Twenty-two years or older.
2. Fifth-grade reading level.
3. Unemployed.
4. Family income below the poverty level.
5. No homosexuals.

Ex-convicts apply

Police Sgt. Lou Reiter, a graduate of UCLA and a major in political science who handled the first response, says: "You should have seen the crop of applicants we got. They were almost exclusively ex-cons. Of the first 20 we chose for the program, we had ten Negroes, eight Mexican-Americans, and two Anglos.

"Of these 20," he recalls, "18 were ex-convicts, with records for theft, assault, burglary, manslaughter, and attempted murder. Ten were also ex-heroin addicts, and one fellow, 30, had spent more than 16 years in jail."

The ex-cons didn't know what to expect from the police, and the police had little or no idea of how the men would react to training. Surprises were in store for both groups.

"On the third day," Reiter remembers, "one of our trainees held up a bank because he needed $35 for rent money. Another went back on heroin, a third died of a heart attack, a fourth simply disappeared, a fifth followed his Police Sgt. Lou Reiter, a graduate of UCLA and a major in political science who handled the first response, says: "You should have seen the crop of applicants we got. They were almost exclusively ex-cons. Of the first 20 we chose for the program, we had ten Negroes, eight Mexican-Americans, and two Anglos.

"Of these 20," he recalls, "18 were ex-convicts, with records for theft, assault, burglary, manslaughter, and attempted murder. Ten were also ex-heroin addicts, and one fellow, 30, had spent more than 16 years in jail."

The ex-cons didn't know what to expect from the police, and the police had little or no idea of how the men would react to training. Surprises were in store for both groups.

"On the third day," Reiter remembers, "one of our trainees held up a bank because he needed $35 for rent money. Another went back on heroin, a third died of a heart attack, a fourth simply disappeared, a fifth followed his wife back to Texas, and a sixth was jailed three times during his ten weeks of training."

What did the ex-cons learn in their ten weeks of training? They learned first that the Police Department had no intention of using them as informers or stool pigeons.

"What we plan to do with you men," one police official explained, "is to assign you to various police divisions and have you handle the public. We want you to go into the poorer districts of the city, to organize, recruit and register kids for various athletic programs.

"We want you to talk to student forums, to parents, to help the kids go straight. We want you to tell the people about the Police Department activities and services, that you and we are here to serve them. We want to improve our image. We want you to get idle kids off the street corners and into some meaningful work, to tell them what programs are open.

"You can tell us how burglars work, how criminals think. But we don't want any stooges. That's not your function. Once you inform on somebody in the community to which you're assigned, no one in that community will trust you. We're not going to use you in law enforcement, either. You're not going to be armed or charged with helping to make arrests. You'll be given a Los Angeles police civilian employee identification card with your photo on it. But you'll work in civilian clothes.

"After a year you'll be making $428 a month with chance for continued raises."

Civil service status

The first year of "The Community Relations Aides Program" has passed. It has proved so successful that the aides have been granted civil service status, and the project has been extended to include females.

Four women, all ex-dope addicts who once did "anything and everything" to feed their narcotics habit, all of them paroled from the rehabilitation center at Corona, Calif., are enrolled in the program.

Where formerly they feared the police, they now stride nonchalantly through the department, exchanging confidences with officers, but still always remembering what life was like on the other side of prison-bars.

They know how to empathize with the young, how to help teenaged girls resist the lure of heroin and prostitution, how to identify with the depressed, the downtrodden, the disappointed.

To talk, for example, to gentle, soft-voiced Terry Leon, 23, one would never imagine that she was a former heroin addict who only a few years ago had wallowed in the muck of degeneracy.

"To tell the truth," she confesses, "I was incorrigible as a kid. I went to seven different schools around Los Angeles Six members of a new class being trained by police as community relations aides. All have run afoul of the law at one time or another and it is felt that their own experiences will help in the job of preventing crime.

and got in trouble in every single one. Then when I was 15, I quit to get married. I married a 17-year-old boy. He was a truck driver.

"My father was also a truck driver. He came from Arizona. My mother worked as a waitress and she came from Texas. My folks never gave me much supervision as a girl. I started smoking cigarettes when I was 10.

On marijuana at 12

"By the time I was 12, I was on marijuana. I was dropping pills, ditching schools, staying out all night. That's pretty common routine for Mexican-American kids in East Los Angeles."

At 18, Terry had her third child, then was separated from her husband.

"I was stuck in the house with three kids," she explains. "I was depressed. Life seemed hopeless. I had no skill, no ambition. To cheer myself up, I had friends come over to my house. One time I found somebody 'fixing' in the bathroom. So I said to myself, 'I'm going to see what it's like. Why is everybody always getting loaded?'"

"So at first it was curiosity, just trying something to cure my depression. Heroin seemed to do the trick. So from my first fix I just kept fixing. To get the stuff I started living with this guy. He was dealing dope and I just hung on to him. Because he was living in my house and dealing from there, he used to turn me on for being his old lady, for supplying him with meat.

"One day my mother came over. I was loaded from dropping some reds (Seconal tablets) and when I went to the grocery store, she called the police. When I got back the officers were there and they brought me here to the glass house (police headquarters)."

Terry was sentenced to the California Rehabilitation Center where she had time to look back upon her life and realize that like other adolescents she had needed love, understanding, and supervision, but had been given none of these. She realized that for her, marriage and heroin had served as escape mechanisms. With the help of group therapy and individual willpower, she kicked the habit. But only for two years. A year ago she reverted to heroin. "But then I had the good sense to turn myself in."

Released five months ago, Terry went to friends and asked for a job. One of them told her about the Community Relations Aides Program at the Police Department. She applied and was taken.

Since then she has been attending remedial classes four times a week, learning and earning her way to a high school diploma. She lives in a suburb with her mother, says she is good with kids. "They open up with me. They admit to using drugs. They're begging for help. And I know that by showing interest in them, getting them involved in some project, that I can help them. What minority kids want most is a little hope, a little opportunity to share in things. They want to become part of the city and not to be treated as unwanted outsiders. They need a purpose for living."

A purpose in life

Don Roberts, a 29-year-old ex-thief who used to burgle three houses a day for five years to satisfy his heroin craving, says that he has found a purpose in life as a community relations aide.

"My purpose," he declares, "is to help people. I know a good deal about robbery so I advise people how to protect their property. I know something about kids, so I advise them how to avoid the pitfalls."

Roberts, from Bell Gardens, a low-income area of Los Angeles, started "popping pills" and "smoking the weed" when he was 15. "It seemed like the thing to do, so I did it."

Arrested for stealing tires, he was sent to Juvenile Hall "where I learned the most about crime. The older boys talked about what they had done and explained how to do it.

"When I got out I went to live with my sister and discovered that my brother-in-law was taking heroin. At 20, I was a full-fledged addict.

"From 1960 to 1965 I lived in half a garage. I didn't see or speak to anybody. I lived in this dirty, cramped garage next to a car with only one goal—my next fix. I was an animal. I lived by stealing. When the police finally caught me, I honestly felt relief."

Turns himself in

Sent to the rehabilitation center at Corona, Roberts resolved to go straight when he was released. "My resolve lasted five hours. I was taking heroin before the day was out. I knew I was hooked, so I turned myself in."

While he was serving time, Don discovered that his younger sister had started taking dope. He was so shocked that he began to assess seriously what heroin had done to him and what it would also do to his sister.

He was determined to make an honest living upon his second release. "But it wasn't easy. Once you have a felony on your record, and I had 20 on mine, hardly anyone will give you a job, rent you an apartment, extend even a buck's worth of credit. That's why this community relations program for ex-cons is such a break.

"My parole officer told me about it. And well, it's made a new man of me. It's given me self-respect, decency, authority, a regular salary, the feeling of belonging to society, of not being an outcast.

"I not only go around lecturing to kids, but I talk to the class of police rookies, explaining how things are different on the other side of the tracks and how they can best operate in those areas. I also explain the various methods of housebreaking and burglary."

Working as a community relations aide is not exactly a picnic for Roberts. He's achieved a new stability but his old pals in the neighborhood ostracize him for going straight, and while the police appreciate him, they don't necessarily embrace him.

Letter from a girl

His major satisfaction, he says, comes from helping the young. Following one of his lectures in a Los Angeles high school, he received a letter from a young girl: "You were able to convince a friend of mine to stop taking drugs, something I hadn't been able to do. Thank you."

According to Roberts, "kids will listen to a police officer when he talks about crime prevention, but they don't really hear. When an ex-con like myself talks, they not only listen and hear, but later they ask questions. That's when I know I'm doing something good."

On marijuana at 12

"By the time I was 12, I was on marijuana. I was dropping pills, ditching schools, staying out all night. That's pretty common routine for Mexican-American kids in East Los Angeles."

At 18, Terry had her third child, then was separated from her husband.

"I was stuck in the house with three kids," she explains. "I was depressed. Life seemed hopeless. I had no skill, no ambition. To cheer myself up, I had friends come over to my house. One time I found somebody 'fixing' in the bathroom. So I said to myself, 'I'm going to see what it's like. Why is everybody always getting loaded?'"

"So at first it was curiosity, just trying something to cure my depression. Heroin seemed to do the trick. So from my first fix I just kept fixing. To get the stuff I started living with this guy. He was dealing dope and I just hung on to him. Because he was living in my house and dealing from there, he used to turn me on for being his old lady, for supplying him with meat."

"One day my mother came over. I was loaded from dropping some reds (Seconal tablets) and when I went to the grocery store, she called the police. When I got back the officers were there and they brought me here to the glass house (police headquarters)."

Terry was sentenced to the California Rehabilitation Center where she had time to look back upon her life and realize that like other adolescents she had needed love, understanding, and supervision, but had been given none of these. She realized that for her, marriage and heroin had served as escape mechanisms. With the help of group therapy and individual willpower, she kicked the habit. But only for two years. A year ago she reverted to heroin. "But then I had the good sense to turn myself in."

Released five months ago, Terry went to friends and asked for a job. One of them told her about the Community Relations Aides Program at the Police Department. She applied and was taken.

Since then she has been attending remedial classes four times a week, learning and earning her way to a high school diploma. She lives in a suburb with her mother, says she is good with kids. "They open up with me. They admit to using drugs. They're begging for help. And I know that by showing interest in them, getting them involved in some project, that I can help them. What minority kids want most is a little hope, a little opportunity to share in things. They want to become part of the city and not to be treated as unwanted outsiders. They need a purpose for living."

A purpose in life

Don Roberts, a 29-year-old ex-thief who used to burgle three houses a day for five years to satisfy his heroin craving, says that he has found a purpose in life as a community relations aide.

"My purpose," he declares, "is to help people. I know a good deal about robbery so I advise people how to protect their property. I know something about kids, so I advise them how to avoid the pitfalls."

Roberts, from Bell Gardens, a low-income area of Los Angeles, started "popping pills" and "smoking the weed" when he was 15. "It seemed like the thing to do, so I did it."

Arrested for stealing tires, he was sent to Juvenile Hall "where I learned the most about crime. The older boys talked about what they had done and explained how to do it.

"When I got out I went to live with my sister and discovered that my brother-in-law was taking heroin. At 20, I was a full-fledged addict."

"From 1960 to 1965 I lived in half a garage. I didn't see or speak to anybody. I lived in this dirty, cramped garage next to a car with only one goal—my next fix. I was an animal. I lived by stealing. When the police finally caught me, I honestly felt relief."

Turns himself in

Sent to the rehabilitation center at Corona, Roberts resolved to go straight when he was released. "My resolve lasted five hours. I was taking heroin before the day was out. I knew I was hooked, so I turned myself in."

While he was serving time, Don discovered that his younger sister had started taking dope. He was so shocked that he began to assess seriously what heroin had done to him and what it would also do to his sister.

He was determined to make an honest living upon his second release. "But it wasn't easy. Once you have a felony on your record, and I had 20 on mine, hardly anyone will give you a job, rent you an apartment, extend even a buck's worth of credit. That's why this community relations program for ex-cons is such a break."

"My parole officer told me about it. And well, it's made a new man of me. It's given me self-respect, decency, authority, a regular salary, the feeling of belonging to society, of not being an outcast."

"I not only go around lecturing to kids, but I talk to the class of police rookies, explaining how things are different on the other side of the tracks and how they can best operate in those areas. I also explain the various methods of housebreaking and burglary."

Working as a community relations aide is not exactly a picnic for Roberts. He's achieved a new stability but his old pals in the neighborhood ostracize him for going straight, and while the police appreciate him, they don't necessarily embrace him.

Letter from a girl

His major satisfaction, he says, comes from helping the young. Following one of his lectures in a Los Angeles high school, he received a letter from a young girl: "You were able to convince a friend of mine to stop taking drugs, something I hadn't been able to do. Thank you."

According to Roberts, "kids will listen to a police officer when he talks about crime prevention, but they don't really hear. When an ex-con like myself talks, they not only listen and hear, but later they ask questions. That's when I know I'm doing something good."

Just as in grandfather's day: despite the invention of electronic mail sorters, most work is still done by hand.

Most Americans take the U.S. Post Office for granted. To them it's the "old reliable" that's always delivered the mail and always will. But some of the men who know it best hold quite a different view. They see it as a monumental mess that violates all the rules of common sense management. They contend that the Post Office is an authentic miracle because it somehow gets a job done despite built-in handicaps that would topple any other organization.

Consider your Post Office:

- It's one of the world's biggest businesses by almost any measure. The postal payroll of 740,000 workers is exceeded only by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. which employs 760,000. Only General Motors takes in more money each year.
- The average American sends and receives a total of 420 letters a year. The Post Office handles 84 billion pieces of mail annually.
- It costs each U.S. taxpayer an average of $15 a year—on top of the money he spends for stamps—to meet the Post Office's average yearly deficit of more than $1 billion.
- Mail sorters still pitch letters manually into bins with small partitions—just as designed by Benjamin Franklin.
- After a lifetime of service, 63 percent of postal employees retire from the job they started with. This lack of incentive accounts largely for the 23 percent yearly turnover.
- This vast and vitally necessary organization—one that cries out for the very best managerial techniques—is largely at the mercy of partisan politics.

It's against this background that President Nixon has sent to Congress legislation entitled the "Postal Service Act of 1969" that would entirely reorganize our archaic postal system. The President calls for removal of the Post Office from the Cabinet and creation of a self-supporting, government-owned corporation to operate the postal service. There would be both financing for major improvements and a fair and orderly procedure for changing postal rates. Best of all, the new corporation—to be known as the United States Postal Service—would be free of political party hacks and could make fast, objective decisions regarding the overhauling and operation of our far-flung postal machinery.

Citizens Committee

The leading private group supporting the President's proposal is the Citizens Committee for Postal Reform. Its co-chairmen are two men very knowledgeable about the dismal influence of politics on the Post Office. They are former Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, who also was Democratic national chairman, and Thruston B. Morton, former Republican national chairman, who's served on the Post Office Committee in both House and Senate.

O'Brien recalls: "When I became Postmaster General in 1965 I was confident that once I cleared out the deadwood and began to apply sound management principles, I could provide the kind of mail service that our citizens demand. I was in for a rude awakening. There was very little deadwood in personnel but whenever I tried to apply sound management principles, there was usually some antiquated law that prevented me from doing so."

And Morton contends: "There are two overriding reasons why the Post Office should be removed from the Cabinet and restructured as an independent government agency. The first is that the Post Office poses headaches of the first magnitude for the members of Congress, and the second is that the Post Office is just a plain, badly run business."

"The Post Office is the most outstanding example in this country of the way not to run a business," Morton argues. "It is losing more than a billion dollars a year; most of its equipment is anywhere from 30 to 100 years old, without any meaningful plans or funds for modernization; there is absolutely no control over costs or selling prices; and management is not allowed to deal with the unions in any important matters. Some say it is mismanaged. I say under the present system it can't be managed."

Morton compares the Post Office's dismal record with the independent government agency, the Tennessee Valley Authority. In the ten years ended June 30, 1968, the TVA paid $434 million into the U.S. Treasury while receiving federal appropriations of $405 million. Morton notes that by law one TVA activity, the electric power program, must pay its own way, which it does and on top of that pays more than $60 million a year into the Treasury from power revenues.

There is no other communications system comparable to the Post Office. Its proud tradition is that the mail gets through—regardless—and it travels by everything from superjet to dog sled. But its "boss," Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, operates under handicaps inconceivable in any business.

Blount doesn't have the right to set the selling price of the product. Congress sets the postal rates. Blount is responsible for the performance of 740,000 employees. But he can't make the decision as to whether they merit a raise. Congress fixes wages, too.

Blount feels strongly that a TVA concept for the Post Office would vastly improve working conditions and that the Postal Service Act would give rank-and-file employees for the first time a "real voice" in bargaining on bread-and-butter issues like wages, hours and conditions of employment.

The postal corporation envisioned by President Nixon would be administered by a nine-man board of directors. Seven would be chosen by the President without regard to political affiliation, and with the advice and consent of the Senate. These seven would name a full-time postal manager and also his second in command to fill out the board. All employees would keep civil service annuity rights, veterans preferences and other benefits.

Two years ago O'Brien saw in our postal system "a race to catastrophe." Today he is urgent in supporting top-to-bottom reorganization. "For the time is approaching," says O'Brien, "when the postal system will one day just go to pieces—all at once—just like the old 'one-hoss shay.'"

What can you as one citizen do to support a complete overhaul of your Post Office? You can write to your Congressman. You can write—or even send a donation—to the Citizens Committee for Postal Reform, Suite 206, 1725 I St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. And maybe you had best hurry before the "one-hoss shay" does collapse.

I found a crazy, lazy way to reduce!

I call it the world's largest clothes pin. The doctor who invented it calls it the Effortless Exerciser. Either way it does wonders to beautify your figure—has already produced waist loss of up to 3 inches...hip loss of up to 5 inches, in just two effortless minutes a day, and without a diet!

Here's how:

A Doctor Shows You How To Squeeze Yourself Slim!

You see, a prominent New York physician not only listened to women complain about their figure problems—but he actually did something about it.

He perfected an ingeniously simple method to develop a beautiful figure at any age—and then keep it that way permanently. He named it the Effortless Exerciser. It firms and tightens hips, thighs, waist and arms until you're slim and young again. And then it builds, builds, and builds your own natural vitality and strength to keep you that way for years to come.

And all this in just two minutes a day! All this with a marvelous little device that's so easy, gentle, lightweight, and completely safe to use that a child can open and close it without effort!

How does it work? By condensing half an hour's exercise into one thrilling minute for the top of your figure—and then condensing half an hour's exercise into one thrilling minute for the bottom of your figure!

Like this:

The One Minute Exercise For Your Body From The Waist Up:

To use this marvelous, body-slimming Clothes Pin, all you do is unsnap the handles. Automatically, by itself, the Effortless Exerciser starts to spread apart. Now hold it straight out from your shoulders (at arm's length). Then simply bring the handles together until your palms touch. Let it open again. And repeat.

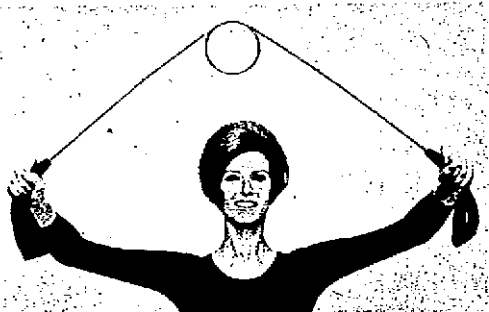

That's all there is to it! Notice how your shoulders automatically straighten back. How they automatically raise up your bust... automatically pull in your midriff and tummy—tightening and strengthening them.

Notice especially how this marvelous oversized clothes pin automatically straightens your spine, and tucks in your derrière.

Yes, in just 30 effortless strokes—60 effortless seconds—your entire figure is put back into the proper body alignment, just as nature intended it to be. You are standing close to an inch taller. The original fatigue that made you slump like a sack of potatoes has been replaced by new natural strength and vitality—so that you'll be standing, sitting and relaxing correctly, twenty-four hours a day, without your even realizing it.

Now For The Second Minute Of Exercise, For The Waist Down.

Now simply slip your feet through the Effortless Exerciser's straps. Repeat the same easy half-circle—but this time with your feet. Notice how your tummy is once again automatically flattened to a pancake—automatically tightened, strengthened, firmed with natural control. Notice how your calves, thighs, and derrière tighten up automatically, at exactly that same instant.

YOURS FREE!

Now stand up once again, and look at yourself in a full-length mirror! The improvement may be so dramatic that it may actually take your breath away! One look at yourself and you will realize why doctors have received startling changes in figure proportions like these—using nothing more than this amazing device.

Read These Medical Test Results For Yourself.

Yes, in a six weeks' documented test, fifteen people using this Effortless Exerciser for only two minutes a day, attained waist and hip loss alone of:

Average loss of waist size (no diet): 1½ inches.

Maximum loss of waist size (no diet): 3 inches.

Average loss of hip size (no diet): 1½ inches.

Maximum loss in hip size (no diet): 5 inches.

Take out your measuring tape right now, and picture how you could look with that kind of waist loss—and without a diet! This is impressive! A thrill! But there is still more.

Now One Wonderful Improvement Automatically Leads To Another.

Let's discuss the most important benefit first:

Much of the fat and flab on your body is caused by the loss of nature's natural, hidden muscle control. (Don't confuse this hidden control with a man's athletic muscles; a woman's hidden muscles are below the surface; you don't see them, but they naturally and automatically keep your body in beautiful shape).

What the Effortless Exerciser really does—and why its figure-molding results are so incredibly dramatic—is strengthen these hidden figure-control muscles. So that pushed-out flab disappears; and vulnerable areas look pounds lighter, even though you haven't burned off a single ounce of them with a diet.

Other advantages: The Effortless Exerciser helps your blood flow strong and hard again...cleanses your circulation...tones vital heart muscles...pours new oxygen into your blood stream. Thus, overnight, your complexion becomes clearer. You have more energy—just like a healthy, active teenager.

And, best of all—every second with it is FUN! It's fun to be young with the Effortless Exerciser! To feel young again! To look young again!

Try It At Our Risk.

But don't take my word for it. The only way to prove the value of this Effortless Exerciser is to try it yourself, at our risk, for a full month.

If you aren't thrilled with the results at the end of that time...with the incredible improvement in your figure that you see in the mirror, and that your friends compliment you upon, then just return it. Your full purchase price will be refunded immediately.

SAVES YOU HOURS OF TORTURE EVERY WEEK!

What the Effortless Exerciser eliminates is just as important as what it does. For example:

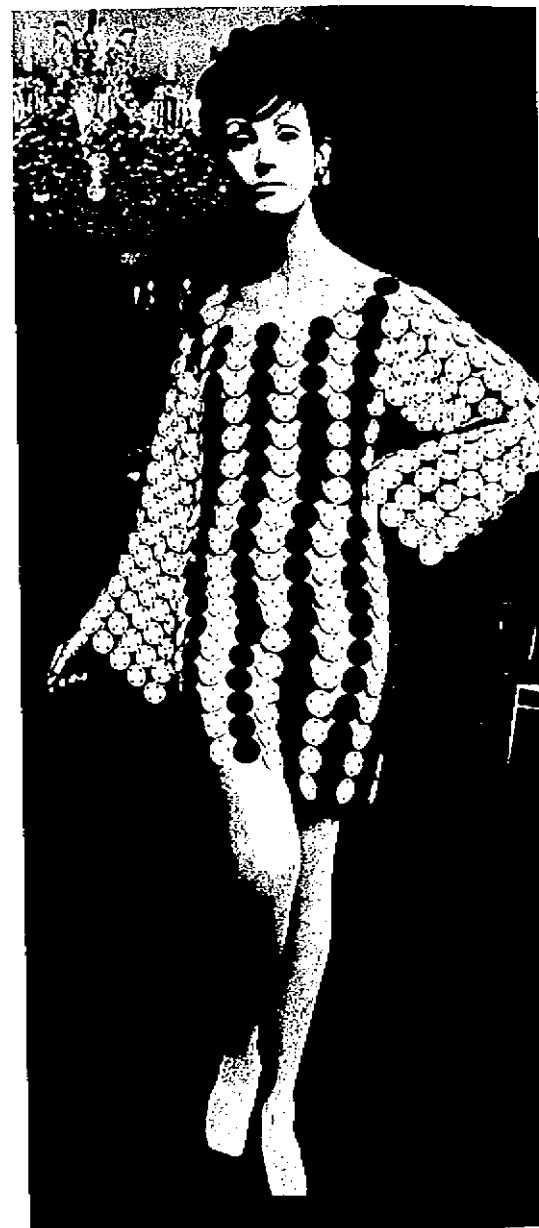

It eliminates isometric exercises. They are marvelous; but correct technique is absolutely essential or you get unwanted athletic muscles.

It eliminates torture diets. Your weight shoots right back up when you go off them, anyway.

It eliminates electrical apparatus. Most people find them highly unpleasant!

It eliminates gymnastics and other bulky equipment. Who's got the time and room?

The Effortless Exerciser replaces all these horrors with an effortless, daily two-minute routine that is as second nature as putting on your lipstick—and that gives you the firm, slim, young body and posture you're always wanted! Try it today, entirely at our risk!

What the Effortless Exerciser really does—and why its figure-molding results are so incredibly dramatic—is strengthen these hidden figure-control muscles. So that pushed-out flab disappears; and vulnerable areas look pounds lighter, even though you haven't burned off a single ounce of them with a diet.

Other advantages: The Effortless Exerciser helps your blood flow strong and hard again...cleanses your circulation...tones vital heart muscles...pours new oxygen into your blood stream. Thus, overnight, your complexion becomes clearer. You have more energy—just like a healthy, active teenager.

And, best of all—every second with it is FUN! It's fun to be young with the Effortless Exerciser! To feel young again! To look young again!

Try It At Our Risk.

But don't take any word for it. The only way to prove the value of this Effortless Exerciser is to try it yourself, at our risk, for a full month.

If you aren't thrilled with the results at the end of that time...with the incredible improvement in your figure that you see in the mirror, and that your friends compliment on—then just return it. Your full purchase price will be refunded immediately.

SAVES YOU HOURS OF TORTURE EVERY WEEK!

What the Effortless Exerciser eliminates is just as important as what it does. For example:

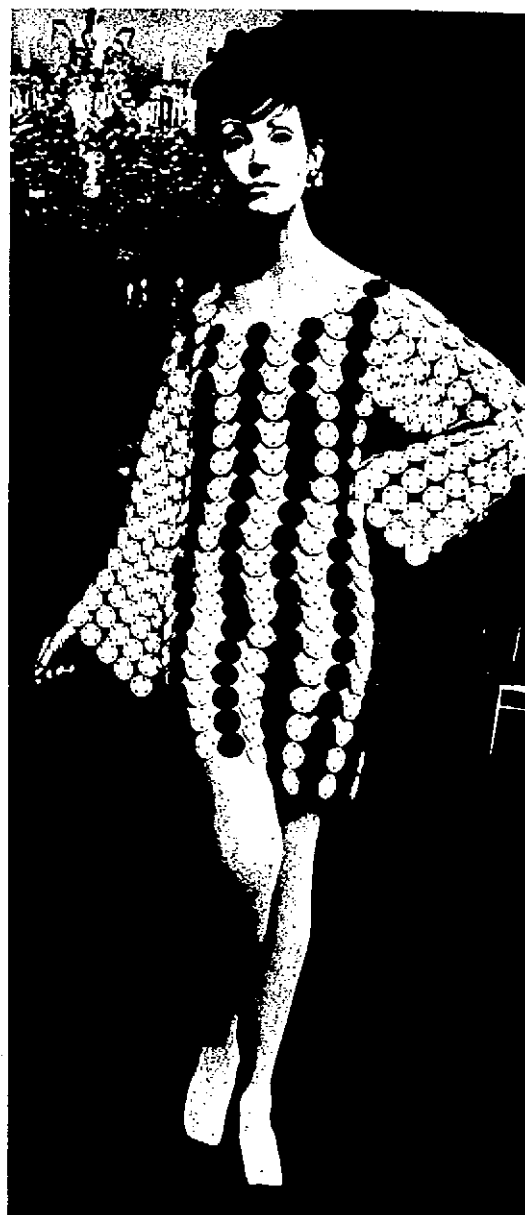

It eliminates isometric exercises. They are marvelous; but correct technique is absolutely essential or you get unwanted athletic muscles.

It eliminates torture diets. Your weight shoots right back up when you go off them, anyway.

It eliminates electrical apparatus. Most people find them highly unpleasant!

It eliminates gymnasiums and other bulky equipment. Who's got the time and room?

The Effortless Exerciser replaces all these horrors with an effortless, daily two-minute routine that is as second nature as putting on your lipstick—one that gives you the firm, slim, young body and posture you've always wanted! Try it today, entirely at our risk!

VACATION IN APPALACHIA

This, Too, Is America

by George Michaelson

Cronies: Nimrod Workman (l) and Jim White. Workman, suffering from silicosis, started in mines "back when Woodrow Wilson was President."

MINGO COUNTY, W. VA.
David Cass, a 26-year-old teacher from Denver, Colo., was all set to take a three-week summer vacation to Europe when he came across the following advertisement in a magazine:

"Spend three weeks in Appalachia—Mingo County, West Virginia—Land of the Hatfields and McCoys. Daily guided tours by poor people. Attend community meetings and live with an Appalachian family for 21 days, only $378."

"Immediately I changed my plans," David recalls. "It was a chance to see a poverty area that has been so much in the news. I couldn't pass it up." Thus did David become the first of some 50 "tourists" who this summer have headed for the hills and hollows of southern West Virginia, there to vacation amongst Bible-quoting, gun-toting miners and mountaineers.

Hundreds of letters

"It's a wild and woolly scheme," confesses Huey Perry, the 33-year-old director of the county's poverty program, and originator of the vacation plan, "but I have always been confident it would work. I've received hundreds of letters expressing interest."

Most of the vacationers are professional people who left their plush suburban homes for the wood frame houses and shacks of Mingo County, where 43 percent of the 38,000 residents live in substandard housing. The houses always seem crowded with barefoot kids. And while sometimes the guests are given a room of their own, more often they wind up sharing a room with two or

Typical of the hosts, who get most of the $18-a-day fee, is Mrs. Clyde Robinette, mother of 14, and wife of a retired miner. "I can't really say why anyone would want to come out here," says Mrs. Robinette, whose six-room house is nestled deep in a hazy hollow. "You know, some of the folks out here is a bit suspicious of 'em—reckon they might be Communists or troublemakers. Geoffrey, the boy we had with us for a few days, was a fine one. But, if he was a hippie or something like that, he wouldn't have made it through the front door."

Secrets and sorrows

Once a tourist does travel that long distance through the front door, however, he is introduced to the secrets and sorrows of his hosts' family. Guests at the mountain-top house of Whit Collins, for instance, are let in on the mountaineer's philosophy of women. "Ah reckon a woman's the nicest piece of furniture you can have about the house," speculates 71-year-old Collins, who has had 28 children by three wives.

"But if the ol' lady starts givin' me trouble, packin' her bags and threatenin' to leave, I go packin' my bags, too. Cain't let her get out the door first, brother. Then, you might never see her again."

On a sadder note, tourists at the home of Nimrod Workman, a retired miner suffering from silicosis of both lungs, are given a firsthand account of mines and men. Nimrod tells how he started working in the mines "back when Woodrow Wilson was President," sometimes shoveling 15-20 tons of coal in an 18-hour day. "And what have I got to show for it?" Nimrod asks. "Just $162 a month Social Security check for me, my wife and my boy." Then, if his guests are interested—and they always are—he takes them to a mine. With his bony fingers he scoops up some coal dust, rubs it on the palm of his hand, and spits into it, making a nasty black paste. "That's what's in my lungs," he says. "Ain't no way a man can get it out—not till he dies, that is."

Many of the hundred or so families that have offered to take in a tourist are headed by retired miners, men whose lungs are clogged with coal dust, and who often wake up in the middle of the night coughing and gasping for air. In

Secrets and sorrows

Once a tourist does travel that long distance through the front door, however, he is introduced to the secrets and sorrows of his hosts' family. Guests at the mountain-top house of Whitt Collins, for instance, are let in on the mountaineer's philosophy of women. "Ah reckon a woman's the nicest piece of furniture you can have about the house," speculates 71-year-old Collins, who has had 28 children by three wives.

"But if the ol' lady starts givin' me trouble, packin' her bags and threatenin' to leave, I go packin' my bags, too. Cain't let her get out the door first, brother. Then, you might never see her again."

"Just $162 a month Social Security check for me, my wife and my boy." Then, if his guests are interested—and they always are—he takes them to a mine. With his bony fingers he sroops up some coal dust, rubs it on the palm of his hand, and spits into it, making a nasty black paste. "That's what's in my lungs," he says. "Ain't no way a man can get it out—not till he dies, that is."

Many of the hundred or so families that have offered to take in a tourist are headed by retired miners, men whose lungs are clogged with coal dust, and who often wake up in the middle of the night coughing and gasping for air. In the daytime, they sit listlessly on the porch in their rocking chairs, recalling the long years in the mines, proud that they were tough enough to survive it and angry that they came out with so little. As they stare out into space, sometimes at a smoking slag heap, sometimes at a brook polluted with mine waste, they swear that none of their kids will ever set foot in the mines.

"You don't realize how dull and repetitious life can be," says David Cass, "until you've passed a day or two doing nothing but sitting on the porch in a rocking chair. I tried it just to see what it was like and it about drove me crazy. After two days, I felt I had to get up and do something instead of watching the flies and listening for the train."

Most tourists, however, never have a chance to sit around the porch. For Mingo County, one of the poorest areas in the country, is rich in legend and folklore and, as the ad promises, there are "daily guided tours by poor people"—to folk music festivals, horse trades, fox hunts, and of course to the mines. Sometimes there is a visit to the Hatfield or McCoy cemetery, preceded by a lecture by an old Hatfield or a real McCoy, recounting in gory detail the 50-year-long feud.

On one of these occasions, visitors listened to 87-year-old Joe McCoy describe how the feud began over the killing of a hog, and how McCoy had lost his grandfather and countless brothers and cousins. "But they's a perfect understanding 'tween us now," claims McCoy, who lives with his 31-year-old wife and 12-year-old daughter still almost within rifle's range of the Hatfield homestead. "Of course, I'll tell you this, brother: old as I am, if anyone done anything to my wife or daughter, I'd pick up my weapons and go after 'em. Wouldn't be no arrests neither."

'Bloody Mingo'

McCoy wasn't just boasting, and as many visitors discovered during their vacation, the county wasn't dubbed "bloody Mingo" for nothing. "Perhaps it's the life in the mines that makes them so violent," conjectured Mrs. Joan Dufault, a housewife and photographer from New York. "Or maybe it's a hold-over from frontier life. I don't know, but you sure hear a lot of these gruesome tales—even more than in New York City.

One young man, a guest at Nimrod Workman's, told how he came back one night and found the house empty. He went to bed, but was awakened at 3 in the morning by Nimrod's pounding on the front door. When the old man came in, haggard and distressed, he explained that he had just come back from the hospital. His son had been beaten by four drunks. His head was busted open and seven ribs were cracked. They didn't know whether he would live. Nimrod, who had only $20, had to put up his house as assurance that the doctor's expenses would be covered. He told the visitor that he was hoping to catch his son's assailants and get them to pay for the hospital bills. He believed in "working with the law as long as it's possible." Meanwhile, he and his wife would pray.

"Prayer is what keeps these people going," explains Cass, who lived with three different families during his short stay. "Even if they can't read they have a Bible in the house. I remember one rainy Sunday at Whitt Collins' house I spent hours reading Genesis to him. He sat there listening and nodding, almost like he was back in the Garden of Eden. It was beautiful, just beautiful."

Tourists who happened to be in Mingo when evangelist Henry C. Adams was passing through were able to attend a Church of God revival meeting. Recalls Geoffrey Douglas, a graduate English student at New York University: "At first it was just like any other church service. Then, slowly, the preacher—Adams—started raising his voice. For a half hour he kept going, louder and louder, and then everyone was standing and waving hands and shouting. Some dropped to the floor, quivering like an electric shock was passing through them. I was sweating and even a little scared. It's the most incredible thing I ever saw." Douglas paused for a moment and then added: "Actually the whole vacation here is incredible."

A tourist area?

Hucy Perry has been so encouraged by the response this summer that he is thinking ahead to the next. "I think we could take care of 1000 guests if they came," says Perry. "Might even make Mingo into a thriving tourist area."

David Cass, at least, shares Perry's optimism. He already has made reservations for next summer. "I never could have gotten so much out of a trip to Europe," said Cass as he placed his souvenirs—two green apples and a half pint of "moonshine"—into his car and prepared to leave. "Strange as it may sound, Mingo seems much further away, much more foreign than Europe." And having said this, Cass hopped into his car, waved goodbye to a few Mingo natives, and began to drive home—to America.

Chicken Chili Buns

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

School days coming up soon lead to after-class get-togethers. Hearty appetites scorn dainty foods. So what to serve as a change from burgers or pizzas? One good answer is Chicken Chili Buns—robust eating for hungry young people. Add a big bowl of cool, crisp raw vegetables—celery, scallions, radishes, cucumber sticks and the like—and have plenty of soft drinks well chilled and on the ready.

Deep-dish apple pie à la mode would be well received for dessert. Serve the pie warm, with firm vanilla ice cream atop.

CHICKEN CHILI BUNS

- 8 chicken thighs and drumsticks
- 1/4 cup salad oil
- 1 teaspoon Accent
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 can (15 1/2 oz.) red kidney beans, drained
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- 1 can (1 lb.) stewed tomatoes
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 8 split, toasted hamburger buns

Brown thighs and drumsticks well in hot oil over high heat; sprinkle with Accent and salt. Remove browned chicken; lower heat; gently sauté onion until soft but not brown. Drain off oil. Turn beans, tomato sauce and tomatoes into pan; add pepper and chili powder. Cook, stirring occasionally, until thickened, about 5 to 10 minutes. Return browned chicken pieces to chili. Reduce heat to low and cook 5 minutes longer or until chicken is tender. Serve on split toasted buns. Garnish with onion rings and dill pickle slices. Makes 8 servings.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

EDITED by LLOYD SHEARER

REMEDY FOR ITCHING

In this season of mosquitoes and poison ivy, victims of same are advised that one of the most effective measures to relieve itching is hot water. The Medical Letter, which evaluates drugs critically for more than 40,000 physicians, reports: "The hot water treatment is most suitable for localized itching...if the water... is hot enough, momentary application, with a washcloth or under running water, repeated several times, may be sufficient." The water, however, must be painfully hot, so hot that long contact would be inadvisable and a bath in it impossible.

ROMANO MUSSOLINI AND WIFE MARIA ADDRESSING PACKAGES IN HER HANDBAG SHOP.

ROMAN SCANDAL

Benito Mussolini was a man of seemingly insatiable sexual appetites. At the height of his vigor when he was a strutting, grimacing peacock of a dictator, he insisted upon a new woman, preferably buxom, for lunch each day. Practically none of his lunch partners refused him his choice dessert.

Come 1970 Il Duce will have been dead 25 years. But some of his rakish ways still persist.

His youngest son, 41-year-old Romano Mussolini, the jazz pianist and playboy, is currently the favorite of Rome's journalistic and society gossipists. Romano's marriage to Sophia Loren's sister, Maria, is openly shaky. While Maria Mussolini looks after their two daughters at home, her husband has rented another apartment in Rome, is seen publicly with other women, also buxom.

Romano's newest female interest is his wife's cousin, a 18-year-old starlet named Igli Villani. The happy pair frequently can be found in "Oratorio," a right-wing Roman cabaret, owned by Nando Pucci Negri, Romano's ex-brother-in-law.

KICKBACKS

Abortion clinics in London now offer a $12 to $15 kickback to taxi drivers for each customer they can snag at the airport and steer their way.

British physicians in private practice are cleaning up. A year ago they used to charge $250 for an abortion. Now they've doubled the price to meet the demands of foreign women, mostly German, Swiss, and American.

Each week approximately 700 to 800 of these women fly into London for an abortion. One Danish group, called "Society and the Individual," has sent 200 needy women to one English clinic in two weeks. All were promptly and efficiently taken care of and sent back home.

Under a 1968 law abortions are relatively easy to obtain in England. If a psychiatrist agrees that the woman's mental health is in jeopardy, the physician is authorized to proceed.

Some private London clinics perform nothing but abortions on an almost belt-line process. It is to these clinics that the cab drivers generally bring their customers. Many foreign girls arrive at Heathrow Airport speaking little English and unacquainted with any British gynecologist. They go from taxi driver to driver seeking information.

Occasionally a woman will hand them a white slip of paper bearing the name of a clinic or a physician. The cab driver thereupon bundles her into his cab, tells her the particular clinic has burned down, and steers her to another clinic where he knows his recommendation will result in a kickback.

FIFTH CLASS

By 1973, England will have an army smaller than Italy's. Her armed forces, which for so long spread throughout the world proudly protecting the Union Jack, soon will rank a mere fifth in size among the non-Communist nations of Europe. England will fall behind West Germany, France, Turkey and Italy.

This is the prediction of Dr. Godfrey Williams, consultant to the British Defense Ministry and lecturer in defense studies at Southampton University. As Williams sees it, the United Kingdom is heading towards a spectator role in the military affairs of Europe and the world. She has maintained neither the size nor the equipment to offer serious contention in warfare.

Only wealthy nations can afford an expansionist military policy such as the one practiced by the United States. In the days when "the sun never set on the British Empire" the English nation had worldwide interests and the money for armed services to protect them.

Today the English economy struggles along on weak legs. Priorities have been forcibly adjusted. With the U.S. loudly avowing her strength and her willingness to use it, there is no need for the British to maintain a defense system they can ill afford.

NEW TECHNIQUE

Japanese pickpockets, not content with the age-old method of slitting the victim's pocket with a razor (preferably a safety razor blade these days), now use an acid spray which disintegrates the cloth of the pocket.

According to a Scotland Yard report on international pickpocketing habits, the acid spray and the safety razor are the only two recent advancements in this occupation.

Japanese pickpockets work in an advantageous location because their cities are extremely crowded. Popularization of the Western habit of putting money in the hip pocket is helpful too.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

EDITED by LLOYD SHEARER

REMEDY FOR ITCHING

In this season of mosquitoes and poison ivy, victims of same are advised that one of the most effective measures to relieve itching is hot water. The Medical Letter, which evaluates drugs critically for more than 40,000 physicians, reports: "The hot water treatment is most suitable for localized itching...if the water...is hot enough, momentary application, with a washcloth or under running water, repeated several times, may be sufficient."

The water, however, must be painfully hot, so hot that long contact would be inadvisable and a bath in it impossible.

Dog Nearly Itches to Death

"I thought we'd have to put Daisy to sleep, she suffered so from large itching sores. I had about given up trying things when I found Sulfodene. The itching stopped, sores soon healed, hair grew back. Bless you for Sulfodene," says Mrs. John Burmester, New Jersey.

SULFODENE liquid medication relieves frenzied itching almost instantly. Quickly promotes healing of fungus itch-sores (often called mange, eczema, hot spots). Used by kennels and veterinarians. For dogs and cats. Get SULFODENE today. At drug stores and pet departments.

Now Possible To Shrink Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases—to stop burning itch, pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H—there is no other formula like it for hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

Now...Plastic Cream Revolutionizes Denture Wearing

For the first time science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds false teeth almost like Nature herself holds natural teeth. It forms an elastic membrane that holds both "uppers and lowers" as never before.

It's FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U.S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you can bite harder, chew harder without pain. You may even eat and enjoy apples, steak, corn-on-the-cob again.

FIXODENT's special pencil-point dispenser lets you put it exactly where it's needed. Avoids oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last round-the-clock. Even resists hot coffee. Dentures that fit are essential to health. So see your dentist regularly. Get FIXODENT at all drug counters.

My Favorite Jokes

by Sebastian Cabot

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sebastian Cabot, 5 feet 9 and 270 pounds, is a star of Family Affair, a comedy series which begins its fourth year next month on the CBS TV network. Cabot, who plays the role of a majordomo in the household of his bachelor employer and three lively children, was born in London in 1918.

He left school at 14 to work in a garage but later became a cook, in which trade he developed his tremendous girth. Cabot worked in British films as an extra, gradually developed into a feature player, came to the U.S. in 1955. He became widely known on American TV for his portrayal of the urbane Dr. Carl Wyatt in the Checkmate series.

Cabot and his wife Kathleen live in Los Angeles, where the comedian is an auto buff and currently owns classic models of Jaguar, Bentley, Citroën, and Lagonda cars.

Herewith some of the fat man's favorite funnies:

The mother asked her son what he was studying in college. "We've just taken up molecules," he replied. "Wonderful!" said the mother. "I hope you like them. I've always tried to get your father to wear one but he couldn't keep it in his eye."

Three men were motoring to London in an old, noisy car and hearing was difficult. As they neared the city, one asked:

"Is this Wembley?"

"No," said the second, "this is Thursday."

"So am I," put in the third. "Let's stop and have one."

A banker at a party drank too much but was determined not to lose his dignity by showing he was tipsy. Someone asked the hostess to show off the new addition to her family. She came out with a dainty baby basket containing twins.

The banker steadied himself and said as he gazed into the basket:

"What a beautiful baby!"

I believe it was George Bernard Shaw who said, "When you become used to never being alone, you may consider yourself Americanized."

A nouveau riche businessman joined a swanky golf club although he knew nothing about the game. His first time on the course, his caddy handed him a driver for the tee-off but the man refused and demanded a putter. The caddy protested he'd never make the 425-foot-long hole, but the man insisted and to his caddy's astonishment, slammed the ball 240 yards. For his second shot he refused the caddy's suggestion of a No. 2 iron and, amazingly, landed on the green with a No. 9 iron. Then to sink the putt, he asked for a driver. This time the caddy argued vehemently but the man threatened to fire him if he didn't shut up, and sure enough, he sank the ball in the hole.

"Now's your chance," he told the caddy. "What do I use to get it out?"

"Who told you that you could loaf around the office without working, just because I kissed you a few times?" an annoyed boss asked his secretary.

"My attorney," she replied pertly.

A man visiting a zoo was astounded to see an orangutan with a book in each hand, reading. The man asked: "Excuse me, but are you actually reading?"

"Of course," the ape replied. "Darwin's Theory of Evolution and the Holy Bible."

"Well," said the man, "are you sure you understand what you're reading?"

"I'm not so sure," said the orangutan. "The more I study the more I wonder whether I'm my brother's keeper or in fact, my keeper's brother."

Two London sparrows flew over the dirty industrial town of Manchester and found a dingy patch of grass with a lone, soot-covered tree. They perched on the tree beside a couple of other brown birds. One sparrow tried to strike up a conversation and commented: "It's pretty dirty 'ere, hain't it?"

"Yep," said the bird.

"Not much of a park," said the sparrow.

"Nope," said the other bird.

"Listen, old cock sparrow," said the London bird, "can't you say more than yep or nope?"

"Oo you calling a sparrow?" said the other, spitting on his chest and rubbing it with his wing. "I'm a robin."

WHAT'S WRONG WITH ABORTION?

QUITE A LOT!

It often is said that "liberalized" laws are needed to end illegal abortions. But countries which have tried the experiment have found that the number of illegal abortions actually has risen.

It is said that some women must have abortions to preserve their physical or mental health. But modern medicine and psychiatry can handle virtually all physical and emotional problems in pregnancy—without resorting to abortion.

It is said that abortion is safe and harmless. But abortions can cause such problems as sterility as well as severe emotional disorders. Evidence shows that women with previous abortions are more likely to have premature babies.

Abortion means the destruction of innocent human life.

If the unborn child can be killed, what about the aged . . . the sick . . . the handicapped? Should the laws be changed to make it possible to kill anybody who happens, through no fault of his own, to be a burden to somebody else? Just 30 years ago the nazis preached the same philosophy.

There is a lot wrong with abortion. If you want to find out more write for a free copy of an easy-to-read pamphlet, "The Trouble with Abortion." It deals with medical, legal and social aspects of abortion, the experience of other countries and the ethical issues involved.

There is no obligation. Write today. The pamphlet will be sent to you promptly. Nobody will call.

Any encyclopedia—regardless of age, condition, number of volumes or publisher—can bring you the latest

Anniversary edition of

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

You get all 24 volumes now... direct from the publisher... pay later on easy Book a Month Payment Plan.

Yes, for the first time in the history of Britannica, you may obtain this remarkable reference work—direct from the publisher—and get a $75 to $125 trade-in allowance on any encyclopedia when you choose the latest Anniversary edition of Encyclopaedia Britannica.

And, we'll give you this generous trade-in allowance regardless of the age, condition, number of volumes or publisher of your present encyclopedia!

Trade Now and Save

We cannot know precisely how much your present encyclopedia is worth in trade, but we can promise you this: The very least you will receive is $75. And all 24 volumes of the new Anniversary edition of Britannica will be placed in your home NOW... you pay later on convenient budget terms. It's as easy as buying a book a month.

You may wonder why we are making this revolutionary trade-in offer. First, we know that many parents who truly want to help their youngsters do better in school have an out-of-date encyclopedia. Or perhaps one their youngsters have already outgrown. So, because we want every child to have the advantage of Britannica to help with homework and to answer questions—we offer this unique trade-in opportunity.

Thousands of Subjects and Illustrations For Homework and Household Help

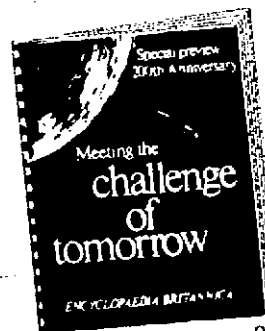

In the new edition of Britannica, you will find thousands of subjects that you and your family will refer to in the course of your normal day-to-day affairs. For example, you'll find special articles on household budgets, interior decorating, medicine and health, home remodeling, and child care.

For students, Britannica is indispensable. And the new edition is the most readable, interesting and easy to use in our entire history. It develops the active, alert minds that bring success in school and later life.

The latest edition offers more than 22,000 magnificent illustrations—thousands in vivid color. The atlas section contains the finest, most current maps available. With 36,000,000 words, the work of some 10,400 of the world's great authorities, Britannica is the largest, most complete reference published in America.

May we send you our special new Preview Booklet which pictures and describes the latest edition? For your free copy and complete information about this dramatic trade-in offer—available for the first time—simply mail the attached postage-free card now.

My Favorite Jokes

by Sebastian Cabot

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sebastian Cabot, 5 feet 9 and 270 pounds, is a star of Family Affair, a comedy series which begins its fourth year next month on the CBS TV network. Cabot, who plays the role of a majordomo in the household of his bachelor employer and three lively children, was born in London in 1918.

He left school at 14 to work in a garage but later became a cook, in which trade he developed his tremendous girth. Cabot worked in British films as an extra, gradually developed into a feature player, came to the U.S. in 1955. He became widely known on American TV for his portrayal of the urbane Dr. Carl Wyatt in the Checkmate series.

Cabot and his wife Kathleen live in Los Angeles, where the comedian is an auto buff and currently owns classic models of Jaguar, Bentley, Citroen, and Lagonda cars.

Herewith some of the fat man's favorite funnies:

The mother asked her son what he was studying in college. "We've just taken up molecules," he replied. "Wonderful!" said the mother. "I hope you like them. I've always tried to get your father to wear one but he couldn't keep it in his eye."

Three men were motoring to London in an old, noisy car and hearing was difficult. As they neared the city, one asked:

"Is this Wembley?"

"No," said the second, "this is Thursday."

"So am I," put in the third. "Let's stop and have one."

A banker at a party drank too much but was determined not to lose his dignity by showing he was tipsy. Someone asked the hostess to show off the new addition to her family. She came out with a dainty baby basket containing twins.

The banker steadied himself and said as he gazed into the basket:

"What a beautiful baby!"

I believe it was George Bernard Shaw who said, "When you become used to never being alone, you may consider yourself Americanized."

A nouveau riche businessman joined a swanky golf club although he knew nothing about the game. His first time on the course, his caddy handed him a driver for the tee-off but the man refused and demanded a putter. The caddy protested he'd never make the 425-foot-long hole, but the man insisted and to his caddy's astonishment, slammed the ball 240 yards. For his second shot he refused the caddy's suggestion of a No. 2 iron and, amazingly, landed on the green with a No. 9 iron. Then to sink the putt, he asked for a driver. AND THE PIRATES

GEORGE WUNDER

CONVINCED THAT HIS BROTHER WILL SPY ON THE N.A.T.O. CONFERENCE FOR THE EAST GERMANS, JIMMIE REQUESTS DUTY UNDER TERRY LEE.

I'M SURE COLONEL LEE IS AT A MEETING RIGHT NOW, SERGEANT. HANG AROUND.

14 UNIT

AND LATER, THAT MEETING BREAKS UP.

ALL MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN DELEGATION WILL REPORT TO THE GENERAL'S OFFICE.

GENTLEMEN, I NEEDN'T REMIND YOU OF THE HIGHLY CLASSIFIED NATURE OF TODAY'S PROCEEDINGS. THERE MUST BE NO LEAKS.

SIR, I BELIEVE A TAPE WAS MADE AT THE MEETING...

AFFIRMATIVE. THAT WAS HANDLED BY OUR HOST COUNTRY'S SIGNAL SECTION. I'M TAKING IT TO N.A.T.O. H.Q. IN BRUSSELS MYSELF.

SERGEANT, GET OVER TO THE SIGNAL SECTION AND PICK UP THE TAPE RECORDING THEY'LL HAVE WAITING.

YES, SIR.

THANK YOU.

WHILE...

...HOPE COLONEL LEE DOESN'T MIND MY ATTACHING MYSELF TO HIM LIKE THIS, BUT I CAN'T JUST SIT! I'D RECOGNIZE CARL EVEN IN A DISGUISE.

AND NEARBY...

MY BEING HERE MIGHT HELP... I KNOW JUST HOW MUCH BRASS MY BROTHER HAS. IT EVEN HELPS HIM GET AWAY WITH...

CARL!

ANNIE'S SMART ENOUGH TO KNOW THAT WHEN I SENT HER THAT CABLE MERELY INFORMING HER YOU WERE ON YOUR WAY TO FETCH HER, PUNJAB, THERE WERE REASONS TO KEEP MY WHEREABOUTS A SECRET!

I HAVE DONE ONE BRAVER THING THAN ALL THE WORTHIES DID, AND YET A BRAVER THENCE DOETH SPRING WHICH IS, TO KEEP THAT HID

—JOHN DONNE

ANNIE WILL UNDERSTAND AND PLACE HER FAITH IN YOUR WISDOM. OF THAT I AM CERTAIN, SAHIB!

KEEP A SHARP EYE OUT FOR THEM, PUNJAB! I'VE GOT AN UNEASY HUNCH THEY'RE WAITING RIGHT OUT THERE IN THE DARKNESS TO MAKE THEIR MOVE!

THE GIANT IS LEAVING THE YACHT OF WARBUCKS!

GOOD LUCK!

SOMETHING'S OUT THERE IN THE WATER, PUNJAB!

STOP THE MOTOR AND REMAIN HERE UNTIL I RETURN!

THEY HAVE STOPPED THE LAUNCH!

THE GIANT IS PREPARING TO LEAP OVERBOARD!

PUNJAB! WHAT ARE YOU DOING?

THE HUNTED IS BECOMING THE HUNTER!!

SHOOT!!

HE IS TOO CLOSE! WE WILL FIRE INTO EACH OTHER!!

ARRRRRGHHH!!

HE WHO LIVES BY THE SPEAR SHALL PERISH BY THE SWORD!!

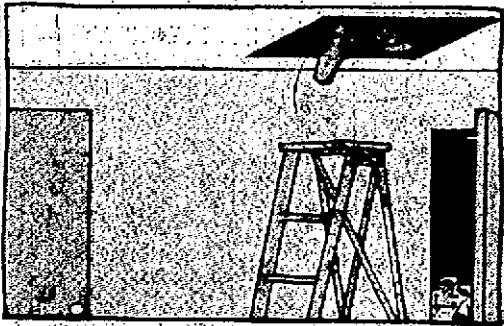

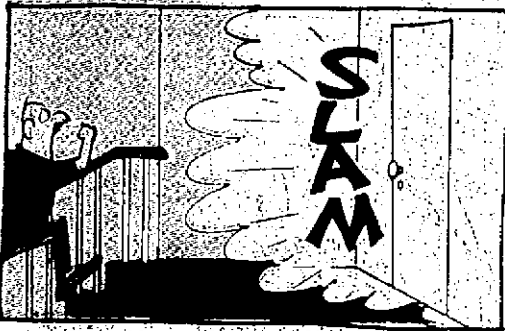

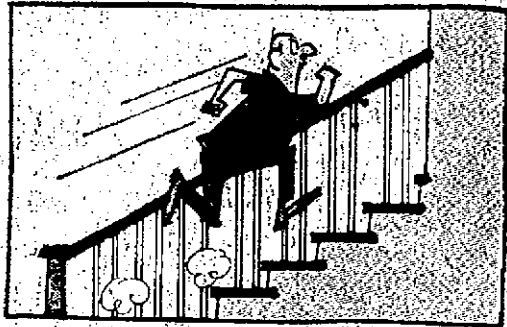

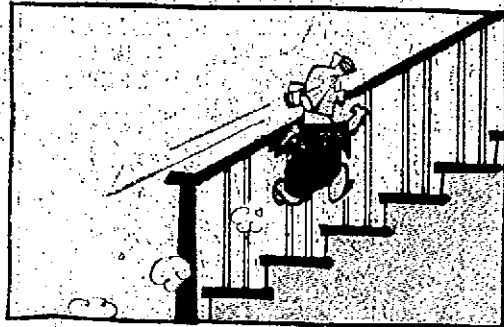

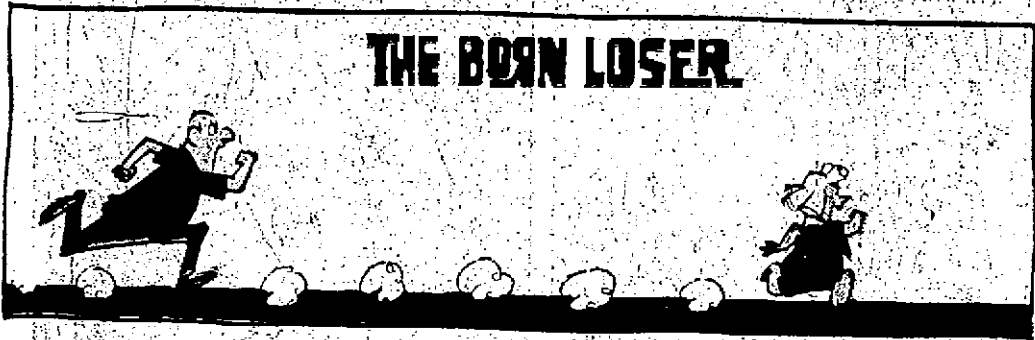

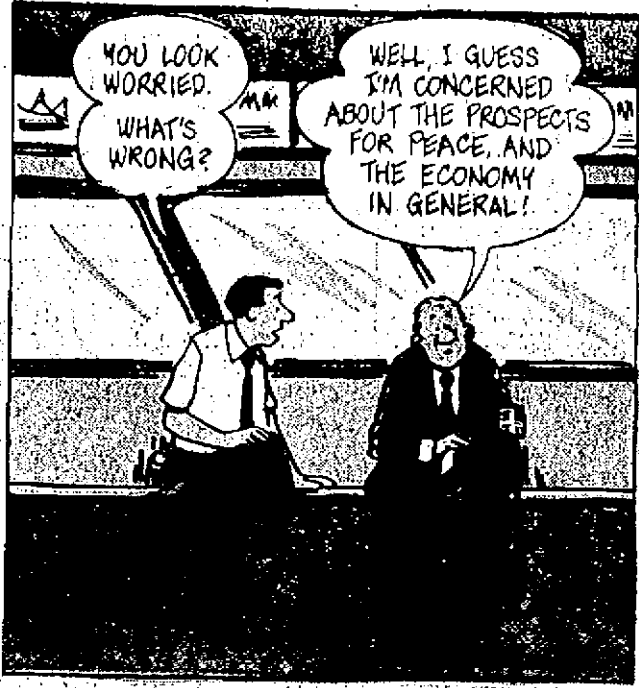

W-WHAT HAPPENED OUT THERE, PUNJAB?

YOU MAY PROCEED TO THE DOCK! I FEEL THAT ALL OBSTACLES HAVE BEEN TEMPORARILY ELIMINATED!

YOU LOOK WORRIED. WHAT'S WRONG?

WELL, I GUESS I'M CONCERNED ABOUT THE PROSPECTS FOR PEACE, AND THE ECONOMY IN GENERAL!

BUT WHY? EVERY EFFORT IS BEING MADE TO ACHIEVE A LASTING PEACE AND, SLOWLY BUT SURELY, THINGS COULD BE MOVING IN THAT DIRECTION—AND AS FOR THE ECONOMY, WE'RE HEADED FOR A BOOM IN THE 70s

I KNOW! THAT'S GREAT, BUT...

...WHAT WILL IT DO TO SKIRT LENGTHS?

HEY! STOP THAT!

FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE STOP FIGHTING!

WHEN ARE YOU KIDS GOING TO LEARN THAT VIOLENCE NEVER SETTLES ANYTHING?

ARE YOU KIDDING? YOU GROWN-UPS FIGHT ALL THE TIME! EVERYTIME YOU HAVE A PROBLEM YOU GO TO WAR!

AND SOMETIMES EVEN WHEN YOU DON'T HAVE A PROBLEM... SO DON'T GO POINTING A FINGER AT US!

I DO BELIEVE THE GENERATION GAP IS CLOSING!
